Secretary of the Treasury Has Neither Resigned Post Nor Quarreled with President.

MAY WIN BY INACTIVITY.

Political Wiseacres Say Cabinet Officer's Chances in Dark Horse Line Are of Brightest.

BY RAYMOND.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Secretary Cortelyou has not resigned and does not intend to just at present. He has not had a quarrel with the president and is not likely to have.

His relations with Secretary Taft and other members of the cabinet are entirely cordial, and will surely continue so.

He is not an avowed candidate for the presidency. The president has not informed him that he could not be such a candidate. His entire liberty of political action has been repeatedly recognized both by President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft.

The secretary of the treasury has been an extremely sick man, and he is still far from well. He has been absent a great deal from the treasury department, but has attended every cabinet meeting when he was able to be out of the house.

The president and the secretary denounce as absolutely untrue the stories printed this morning that Secretary Cortelyou had retired from the cabinet in a huff and was about to accept a position under Pierpont Morgan.

President Never Blocked Path.

The president told Secretary Cortelyou at Oyster Bay last summer that if he desired to be a candidate for the presidency the administration would not do anything to embarrass him in any way.

This statement has been repeated of late because the president recognizes the fact that the secretary of the treasury, like every other American citizen, is entitled, in his own right, to an honest ambition for political promotion.

Secretary Cortelyou, moreover, has never been an open candidate, although he still is and will be a receptive one.

Those who have been studying chances of the secretary of the treasury say that his prospects depend entirely upon the result of the fight among the other candidates. He has a good record as an administration man. He understands government methods well, and probably would succeed as president much better than the average man.

At the same time he never has been a positive force in politics in New York or elsewhere. His home ties, from a political standpoint, are extremely thin. He came here during the Cleveland administration as a clerk in the postoffice, and has been in the employ of the government in Washington ever since, except for a time when he was at the head of the republican national committee.

Even in that position Mr. Cortelyou was much more the personal and confidential representative of President Roosevelt than anything else.

Chances Are in Dark Horse Line.

He had had no experience in practical politics whatsoever. He did his work well, however, as he does everything well that is set for him to do.

He became acquainted with the active political agencies of the United States and he studied party machinery with that pertinacity of purpose and with that clerical completeness which are so characteristic of the man.

As a result of these conditions it seems to be evident to politicians hereabout that Cortelyou's chances lie in the dark horse line. He certainly could not carry New York against Hughes.

If he were to start in on such a fight he would be left behind so completely as to bring his candidacy into ridicule.

Even with Hughes eliminated, it is doubtful if Cortelyou could beat Taft or Knox in New York state.

There is no evidence that he has any great strength in the west. He might get a bunch of southern delegates as a result of the recent activity of Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock.

Every man knows, however, that the candidate who goes into a national convention of the republican party with nothing but the south behind him is placarded from the outset as a machinist. The south frequently holds the balance of power, but it never creates a candidacy and never can do so.

May Win by Keeping Still.

There are those who believe that the secretary of the treasury may easily become the republican candidate for the presidency if he refrains from too much activity during the preliminary canvass.

It would be entirely natural, as politics goes, for the state of New York to make Hughes its favorite son and hold Cortelyou in reserve for second choice.

At this distance away from the convention it looks much as if the real fight would be between Taft and Hughes. Knox has Pennsylvania, Fairbanks has Indiana, Cannon has Illinois, and La Follette has Wisconsin.

No one of those candidates at the present time has any appreciable strength outside his own state, so far as first choice is concerned.

There is a belief that Cannon will get a good deal of the Indiana delegation and a large fragment of that from Pennsylvania when the breakup comes.

As a matter of generalship it is necessary for all the candidates to get together in an attack on Taft, who is undeniably the leader and who is practically certain to have at least one-third of the membership of the convention at the outset.

Fight May Be General.

If the field can defeat Taft it will be anybody's fight, but the natural tendency would be to break away from Knox, Fairbanks, Cannon, and La Follette entirely, and go to the man who has been the second choice from the beginning.

That man is said to be Hughes. The Taft men admit that a great many of their people are for Hughes for second place. In districts which report a strong current for the secretary of war there is almost invariably an undertow for Hughes.

At the present time it looks probable that the general anti-Roosevelt movement, if successful in breaking up the Taft camp, would then endeavor to drive Hughes out of the field.

Should such a thing be accomplished, it

SANITY IS QUESTIONED.

Effort to Send Her to Asylum Will Be Resisted; Lawyer Denies the Woman's Story of Wrongs.

The mystery of the identity of Mrs. Thomas Metcalf, who on Tuesday attempted to kill Samuel R. Hamill, one of the John R. Walsh attorneys, was cleared up yesterday evening. The woman herself maintained silence in her cell in the county jail beyond protesting in a general way against the wrongs she said she had suffered from Mr. Hamill. She has acquired a lawyer, who says he will defend her against any threatened effort on the part of Hamill's friends to have her declared insane.

Mrs. Metcalf is the wife of a former foreman of railroad construction on the Western Indiana. His present whereabouts is not revealed in the disentanglement of the web of mystery surrounding the case. That he was a man of intemperate habits several of Mrs. Metcalf's friends allege. He lost his place on the railroad a year ago because of the suspension of construction work. Previous to that, however—about two years ago—the pair separated.

Divorced from First Husband.

The Metcalf alliance was the woman's second matrimonial experience. She was divorced six or seven years ago from Jeff Morris of Denver, to whom she was married seventeen years ago. Her maiden name was Beatrice Burns, and she was the daughter of Forrest Burns of Covington, Ky. In her youth she lived in Terre Haute, and it was during her residence there that she is supposed to have met Lawyer Hamill, at first on legal business, and later on friendly terms.

The "friendly" part of this report was denied by Mr. Hamill, who gave out an explanation saying she was demented. He said the only relations that ever existed between them were of a business character. He denied that he was the cause of her separation from her second husband.

It is stated that Mrs. Metcalf has been under the care of Dr. Harold N. Moyer for mental trouble. It is said that she is stage struck, among other things, and that one of her sisters is insane.

Despondent and Distrait.

Mrs. Metcalf has been living at the rooming house of Mrs. Helen Tullidge, 2512 Indiana avenue. She spent the holidays with her sister, Mrs. S. F. Miller, who lives at 2545 North Delaware street, in Indianapolis, returning to Chicago on Saturday. She seemed to be particularly despondent on her return and observed to Mrs. Tullidge:

"I think I'll go back to Indianapolis. Perhaps it will quiet my nerves."

She gave considerable evidence of being mentally disturbed. She would put on her hat and cloak with the avowed intention of going downtown, and a few minutes later would return to her room. She went to Indianapolis on Sunday last, but returned the next day. On Monday night she left the rooming house, and that was the last time Mrs. Tullidge saw her.

When visiting her sister Mrs. Metcalf is said to have worried constantly, acted strangely, and refused much of the time either to eat or sleep. Mrs. Miller did not know the cause of her sister's nervousness, but attributed it to family troubles.

Indianapolis friends say that during the last year Mrs. Metcalf has suffered from a nervous strain and that for more than a month early last fall she was an inmate at a Chicago sanitarium, but soon became impatient at her slow recovery and left. She had not mentioned to her sister or others in Indianapolis that Hamill was on her mind.

Swore to Kill in Court.

Mrs. Metcalf had been threatening Mr. Hamill for some time. To an attorney she had said that the lawyer formerly would meet her at the Hotel Denison in Indianapolis and supported her. After a time, she said, the friendship of Mr. Hamill waned. "All this he denies.

At all events the woman had a dramatic plot under way which failed of realization in its full value. She had, it appears, sworn to kill Mr. Hamill on the day he was to make his great speech in defense of Walsh. She had told him she would kill him on that day. The only other person who knew of this threat was Archibald Van Winkle, attaché of the Walsh lawyers.

Hamill made his plea for Walsh on Monday. It was pronounced an eloquent effort. And all the time the attorney was arguing and conjuring with the emotions of the jury he was waiting and watching for the woman who was coming to kill him.

But Mrs. Metcalf did not appear. She made a mistake as to the day Hamill was to speak and did not go to the courtroom until Tuesday. So the dramatic sensation, in a measure, fell flat, and the shooting was a day late. The setting was not the courtroom, but the corridor, and the bullets went wild.

Actors' Friend as Lawyer.

Mrs. Metcalf, after spending Tuesday night and yesterday morning in the United States marshal's office, was taken to the jail, and at 9 p. m. Adolph Marks, legal friend of stage folk, appeared there and had an interview with her. He had been summoned by Lillian Gray, an actress formerly in Anna Held's company. She is an acquaintance of Mrs. Metcalf. Attorney Marks talked with the prisoner for an hour and a half and was accepted as her lawyer.

"I was unable to elicit much information from Mrs. Metcalf tonight," said Marks on leaving. "She is not feeling well—mentally disarranged, I would say. But she isn't insane—a long way from it. No five men and a doctor would ever pronounce her insane, and I shall defend her from this rumored attempt to have her taken to the Detention hospital tomorrow.

Has a Boy Seven Years Old.

"I gathered from Mrs. Metcalf that she has been separated from her husband about two years, and that she was divorced six years ago in Denver from her first husband, Jeff Morris. She has a 7 year old boy by her first husband. Her maiden name was Beatrice Burns, and she lived for a time in Terre Haute with her mother, who died four

DUNNE SIX ARE RESURRECTED

Return to School Board, but Miss Former Order of Things.

OLD "TALKFEST" NO MORE.

Big Audience of Teachers Gets Only a Near-Thrill.

The six "resuscitated" members of the "Dunne" board reversed the natural order of things last evening in resuming positions on the present board of education. Having gone out like lions, they came in like lambs—much to the disgust of an audience of 250 schoolma'ams, who were expecting a thriller.

The meeting of the school board was not without its points of interest—or even of something that came near to sensation. Once a battle of the clans was averted narrowly when Trustee Sonsteby insisted that a committee report be deferred until he had time to consider it. Trustee Urion wanted to know "why," and somebody asked for a roll call. It wasn't taken.

Again the ghost of the Post report stalked when resuscitated Trustee Wiley W. Mills asked for a reconsideration of every measure having to do with the promotion of teachers. This was calmly granted, Trustee Mills looking on in astonishment, and forty-five minutes after the meeting had been called to order President Schneider declared an adjournment.

It was hopeless. An atmosphere of businesslike dispatch had settled down over the one time battlefield, and it proved too thick to be dispelled.

Starts Like Church Sociable.

The occasion, at the start, looked more like a church sociable than anything else. Trustee Louis F. Post was the first of the protagonists to arrive. He slipped into his old seat at 7:49 and before any one in the crowded visitors' section knew he was there was engaged in reading a report of the board's last meeting.

Then he condescended to notice what was on his desk. It was an enormous bunch of American beauty roses. A gratified smile started over his features as he examined the card attached to them. Fifteen names, headed by those of Attorneys Jacob Le Boaky and Western Starr, appeared on it, and on the back was inscribed:

To the Reinstated Trustees.
The Resurrection is Life.
From Your Friends.

The smile faded perceptibly and the flowers were laid over on the next desk. As each of the "resurrected" came in he or she smiled, read the card, and passed the bouquet on. Dr. Cornelia De Bey, the last arrival, finally took possession. Her smile staid.

Long before Mr. Post arrived the board room, outside the rail, was packed, the visitors standing along the wall and jamming the doorway. Supt. Cooley was the next to arrive. He touched Mr. Post on the shoulder, shook hands with him, and chatted for several minutes, the "gallery" looking on in edified wonder.

Guerin Beams and Shakes Hands.

The rest came in rapidly. Trustee Guerin beamed and shook hands all round. Mrs. Raymond Robins, her hat and coat laid aside, accompanied her husband and took a seat inside the rail, in the exact center of things.

The trustees took their seats and there was an expectant pause. Eight o'clock passed—five minutes past—six. The air grew tense. Then there was a ripple of applause near the door, and Dr. De Bey, splendidly self-possessed, made her way through the crowd and descended upon the roses.

"The meeting will come to order," said President Schneider.

Before calling the roll Secretary Larson read a formal communication from School Attorney Frank Hamlin, notifying the president of the board of the decision of the Supreme court.

A round of applause, started by Miss Catherine Goggin and her trusty band of Teachers' Federationists, greeted this.

President Schneider rapped for order.

All Applause Prohibited.

"I beg to say," he announced, "that all applause will be prohibited. If it recurs the room will be cleared."

All the trustees responded to the roll call except Mr. Greifenhagen, who was unable to be present. The game being called, Trustee Robins was the first at bat. He moved that the opinion of the Supreme court be incorporated in the records of the board.

"So ordered," said President Schneider.

The reorganization of the committees of the board, made necessary by the changes in its membership, was announced as follows:

School management—Robinson, Dawes, Cameron, Addams, Mrs. Blaine, White, O'Ryan, Spiegel, Post, Sonsteby.

Buildings and grounds—Gartz, Greifenhagen, Urion, Gunderson, Morron, Guerin, Mills, Robins, De Bey, and Harding.

Finance—Spiegel, Robinson, Gartz, Dawes.

In the apportionment of the district committees, Mr. Mills was assigned to districts six and eight, Mr. Post to one and two, Dr. De Bey and Mr. Robins to twelve and thirteen, Mr. Sonsteby to fourteen and nine, and Mr. Harding to three and four.

Supt. Cooley sent the board a communication asking for a leave of absence to extend, if necessary, through February. The superintendent has been in bad health for three months or more. The vacation was granted by a unanimous vote.

Nearly Starts a Dispute.

The measure that nearly upset things had to do with a petition of a school fireman for an increase in salary. Trustee Sonsteby asked that it be deferred two weeks in order that he might "look into the matter."

"The matter has been fully looked into by the committee," said Trustee Urion. "I move a suspension of the rules and that the report be put through."

"Roll call!" said two or three trustees at once.

It looked like a fight. Then Trustee Robinson stepped into the breach.

"I have no doubt," he said, "of the committee's thoroughness. But possibly another thing has not been brought to Mr. Urion's attention. There is a matter of courtesy. A new member of the board has asked for a favor, and——"

"I will withdraw my motion," Mr. Urion put in, turning to Mr. Sonsteby with a bow. "I am sorry to have appeared discourteous."

Mr. Sonsteby's bow was lower than Mr. Urion's.

"I didn't intend to doubt the work of the committee," he said. "In view of my close affiliation with organized labor, I simply wanted to look into the matter."

Important Measures Deferred.

Consideration of the two most important measures before the board was deferred. Trustees Spiegel and Urion raised a question as to the regularity of the election of Prof. Louis C. Monin as school examiner. The "anti-fraternity" resolution passed last week by the school management committee was deferred at the request of Trustee White.

DRINKS POISON BY MISTAKE; YOUNG GIRL DIES IN AGONY.

Miss Florence Smith, 362 Dearborn Avenue, Swallows Carbolic Acid, Thinking It a Dose of Medicine.

Mistaking a bottle of carbolic acid for a medicine, Miss Florence Smith, 362 Dearborn avenue, swallowed a large amount of the poison at 10:30 o'clock last night and died three hours later. The physicians who were called were unable to save her.

Miss Smith was alone with her mother, Mrs. J. Smith, a widow, in their bedroom, when she went to the medicine cabinet. She raised a bottle and asked her mother if it was castor oil. Mrs. Smith told her that it was.

"It's carbolic acid," cried the girl a minute later, as she rushed towards her mother.

Dr. A. Cameron, 239 North State street, was summoned at once. Dr. F. H. Lewis, 424 North State street, also was called. Their efforts to relieve Miss Smith failed, and they attended the mother, who was in a fainting condition.

SHOT DOWN AFTER A HOLDUP

Youth Is Killed by Detective Kern, Who Finds Him Robbing

REVOLVER DUEL IN STREET.

William Fenkerhauser Is Dead in Mozart Street Region.

In a pistol duel William Fenkerhauser, 17 Mozart street, was killed this morning by Detective Michael Kern of the West Chicago avenue police station. Fenkerhauser was attempting to rob two men, Peter Holland, 501 Dickens avenue, and Ole Amund, 1060 Fairfield avenue, when he was seen by the policeman. Fenkerhauser was 21 years old.

Kern was on his way home at 12:45 o'clock, when at West Chicago avenue and Mozart he noticed the three men standing together. An instant later he saw Fenkerhauser's revolver pressed against Holland's body.

Drawing his own pistol from his pocket, Kern rushed in the direction of the scene. At the time he started to run the young highwayman stopped his search of the two victims of the holdup, and, whirling around, fired at the detective, who was coming towards him.

Disobeys Order to Stop.

Kern raised his arm to fire.

"Stop!" commanded the policeman as Fenkerhauser fired the second time. Then Kern shot directly at the robber. Fenkerhauser continued to advance towards the policeman.

Again Kern fired—now almost within reaching distance of the young fellow. The bullet caught him in the head and entered his brain. He fell to the sidewalk, and died before a physician could reach his side.

Holland and Amund, who had disappeared when Fenkerhauser released them, returned with reinforcements. They had notified the police and the patrol wagon was soon at the corner. The robber's body was taken to Thompson's undertaking rooms, 512 California avenue. It was discovered there that both bullets fired by Kern had taken effect.

Fenkerhauser had run forty feet with a ball in his lungs. The holdup and the killing occurred almost in front of his own home.

Not His First Crime.

According to the police, Fenkerhauser had often been in trouble. He was arrested last year a number of times.

"We two were walking along talking together when all at once the robber was in front of us," said Mr. Holland. "We stopped as he pointed a revolver at my head.

"'Throw up your mits and do it quick,' said the fellow and we did. "He pushed the pistol right against my cheek. I was so scared that I didn't have any idea of what to do.

"It seemed as if we had been standing there for hours when all at once the fellow turned and started away from us. I did not think at first that it was a policeman, for he was not in uniform. In a second there was a shot and then the man ran. Soon afterward he was dead."

WINTRY WEATHER FOR A DAY.

Decided Fall in Temperature Is Announced, but Is Not Expected to Last Long.

Limited, it is announced to a one day engagement, genuine winter weather is scheduled for Chicago this morning, one of its first appearances of the season.

Advance agents of the cold snap showed up about midnight, when the air became noticeably crisper and snow flakes, not the moist, sticky kind that have made the city uncomfortable, but the dry, bracing variety, began to fall. At 2 o'clock this morning the mercury had declined to 20 degrees above zero, and was sinking right along. A temperature of 10 degrees was predicted by the weather bureau for today.

The touch of weather like the bureau used to make is not promised to last long.

DIRECT PRIMARY ROCKED TO SLEEP.

Conference Committee Unable to Report Favorably on the Measure After Long Trial.

TRAGEDY LURKS IN AIR.

Once, but Only Once, Lawmakers Nearly Approved House Bill; Senate Plans a Surprise.

BY C. S. R.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—That much abused legislative measure, the Oglesby direct primary bill, was struck down again today, once by the senate and once by the house. It again passes in its checks.

By a peculiar accident it received the votes of eleven out of thirteen legislators serving in the conference, and yet failed to receive a majority on both committees. When five senators were willing to support it, four representatives were not, and when seven representatives voted for it five senators did not. Now it has no friends.

If by any chance accident the five senators who were willing to vote for it when the four representatives were not and the seven representatives who were willing to vote for it when the five senators were not, had become mixed in their dates, it would be alive and out of committee, making trouble for the legislature again.

Senate's Work Is Artistic.

Such accidents do not happen in careful households and the esteemed senate is a careful household. Senator Orville F. Berry and his flock do not believe in accidents unless they happen to the other fellow.

An observer looking over the ground covered by the legislators today can see where they have been, but he could not possibly tell where they have gone. It requires some art to leave tracks of this kind, and the esteemed senate is an artistic body.

The sight of the conference committees making tracks without showing where they were going has been regarded by the other members of the legislature as interesting, but not profitable.

Hence a large outcry from those who are being forced to consider themselves as merely innocent bystanders. Numbers of the younger republican members, joined by two or three of the old timers and by a few democrats, have formed a sort of band of hope, with the intention of turning a trick on the organization if the latter proves its inability to do business with the situation.

Optimists In for Surprise.

This band of hope held a caucus tonight and decided to support the Pattison direct primary bill if the conference committee could not agree on some plan of action by tomorrow morning.

This bill, introduced several months ago by Representative Douglas Pattison, minority leader, is on third reading in the house and has been there every since the Oglesby bill was passed by the lower branch.

It is planned by representative members of the independent organization to throw their support to this democratic measure if it can be called up on its passage in the morning, providing, further, that the conference committees get nowhere in their deliberations.

The esteemed senate, which not only is a careful and artistic household, but also a wise one, has no intention of being hit by another primary bill thrown over from the house as was the Oglesby bill, and it also has a few plans.

One of Senate's Plans.

One is to have the Oglesby bill, as it was contained in the conference committee report, in which shape it is known to be freely hopeless, so far as the lower branch is concerned, introduced in the senate as a new bill and then pass it over to the house with all the compliments of the season.

Real hope that primary legislation can be enacted is found in the possibility that both houses will agree on a direct primary law without the emergency clause, in which shape only a majority of the votes is required, or that a delegate convention bill without the emergency clause can be agreed on.

Even the primary advocates are about convinced that it is useless to look for any emergency legislation, and they will be content if they can get a law effective July 1, with the primaries in August, as they were held under the law of 1906.

Some Things They Did.

Any person who attempts to follow the progress of the senate and house conference committees during the day is warned in advance that he will get lost and be unable to find his way out again, but with this warning as a preliminary here is a brief statement showing the line of march.

When the committees met in the first session of the day Representative Shanahan, one of the outspoken opponents of direct primaries, moved that the conference adopt the old state law as amended to meet the Supreme court's objections.

This was voted down by a vote of 1 to 3 in the senate committee and 3 to 4 in the house committee.

Representative Kittleman, another opponent of direct primaries, offered his straight delegate bill. It was rejected by a vote of six negatives in the senate committee and of 4 to 3 in the house committee.

Oglesby Bill Is Buried.

The delegate plan having been rudely jolted for the time being, an effort was made to do business with the direct primary idea. The original Oglesby bill, as it was passed by the house, was offered and rejected by the following vote:

SENATE.

Yes—Berry, Hamilton, Helm, Lundberg, and Acton.

Nay—Cruickshank.

HOUSE.

Yes—Chiperfield, Brown, Daugherty.

Nay—Shanahan, Pogue, Behrens, Kittleman.

A majority vote in both committees being required, it failed because of the house opposition to a house measure.

Then Berry offered the Oglesby bill as amended by the senate, with the emergency clause taken out. All the senators voted for it, but the house refused to change its line-up. Berry offered the Oglesby bill as contained in the conference committee report, and all the senators voted for it, but Mr. Chiperfield was the only house member who would stand for it.

Brown threw the original Oglesby bill, as passed by the house, but minus its emergency clause, into the hopper, and Berry, Helm, Lundberg, and Acton voted for it, and Hamilton and Cruickshank against it in the senate committee, with the same old house lineup against it.

At this point the house members decided they would withdraw and hold close communion on the subject. They did so, and after consideration agreed to adopt the unit rule, binding the minority to vote with the majority.

With this understanding they took up the original Oglesby bill and by a vote of 5 to 3 decided to stand for it just as it was passed by the house.

It may be that the senators were mind readers, or that some warning of impending calamity was slipped to them. Anyway, when the house committee returned in a frame of mind willing to vote for the proposition which it had been turning down previously and what the senate had been offering, the esteemed senate reversed itself completely.

Accident Almost Happens.

On a vote to recommend the Oglesby bill as it passed the house all the representatives lined up affirmatively, Shanahan, Pogue, Behrens, and Kittleman switching from their former votes, but the senators kept the balance perfectly by switching likewise, but to the other side.

They stood:

Yea—Lundberg.

Nay—Berry, Helm, Hamilton, Acton, Cruickshank.

On the first vote taken early on the same proposition they had stood:

Yea—Berry, Hamilton, Helm, Lundberg, Acton.

Nay—Cruikshank.

It was almost an accident.

More Schemes on Foot.

This exhausted even their own patience, and they departed from the committee room to say unkind things about each other and to hold informal conferences during the night trying to agree on some plan which might be taken into conference in the morning with some hope of obtaining results.

"I don't know what we can do," said one member of the house committee. "Some of these fellows run about saying one thing in public and another in private. If they would talk and act the same way for half a day consistently we might get somewhere."

DEMOCRATS OF COOK COUNTY DODGE BRYAN'S 'MORAL WAVE'

Construe Banquet Remark as Indorsement of Prohibition Movement, Horrifying to "Harmonized."

Did William Jennings Bryan mean the prohibition wave when at the Jackson day banquet he spoke of "the great moral wave now sweeping over the country" and urged the democratic party to get on its crest? That is the question Chicago democrats who take the time or trouble to concern themselves about national affairs at all are now debating.

It should be explained that the question has not been asked by Mr. Bryan's friends. In fact, they never ask any questions about what their leader may do or say. Any action or utterance of his is good enough for them, and he is the law and the gospel until he may change his mind. Then the new doctrine, as promulgated at Lincoln, Neb., of course takes its proper place.

But there are people in Chicago, claiming to be democrats, who are not entirely satisfied with the present prospect of Mr. Bryan's nomination for the presidency. They never did like Mr. Bryan and had hoped that when he was beaten for election the second time that ended him, but since found out their mistake.

So now they are busy strewing bricks in his path to the third nomination. The cry that he is identifying himself with the prohibition movement is intended largely for Chicago consumption, but it is having an effect in neighboring communities. Antiprohibition has been a cardinal plank in democratic platforms in Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, and Iowa, as well as Illinois, ever since Maine passed the first prohibition law. However much dispute there may have been about other matters, this one always has stood unchallenged.

Here Is Their Proof.

The argument these critics of Bryan make for their position is at least plausible. It was summed up in the following words by one of them yesterday:

"Mr. Bryan at the recent Jefferson club banquet undoubtedly spoke of this present wave of reform. He said it was a thing the democratic party wanted to get in on.

"Now, as far as anybody knows, the only political wave now sweeping over the country is the prohibition wave. All recent elections have shown no other signs of anything of that sort. The only idea which has seemed to make any headway at all in all sections of the country is the prohibition one. It certainly has left its mark all along the line, and even Illinois has not been exempt. When a city the size of Jacksonville goes prohibition it is pretty fair evidence there is a wave of some sort around in the neighborhood. And Jacksonville, by the way, is the home of Millard Fillmore Dunlap and Judge Owen Thompson, who claim to be Bryan's special spokesmen in Illinois.

Fear Influences Committee.

"It always has been charged Bryan himself leaned toward the prohibition idea. In fact, when the question came before the Cook county democratic committee the other day whether it should indorse the candidacy of Bryan no action was taken because the objection was raised that Bryan was a prohibitionist and the committee could not afford to take any chances of his asking for a prohibition plank in the party platform."

BRYAN IN A MINOR PART AT DEMOCRATIC DINNER.

Shares the Honors with Other Guests at Dollar Feast, Where Consideration Is Shown for Populists.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—In point of attendance tonight the democratic dollar dinner was the most successful held here since W. J. Bryan became a factor in Nebraska politics, and it brought together more well known men of the party than are usually assembled at a similar gathering in the west.

Mr. Bryan, though the center attraction, was satisfied to share the honors with such men as Gov. Haskell of Oklahoma, Gov. Broward of Florida, former Senator Patterson of Colorado, and Jerry Sullivan of Des Moines, Ia. Mr. Bryan, in fact, emphasized the statement that he was playing a minor part at the democratic feast by making a speech that was brief and local in its application and without special significance politically.

He was the last speaker on the program and the crowd was tired before he began. All of the speakers were superlatively laudatory in their references to Mr. Bryan, designating him as the coming presidential nominee of the democrats, and in instances as the coming president. Gov. Broward of Florida was plain spoken and caught the crowd. He wanted to be understood as a Bryan man, but he was not predicting a walkaway. He said if the republicans nominated a man like Taft, La Follette, or Cummins of Iowa he did not believe the democrats had more than an even chance.

There was a good deal of political machine mixing before the dinner, in which democrats and populists took equal parts, leaving the impression that, while it was primarily a democratic function, the olive branch had been extended to their late allies and the help of the other would be appreciated in the coming fight. The populists, indeed, had places of honor at the banquet board. It was remarked that it was a tentative bid for fusion in which both sides seemed to be willing.

$50,000,000 NAVY BILL IS IN.

Representative Hobson Introduces Measure Carrying Large Sum Annually for New Battleships.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Representative Hobson today introduced a bill "to provide a navy adequate for national defense." It appropriates $50,000,000 annually for constructing or purchasing new battleships, the number and features of the vessels to be determined by the president under expert advice.

TWO CITIES AS ONE FOR CANAL TO SEA

St. Louis and Chicago Business Men at Luncheon Talk of Deep Waterway.

MUST BEAT OUT CANADA.

Ex-Gov. Francis and Congressman Lorimer Urge Transportation Needs.

St. Louis and Chicago united yesterday in booming the deep waterway to the gulf. Representative business men of both cities were at a luncheon given by the Chicago Association of Commerce, and the sentiment developed was that the plan was of benefit not to one city or one section but to all. That the waterway could be built was demonstrated, that it should be was insisted on, and a movement was started to enlist in its behalf all interests and localities affected.

The speeches to which most attention was paid were made by David R. Francis of St. Louis and Congressman William Lorimer of Chicago. One spoke of the commercial necessity for the work, the other of the program to be followed in getting it done.

Mr. Francis, who as mayor of St. Louis, afterwards governor of Missouri, after that secretary of the interior in President Cleveland's cabinet, and only recently president of the St. Louis world's fair, generally is credited as speaking for the public sentiment in his city and state. He said the purpose of the visit to Chicago was to create a public sentiment for the waterway that congress could not resist.

Canada a Formidable Rival.

"If we do not improve our waterways," he said, "the sceptership of transportation will pass from the United States to Canada. I have heard that there is in Chicago some opposition to the canal because it will benefit St. Louis and the cities along the canal more than it will Chicago. This is a narrow view. It will benefit all along the route. The question before us now is what steps should we take to induce congress to make prompt and ample appropriation for the construction of the canal from the lake to the Mississippi river and the improvement of that river from the canal to the gulf.

"Canada, which is improving its water transportation every year by liberal appropriations, will take the supremacy in cheap transportation, and Montreal will be the great Atlantic seaport, and not New York, if we do not do likewise.

"I would like to see ocean steamships loaded at Chicago and go, without the removal of their cargoes, to Panama and Yokohama.

"The estimated cost of the canal is $31,000,000. What does $31,000,000 amount to when compared with the annual revenue of the United States? What does $31,000,000 amount to when compared with the benefits that will result?"

Lorimer Outlines Plans.

Other speeches in the same line were made by W. K. Kavanaugh and W. F. Saunders of the Deep Waterway association of St. Louis; Edward Devoy, president of the St. Louis Merchants' exchange; and James E. Smith and William J. Kinsella, business men of that city. David R. Forgan, E. S. Conway, and Controller Walter L. Wilson spoke for Chicago. Then Chairman Homer A. Stillwell introduced Congressman Lorimer.

The congressman discussed more especially the part Illinois was expected to take in the work, and said that so far as he himself was concerned he expected to spend more time in the state this winter explaining the situation to the voters and organizing them for effective work than he would spend in Washington. It would have to be important legislation which took him to the national capital.

Mr. Lorimer had with him a set of maps showing what would have to be done to build the necessary link between Chicago and the head of navigation in the Illinois river at Utica. According to present plans this work will have to be done by the state, and the legislature has submitted to the people a proposition to issue $20,000,000 of bonds to do it with.

No Holdup by Economy Company.

The idea has gone out, the congressman said, that if the state loses its suit against the Economy Light and Power company of Joliet it will take most of the $20,000,000 to buy up the rights claimed by the company at Dresden Heights, and this is being used as an argument against voting the bonds. This idea the congressman combated vigorously.

He asserted that even if the state lost its lawsuit it could build its own deep waterway from Lockport to Utica without using the Desplaines river or paying any attention to the Economy company at all, and it would not cost over $1,500,000 more than contemplated in the present plans. The project had been declared perfectly feasible by competent engineers.

The congressman enlarged on the potential water power that could be developed by the state, and said it would be a good investment for Illinois to invest the $20,000,000 if only to secure the power it could sell, letting all considerations of a deep waterway go. On this point he said:

"After you have accomplished this work, let us see what we have got. We have in the neighborhood of 140,000 horse power that is worth to the state of Illinois $3,000,000 a year. We are not asking an increase of the tax. We are not asking that the people of the state shall pay this money as we in Chicago have paid it out of our pockets to build the drainage canal. We are asking for the state credit for $20,000,000 for twenty years, and in four years it will be yielding to the state of Illinois $3,000,000 a year, which means that before the bonds are due we will have paid the carrying charges, paid off the bonds, and have in the treasury of the state more than $20,000,000, or more than the people of the state authorized; and for all time to come an income to our state of $3,000,000 a year."

Committee Is Appointed.

After the speeches a committee composed of E. S. Conway, David R. Forgan, and A. C. Bartlett was named to take the project up further with the Association of Commerce.

THREE VIEWS OF CANAL DEAL

House at Springfield Gets Report on Economy Lease.

M'EWEN'S BOOM BOBS UP.

One of Jurist's Adherents Censures Governor on Floor.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—It has cost the house of representatives $3,500 to find out whether the canal commissioners made a good bargain when they sold the canal land and rights to the Economy Light and Power company at Dresden Heights for $3,200.

The cost of ascertaining has been $300 more than the amount investigated, but the state gets its money's worth out of the investigation if it didn't out of the Dresden Heights sale. It gets three reports from five investigators.

They were given to the house this afternoon and consideration was postponed until tomorrow morning. One is signed by Representatives Flannigan, Church, and Gillespie, republican members; one by Representative Campbell Hearn, democrat; and the third by Dennis J. Egan, democrat.

The republican report, reviewing the evidence extensively, finds that Commissioners William Sackett and Clarence E. Snively were unfortunate enough not to have foreseen that the Desplaines river would be invaluable to the state, and that, because of this misfortune, but not because of any fault, they sold the privileges and property to Charles A. Monroe for a total of $3,200.

Misfortune Not an Offense.

Representatives Church, Flannigan, and Gillespie did not believe that the misfortune constituted an offense, and so reported. Representative Hearn repudiated this report with scorn and handed in his minority document with an explanation.

"This report," he said, "was drawn by the attorney for the committee after every point in it had been adopted by a vote of the committee meeting at East St. Louis. At that time only one member refused to sign it, and he was the only one who thought it was too strong. I don't know what has caused the change of opinion, but I am the only member who has signed it."

This report held Commissioners Sackett and Snively guilty of much more than a misfortune. It held that they had been lax in their duties and had been woefully unwise in disposing of state property for the small price received in the transaction with the Economy people.

Egan Wants Board Ousted.

The censure contained in Mr. Hearn's report, strong as it was, did not satisfy Representative Egan, and in his report he demanded that Mr. Sackett and Mr. Snively be "canned" forthwith.

Of their actions he said:

"The term 'carelessness' does not cover the matter, for it was not carelessness. It was a bold attempt on the part of the canal commissioners to give to private interests all the rights of the state in perpetuity, if it were possible to do so.

"A man appointed to a position of public trust should be held to as high a degree of responsibility to the people as a man appointed to a position of trust in a banking or mercantile corporation is held in his responsibility to the stockholders. Your committee, therefore, finds that in the interests of the state, the said canal commissioners should be removed from office."

McEwen Man Censures Deneen.

Representative Keeney, one of Judge Willard M. McEwen's campaign managers and chairman of the house finance committee, reported at the evening session the senate bill providing for the deposit of state money and return of interest to the state.

In doing so he made a short speech attacking Gov. Deneen, who has been urging the bill.

"Gov. Deneen has been taking all the credit for the action of State Treasurer Smulski in returning interest to the state voluntarily," he said. "Mr. Deneen seeks to have returned all the fees and interest except those which he himself took.

"My mind can run back to the time when Mr. Deneen took approximately $300,000 for himself, but at present he is of the opinion that all such money belongs to the state, and he is cavorting about the country explaining that he has discovered this great principle.

Says Governor Condemns Himself.

"He praises Mr. Smulski as an honest man, and I agree with him there. But every time he utters a word in praise of the state treasurer he utters one in condemnation of himself."

With these few remarks Mr. Keeney asked that the bill be sent to second reading. There were objections, but the rules were suspended and the bill advanced.

The house passed the senate bill for the protection of shellfish in Illinois streams, making provision that clam fishers coming from other states shall pay a license fee of $80 a year.

BURGLAR IN HOTEL ROOM CAPTURED BY OCCUPANT.

Dr. H. D. Patte Arrests Man in "Palace," North Clark and Indiana Streets—Holdup Friend of Victim's Family.

Dr. H. D. Patte yesterday afternoon caught an alleged burglar in his room at the Palace hotel, North Clark and Indiana streets. The man made a dash for the window which led to the fire escape, but Dr. Patte seized him and dragged him back. The alleged thief was taken to the Chicago avenue police station. He gave his name as Bert Williams and said he was 18 years old.

When three robbers early in the morning pointed revolvers at John Powers at Institute place and Orleans street he recognized one of them as a friend of his family. Despite the recognition the robber searched his pockets and took his watch and money.

"I need the money and cannot help it that you are a friend," the robber is said to have remarked.

Though Powers did not want to prosecute, he gave information on which the police arrested Thomas Coyne, 20 years old, 323 North Franklin street.

Powers lives at 268 North Franklin street.

CALLS WIFE'S CHARGE FALSE.

Charles Dannenbaum Declares Miss Hartmann, a Friend of His Family, Attacked from Malice.

Charles J. Dannenbaum, now at the Annex, made reply last night to the allegations made by his wife in her $50,000 suit against Miss Hartmann, 4533 Michigan avenue. Mrs. Dannenbaum charges Miss Hartmann with alienating Mr. Dannenbaum's affections. The husband has sued for a divorce. He says:

"Mrs. Dannenbaum has brought this suit against Miss Hartmann out of malice and in an attempt to make me drop my suit for a divorce. If she had any grounds for legal action against Miss Hartmann, why does she not enter a cross bill?

"Miss Hartmann is a friend of my sister, Miss Ray Dannenbaum, and her family and my own have always been friendly. My people live in San Francisco, and when my mother and sister visited Chicago a year ago they were guests of the Hartmanns."

Mr. Dannenbaum added that his mother and sister would come to Chicago within a week to help him in his suit and, if necessary, to appear for Miss Hartmann.

MAYOR BUSSE AT HOT SPRINGS.

Chicago Men Try Vapor Baths on First Day of Their Stay at the Arkansas Resort.

Hot Springs, Ark., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Mayor Busse of Chicago had his preliminary workout in the Hot Springs baths today. With a party composed of Arthur Hughes, D. Blake Baldwin, Frank L. Smith, C. P. Gardner, E. O. Phillips, Carl Muller, J. W. Loeb, James Evans, and F. L. Loftus, the mayor came in early this morning and at once went to the Arlington hotel.

DRAINAGE BOARD FOE OF MONOPOLY.

President McCormick in Message at Annual Meeting Attacks Economy Deal.

REVIEWS WORK OF YEAR.

Points Out That District Is Temporary and Ought to Quit Before Decay.

Grafters, blackmailers, and the tribe of barnacles who are constantly plotting to enrich themselves at the expense of the taxpaying community were attacked yesterday in a message submitted by President Robert R. McCormick at the annual meeting of the drainage board.

He poured volley after volley into the promoters of the deal whereby the sanitary district was to be plundered of the water power developed along the drainage canal with the expenditure of Chicago money. He referred to the discovery of the lease between the Economy Light and Power company and the Illinois and Michigan canal commissioners as the "uncovering of startling and atrocious" deals through which the state and the sanitary district of Chicago was to be deprived of the immense water power created and owned by them and from which a coterie of speculators were to derive vast unearned profits.

The message is a comprehensive review of the year's work in the district. It tells of the work initiated or finished in 1907 and gives a roseate view of the future.

Attacks Commonwealth Monopoly.

After referring to the lease whereby the rights for which the drainage board had offered the canal commission $75,000 were bartered away to private individuals for $2,200, the defeat of the "navigability" bills in the legislature, and the measures for removal, under the governor's order, of the private dams in the Desplaines river, the message proceeds:

"Just at the time this legislation was presented the Economy Light and Power company reorganized to take in all the holdings of individual holders, and at the same time the Economy Light and Power company came under the control of the Chicago Commonwealth-Edison company, thus completing the monopoly of electric power in northeastern Illinois, a monopoly based upon special privileges and one which could only be challenged by the water power developed by the sanitary district.

"Therefore a double incentive arose for the defeat of these bills, first, because it was feared that the passage of these bills would take the privilege of developing water power away from this company; second, the passage of the sanitary district bill would put a competitor in the field which might regulate the monopolistic rate now charged. An active lobby, in which there is positive evidence were representatives of the Economy Light and Power company, opposed these bills.

Antagonism in Legislature.

"A great deal of antagonism was raised in the legislature because of the methods used by the opponents of the bills, which antagonism was expressed by the passage of the Allen-Lantz bill ordering the governor to remove all obstructions from the Desplaines and Illinois rivers and to allow no more to be put in, and by the appointment by the house of a committee to investigate the affairs of the Illinois and Michigan canal.

"It is to be hoped that the information which the sanitary district has been able to present to this committee will lead to its recommending constructive legislation, which will accomplish as much as would the passage of the bills which your board was instrumental in preparing."

Question of Calumet Branch.

With reference to the refusal of the United States engineering department to allow the board to build the Calumet branch of the drainage canal, the report says:

"The question is now about to be submitted to the United States courts for decision. The question is an exceedingly complicated one, involving the most expert knowledge on sanitary and hydraulic matters and of constitutional law. Nor has the situation been helped by a few real estate speculators along the Chicago and Calumet rivers who have walked into the controversy, each desirous that the work be done, not in a way to benefit the general taxpayers, but in a way to create benefit for his private purse. The conduct of these men has been intemperate and immoral in the extreme, and can bring no good to any one."

Cheapening of Electric Power.

The advantages to municipalities from the "cheapening of electric power" in the sanitary district are set forth in the following passage:

"In the last year the city of Chicago, town of Cicero, and the west park board have contracted with the sanitary district for lighting at the rate of $15 a horse power, a rate highly advantageous to those bodies and one under which the sanitary district can live.

"The marketing of this power will have the further advantage of bringing to your body in time an accurate knowledge of the electric power industry, which knowledge when furnished to the city council of Chicago and other municipalities within the district will be of valuable assistance to them in regulating the business of the public service corporations.

"In this connection it may be advisable to urge the city council to take no binding action fixing the rates of the Edison and Commonwealth companies until it may be guided by your experience.

Sanitary Board Only Temporary.

"It must be constantly borne in mind that the sanitary district of Chicago is not a permanent institution. It was organized to do a specific work, and when that specific work is ended it should not be continued, to fall into disrepute and disuse, as other similar bodies have done. Upon you devolves the duty of arranging its affairs so that it may most easily be taken over by some other body.

"Various plans of ending the district have been suggested. . . . The proper solution seems to be this:

"Let the present form of organization complete the original drainage scheme, which includes the draining of the Evanston and Calumet additions, the widening of the Chicago river and the main channel, and the extending of the main channel to its proper terminus at Lake Joliet. From this point on, the state and federal governments should take charge and carry the deep waterway through to the gulf of Mexico. When all constructions have been completed, there will remain merely the administration of the property and the payment of outstanding bonds. These can be attended to by executive officers to be appointed in some way which the future will determine."

A clear revenue of $11,295, collected as rent for property located on the lands of the sanitary district, was reported by the clerk during the course of the meeting.

ARMY PAY INCREASE PLANNED.

Senate Gets Bill Carrying Higher Rates of Compensation for Commissioned Officers.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Senator Warren, chairman of the committee on military affairs, today introduced a bill increasing the pay of army officers as follows: Lieutenant general, 10 per cent; major generals and brigadier generals, 15 per cent; colonels, lieutenant colonels, and majors, 20 per cent; captains, and first and second lieutenants, and cadets, 25 per cent.

West Side Commercial League Meets.

Seventy business men attended a banquet of the West Side Commercial league, held at 400 Milwaukee avenue, last evening. Addresses were made by Ald. Dever and Sitts of the Seventeenth ward, Ald. Beilfuss of the Fifteenth, Otto Schulz, and H. N. Bruun. The chief object was to stir sentiment in favor of a bridge at Carpenter street. Ald. Beilfuss in his speech also urged boulevarding parts of Augusta street and North Oakley avenue.

would be natural for the New York delegation, which is the largest cohesive unit in each convention, to present Cortelyou as a dark horse or compromise candidate, and he might win on that basis.

"Frame Up" to Help Cannon.

There are those who say that the career of the secretary of the treasury is in the direction of the second place on the ticket. The conservative element is supposed to be for Cannon. That is to say, he has the support of those who are in the habit of criticising the president.

The views of the speaker of the house on the tariff and similar issues make him conservative by nature. It probably would be unfair to call him an anti-Roosevelt man or to assume that the speaker of the house is not in sympathy with the administration.

At the same time, it is becoming more and more evident that the Knox and Indiana delegations are being framed up at the present time for the express purpose of turning them over to the speaker.

Those who are engaged in this enterprise say their ideal ticket is Cannon and Hughes. They believe the speaker would furnish not only all the conservatism necessary to manage the government according to their ideas, but that the ruggedness and picturesqueness of his character would make him a popular candidate.

Hughes Will Not Run Second.

Hughes, on the other hand, has achieved a reputation for a certain sort of radicalism. He is the exact antithesis from a political point of view to Speaker Cannon. That is to say, the New York governor proceeds along progressive lines which are entirely separated from politics, while "Uncle Joe," from training and inclination, seeks to accomplish everything through his own party organization.

It is constantly asserted by friends of Gov. Hughes that under no circumstances would he accept the nomination for the vice presidency. It is not even believed he can be bedeviled into the place, as was the case with Roosevelt, who was promoted to make room for Platt's candidate for governor.

Hughes is not a man to create wild enthusiasm in a convention, and for that reason it would be difficult, if not impossible, to push him into the second place on the ticket against his will.

It is thought, however, that Cortelyou would accept second place on the ticket with Cannon, or, in fact, any candidate except Taft. The heads of the treasury department and the war department have always been friendly, but recent events have been such as to keep them apart politically, and it is not likely they would be grouped on one ticket.

Cortelyou Has Two Chances.

It is thought, therefore, that if Cannon, Fairbanks, La Follette, or any other western candidate, except Taft, is nominated, Cortelyou might reasonably expect to be the candidate for the vice presidency.

If Taft is nominated the choice might go in some other direction, and possibly even to Knox himself, if he would accept it.

Those who are studying political heavens insist that Cortelyou has an excellent dark horse chance for the presidency, and that he is more than likely to secure second place.

CORTELYOU REJECTED OFFER.

New York, Jan. 15.—It became known today that the depositors' committee of the Knickerbocker Trust company had considered the name of Secretary Cortelyou, among others, to take the presidency of that institution and that an intimation of the consideration of his name had been conveyed to the secretary within the last few days.

This was before Secretary Cortelyou had given out an authoritative announcement of his intention not to resign from the cabinet. In view of the latter announcement it was assumed that any tender or intimation of his coming to New York as president of the Knickerbocker company had been definitely rejected.

A friend of the secretary, who is in a position to know, said tonight:

"Mr. Cortelyou is going to stay where he is, as secretary of the treasury, until the end of Mr. Roosevelt's administration. I am confident that he has not seriously entertained any proposition involving his resignation from the cabinet."

Fate of Bank Concerns President?

Behind the offer to Secretary Cortelyou are some peculiar facts, according to men familiar with the inner affairs of the Knickerbocker. President Roosevelt, it is declared, is deeply interested in the fate of an account with the Knickerbocker Trust company, which showed a balance on Oct. 22, the day the institution closed, of $55,610.

Various bank presidents of the city have been told that this money belonged to President Roosevelt and was deposited by his brother-in-law, Douglas Robinson, who at times has acted as the president's financial adviser. In whose name the $55,610 now stands could not be definitely ascertained today. It is known almost to a certainty it is not in the name of Mr. Roosevelt. It is believed to be in the name of some member of his family.

Hence it is said he desires Cortelyou to take hold of the company and save as much as possible from the wreck.

WANTS NATION TO OWN BANK.

Representative Fornes of New York Introduces Bill to Create Concern with $100,000,000 Capital.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—The establishment of "The United States National Bank of America" is provided for in a bill introduced in the house today by Mr. Fornes of New York.

The bank, as conceived, is to be located in Washington. It is to have a capital stock of $100,000,000, divided into 100,000 shares of the par value of $1,000.

Three-fifths of these shares are to be purchased by the United States treasurer at par, the purchase money to be raised by the sale of $60,000,000 United States gold bonds, payable in fifty years and bearing 3 per cent interest, the same to be designated "United States currency bonds."

Two-fifths of the shares are to be offered at not less than par to the national banks of the country, to be paid for in gold coin.

The bank may issue additional notes of "The United States National Bank of America" in amounts not exceeding $400,000,000, and such notes shall be available for general national bank circulation upon deposit of proper security.

Four per cent annual dividends may be paid to stockholders on the bank's earnings.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY HERE; NOW AFTER $68,000,000 FINE

E. W. Sims Returns from Washington, Where He Conferred with Chief on Further Prosecution of Standard Oil.

With the return of United States District Attorney Edwin W. Sims from Washington yesterday the plans were pushed to continue the prosecution of the Standard Oil company, already under a fine of $29,400,000.

Mr. Sims, fresh from a week of conferences with Attorney General Bonaparte, announced that the new trial of the oil corporation will be taken up next week. The two indictments which will be pushed are the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy and the Chicago and Eastern Illinois rebates cases. The first case charges the acceptance of rebates in 2,000 different cases, and the second indictment has 1,400 counts. With the maximum fine of $20,000 a count, such as Judge Landis imposed, the total penalty possible reaches the sum of $68,000,000. Still another indictment, known as the "Little Alton" case, is pending in Judge Bethea's court.

Under the regular routine of the calendar calls the Burlington indictment will be tried before Judge Bethea and the Eastern Illinois bill before Judge Landis. It is understood generally that the oil company lawyers will seek to take the case away from Judge Landis.

FORAKER'S COUP HURTS OWN CAUSE

Every Rejection by the Senate of Appointment Makes a Taft Supporter.

CLASH OF POWERS NEAR.

Senate's Eagerness to Knock the President Likely to Result in Lively Fight.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft have picked up the gauntlet thrown down by Senators Foraker and Dick. They have decided to send in the nominations of men friendly to the administration and let the senate continue rejecting them if it so desires.

There was an important conference at the White house today. The participants were the president, Secretary Taft, and Postmaster General Meyer. Mr. Meyer's presence accentuates the fact that he now has control of the postoffice patronage instead of First Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock.

As a result of the conference it is understood the president is determined to send in four other names of men of good character and standing.

The president is not trying to create a machine in Ohio. All he wants is a square deal. So far as federal officers are concerned, he would like them to abide by civil service rules prohibiting them from activity in politics.

Foraker's Act Invokes Ridicule.

Senators Foraker and Dick now control three-fourths of the federal officeholders of Ohio and consequently their objection to the confirmation of nominations made by the president appears ridiculous in the view of officials of the administration.

It is expected that Secretary Garfield will make an inquiry to ascertain who would acceptably occupy the postoffices which remain unfilled as a result of the senate's action, and the men he presents to Postmaster General Meyer will be recommended for appointment.

If these nominations be rejected the administration will feel that Senators Foraker and Dick have made four more enemies. The men whose nominations failed yesterday cannot be expected loyally to aid Foraker to realize even his ambition to succeed himself in the senate, much less his attempt to defeat Secretary Taft.

They must know they can expect nothing in the future from the senators, and that if they are to have any political success they must support the aspirations of the secretary of war and endeavor to induce their friends to do likewise.

Senate Glad to Slap President.

Probably the most interesting phase of the Ohio jumble grows out of the way in which the senate unanimously supported Foraker. There is not the slightest doubt the senate has it in for the president and is willing to take advantage of any opportunity to give him a slap.

The first opportunity of the session came in connection with the Ohio postmasters. The republican members of the postoffice committee, which recommended the rejection of the nominations, include Penrose of Pennsylvania, Dolliver of Iowa, Proctor of Vermont, Burrows of Michigan, Scott of West Virginia, Carter of Montana, Crane of Massachusetts, Dick of Ohio, and Bourne of Oregon.

Penrose is for Knox, and, besides, is not particularly friendly to the administration because of the publicity given to his alleged connection with the so-called "$5,000,000 conspiracy."

Proctor is not for Taft, neither is Scott. Crane is on the fence. Carter is believed to be for the administration. Bourne is for the president for a third term, but is against Taft. Dolliver is friendly to the president and so is Burrows.

Dick Engineers Rejection.

Dick, of course, was the man who engineered the rejection of the nominations. While he frankly spoke about the situation in his native state to the senators, there is reason to believe he made a special point of the fact that the Ohio senators had not been consulted, and that it was due to them that the senate should stand by the custom of having the senators recommend appointments.

But beyond this the sentiment in the senate is distinctly against the administration, and there was a great deal of quiet chuckling today over the way in which the president had been turned down. It may be that the president has the rod in pickle for the senate, which will prevent that body from going too far in its efforts to discredit him.

The senate naval committee is making a quiet inquiry into the question of the naval administration, and proposes to recommend that only line officers be assigned to the command of naval vessels.

This will force the president to rescind his recent order assigning naval surgeons to command hospital ships. There is no disposition in either the house or the senate to pass the public land reform bills which the president sought last year, and which he proposes to seek during the present session.

Clash with Congress Coming.

No activity is being displayed in connection with the recommendation of the president for legislation modifying the anti-trust law or for further railroad regulation.

Indeed, the program of the leaders appears to be to confine themselves strictly to appropriation bills and emergency currency legislation, giving such knocks at the president as opportunity and desire may afford.

This is by no means the president's program. He believes the country is in need of the legislation he recommended in his annual message.

The decision of the Supreme court declaring the employers' liability law unconstitutional caused him keen regret. He has indicated that he will send a special message to congress recommending the passage of a new law which will be in line with the Supreme court decision, and even more comprehensive than that which was found illegal.

It is apparent the lines are tightening between the administration and congress, and it is expected that they will soon become taut.

Firemen and Engineers Dance.

F. S. Morrell lodge of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers had a dance last night at Palace hall, West Van Buren street and California avenue. The grand march was led by James Curran, chairman of the lodge, and his wife.

BRIBE LAW STIRS UP HOUSE

Representatives Have a Lively Time with Penal Code.

CONNIVANCE CALLED CRIME.

Plan to Stop Sale of Support for Office Is Offered.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The house had a lively time today when efforts were made to amend, by increasing its severity, section 112 of the penal code relating to the soliciting or acceptance of bribes by senators or representatives.

Mr. Randell of Texas offered two amendments. The first made it an offense for any public service corporation to give to any senator or member or judge of a United States court any free transportation of person or property, frank or franking privilege, money, or anything of value, making it high misdemeanor for such persons to receive the same under penalty of a fine of $1,000 or imprisonment for one year or both.

The second made it a high misdemeanor for any senator or member or senator or member elect to hold any employment or receive any pay as an officer, representative, or attorney of any bank or public service corporation, and providing a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not less than one year and ineligibility to hold any public office.

Consideration of the Randell amendments was deferred until tomorrow.

Connivance to Be Crime.

Section 113 also was strengthened by an amendment which punishes the bribe giver when the bribe is given or offered "with the consent, connivance, or concurrence" of any senator or member.

A vigorous protest against the purchase and sale of indorsement or support for public offices was made by Mr. Hardwick of Georgia, who favored enlarging the scope of the present statute so as to include, in addition to senators, members, and delegates in congress, every person who may violate the law in that respect. Mr. Hardwick said that such a change should be made if it was desired to have cleanliness in the matter of such indorsements, particularly in the southern states, where, he charged, appointments were frequently auctioned.

Mr. Williams offered an amendment covering such offenders and making the whole statute applicable only to "appointive" offices or places. No objection was made to this amendment.

Objections Are Denounced.

Objection to the introduction of further amendments to the code was met by Mr. James of Kentucky in vigorous terms.

"While an amendment has been admitted providing punishment for the destruction of birds' eggs," he said, "when it comes to providing sufficient punishment for men like Harriman and Rockefeller, or some of the corporations that have been feeding on the public and who contribute millions of dollars to buy up elections, you say 'Don't put them in the penitentiary.'"

The senate did not receive a reply today from the secretary of the treasury to its resolution calling for information concerning the financial situation, as had been promised, and in its absence Senator Aldrich assented to the passage of Senator Culberson's resolution on the same subject. Without further comment the resolution was adopted.

The senate passed a joint resolution reducing from $24,000,000 to $11,000,000 the war indemnity of the United States from China.

ULTIMATUM IN OHIO FIGHT.

Chairman of State Committees Says Unless Plan for Cuyahoga Is Accepted He Will Call Membership to Act.

Columbus, O., Jan. 15.—Chairman Brown of the republican state central committee tonight issued an ultimatum to the warring factions of the party in Cuyahoga. Unless it is accepted by noon tomorrow he will issue a call for the state committee to meet in Columbus next Saturday to settle the controversy that has grown out of the contest between the Taft and Foraker followers over the selection of delegates.

This ultimatum provides for the holding of a primary under the state committee's call and the selection of a new county central committee at that primary, the regular committee to be recognized as controlling in the meantime.

In the primary the contesting factions who are seeking to name a member of the board of elections to succeed W. R. Hopkins will have a chance to demonstrate their strength.

WALSH CASE GOING TO JURY TONIGHT.

Fletcher Dobyns to Conclude Argument for Government This Morning.

THEN JUDGE'S CHARGE.

Much Documentary Evidence for Jurors to Examine Before Deciding.

The John R. Walsh case will be in the hands of the jury tonight. Assistant District Attorney Fletcher Dobyns, who began the closing plea yesterday afternoon, will conclude this noon. Early in the afternoon the judge's instructions will be read and the jury will retire to deliberate. As there is a large amount of documentary evidence for the jury to go over a verdict is hardly expected until tomorrow, and possibly not until Saturday.

Mr. Walsh, surrounded by his friends and relatives, heard himself lauded as a wise banker and denounced as a criminal and gambler during the day. Mr. Dobyns did not spare words in his appeal to the jury to find a verdict of guilty. On the other hand, Mr. Walsh's attorneys, John S. Miller and E. C. Ritsher, who spoke earlier in the day, declared that in all his financial transactions Mr. Walsh was actuated by disinterested motives.

Mr. Walsh was affected visibly by the closing words of Mr. Ritsher's plea.

"I believe," said Mr. Ritsher, "that John R. Walsh will walk out of this courtroom tomorrow night with erect head—a free man. He will be vindicated. It must be so. Justice demands it and humanity will sustain it."

No question apparently shadows the mind of Mr. Walsh as to the outcome.

He believes implicitly that the jury will free him.

"I will come out all right," he said after adjournment last night. "I am not afraid."

Plea of Prosecutor Dobyns.

Mr. Dobyns said he was not influenced by any desire for vengeance in his plea for a verdict against Walsh.

"I have only sympathy for the defendant," said the young prosecutor, "but we are confronted by a great duty. The situation is burned into our minds. The evidence shows beyond a doubt that this defendant violated the trust which thousands of people placed in him as president of the Chicago National bank and took $7,000,000 of the bank's money by stealth and squandered it on his own enterprises. He admits that he diverted the money, but says that he did not mean to do anything wrong. No more astounding confession of crime ever was made in a courtroom than that which John R. Walsh made on the witness stand.

"It is of the utmost importance that there shall be no miscarriage of justice in this case. If things of this kind can go on in this city confidence in the integrity of bankers will be destroyed.

"If you believe that Walsh used all these millions in the interest of his bank solely, then I agree with counsel for the defense that a verdict of not guilty shall be given. If Walsh did these things, having in his own heart only the good of his banks, then I can only say that a plea of insanity should have been introduced here. Think of the gilded bonds that he could have purchased with this money. Think of the people anxious to borrow money on safe securities.

Millions Loaned Illegally.

"Walsh loaned millions in excess of the amount which the banking laws permit. He made the loans on securities which had no market. He was interested personally in the companies to which this money went. He admitted that the books did not show the nature of the transaction. He admitted that his directors knew nothing. He did not dare let any one know what he was doing. He had embarked on his career as a reckless promoter and was using the trust funds which he controlled so absolutely.

"Mr. Miller says that six innocent acts do not constitute guilty intent. I will admit that one or two loans on poor collateral might not establish guilt, but when you go back and see the working of the Walsh system; when you see the money coming out of the bank daily, year after year, on bonds that would not sell at 10 cents on the dollar; when you see Walsh putting the proceeds of these sales secretly to his own account and the checks going out to his personal enterprises—then this entire plan says to us that he was trying to enrich himself at the expense and risk of the bank. Somehow Walsh believed that he could cover all his crimes up.

Clearing House Prevented Crash.

"They say that no one lost anything. Go back to the situation that confronted the bankers of Chicago on Dec. 17, 1905. The controller had told them that Walsh had used $16,000,000 of the deposits of his banks in his personal concerns and that the banks would have to close. Think of the nature of the Walsh collateral. Think of what would have happened that Monday morning if the clearing house banks had not stepped in and paid the money that Walsh stole. The Walsh banks could not have paid more than 30 or 40 cents on the dollar. The ruin would have shaken the city and the country.

"That is why the bankers of Chicago took the assets in the three Walsh banks on the chance they could get their advance out of them. That is what Walsh means when he says the banks bought his bonds. The deal wiped out the surplus and capital stock of the banks to pay Walsh's debts. Did the stockholders get a cent for their $2,500,000 investment? Did they lose nothing?

Pity for the Stockholders.

"The most brutal thing I ever heard was when Fred M. Blount, Walsh's right hand man, said that he did not have any duties to the stockholders. That money never has been paid to this day. What chance do the stockholders stand? They have Chicago Wharfage and Storage bonds and Wisconsin and Michigan railroad bonds to realize from. Neither of these concerns is doing business and neither has paid interest on its bonds. The securities are not worth the paper they are written on."

Walsh appeared amused at this statement. He smiled and then broke into a laugh.

"But it makes no difference whether any one lost anything or not," continued Mr. Dobyns. "The only question is what Walsh used all that money for. If the cashier of the bank had taken out a few hundreds to play the races and had lost he would have been judged guilty and have been sent to prison. What shall be done with the all powerful president? John R. Walsh had the most beautiful bank building in the world. Today there is nothing left but that row of shiny books. Did no one lose?

Wrong Begun with Bedford Quarries.

"Walsh's career of crime began with the Bedford Quarries company. He took that concern when it was in distress and made a fortune out of it. After that he looked all over for other insolvent concerns to take over. None of the others ever paid. Mr. Hamill says that the Bedford stone is used in monuments and public buildings all over the country. I say it should be used in lower monuments—one for the Chicago National bank, one for the Equitable Trust company, one for the Home Savings bank, and one for the honor and fair fame of John R. Walsh.

"From that day to this John R. Walsh has been driven by the greed of gold and the lust for power."

E. C. Ritsher Speaks for Defense.

Mr. Ritsher did not talk much more than an hour. He said:

"Each one of the counts in the indictment sets forth in solemn terms that the bank lost by this and that transaction. More than one hundred witnesses have appeared in this case. No depositor or creditor or stockholder has come forward here to tell of the loss of a dollar. You are asked to convict Walsh on book evidence dug up by Expert Lozier—a man who has been sending men to jail for twenty years, a man with the smile of Iago on his lips and the hypocrisy of a demon in his heart."

WOULD "CLEAR" OWN CHECKS

Credit Men Start Plan for a Commercial Clearing House.

REBEL AGAINST BANK WAYS.

In Banquet at Midday Club They Declare for Independence.

A plan for a "commercial clearing house"—an institution through which business houses could settle their debts and collect their bills among themselves without recourse to the banks—was launched last night at the meeting of the Chicago Credit Men's association at the Midday club.

The proposal was enthusiastically received by representatives of 350 large business houses. A resolution was passed to appoint a special committee to make an investigation with a view to devising ways and means to put the plan into operation.

The originator of the plan is George Landis Wilson, head of the hardware firm of F. Cortes Wilson & Co. His plan is simply the adaptation of the "bankers' clearing house system" to the needs of mercantile affairs. He would have the large mercantile houses proceed at once to effect debtor and creditor settlements among themselves by the exchange of canceled checks, in a manner similar to the settlements made by banks, without the necessity for the exchange of real money.

Just Like Bank System.

These mercantile settlements would be made on the basis of the values of sound mercantile accounts. It was declared by Mr. Wilson to be "exactly the same system" as that now employed by the banks in the clearing house arrangement. In concrete, practical form it would, he said, work out in this way:

"John Doe owes Richard Roe, $100. But James Smith, Tom Jones, Deans company, Watt & Ellis, considered in pairs, have debtor and creditor relations similar to those between Doe and Roe, that is to say, $100 is due to Jones from Smith, to Deans company from Jones, to Watt & Ellis from Deans company. Now, if the chain is complete—that is to say, if $100 is due to John Doe from Watt & Ellis, why may not the obligations of this entire chain of debtors be paid by passing their credits—in the form of a check for cancellation—through the whole intermediate chain from Doe to Roe?"

Urges Independence of Banks.

"Something should be done to reduce the paralysis of trade made inevitable when banks 'lose confidence,'" said Mr. Wilson. "It seems ridiculous for the great commercial interests to stop or mark time upon the order of the banks, when mercantile conditions demand nothing of the sort. If it is possible to separate the movement of current mercantile transactions as far as may be from dependence upon the amount of bank credit that is left over when all speculative financial operations are cared for, the country can go on in calm indifference to the diseases of Wall street, State street, and La Salle street.

"Unfortunately the mercantile debtors are not in the enviable position of banker debtors. They cannot stand pat, refuse to pay till they get ready, tell everybody that it is the other fellow's fault—that everybody should have more confidence, should keep on letting them have more valuable stuff, and should wait with joy for the situation to clear itself.

"The clearing system of settlements made this position possible for the banker debtors. Why can the mercantile debtors not learn a valuable lesson from the organized past masters of the art at the fountain head of delay?"

Mr. Wilson criticised the Aldrich currency bill. He declared the bill was "manifestly intended to help bankers out of the difficulties they bring upon themselves by lending recklessly to speculators." Little or nothing, he said, is done in the bill to accommodate the "larger interests of general commerce and trade as compared with what is done for the banking interests."

J. F. Atkinson spoke on "The Waifs of the Slums," and Judge McKenzie Cleland delivered his lecture on "The New Gospel in Criminology."

Dependents Mean National Suicide.

Prof. Bronson of Garrett Biblical institute said:

"There are in the United States 10,000,000 dependents who, if society had done its duty, would be worth $100,000,000,000 annually in the results of the useful labor they could do. It is foolish—national suicide almost—to let these resources go to waste. Society can be reorganized only by beginning at the bottom—with the young dependent waifs of the slums of great cities."

years ago. Her father and a brother live in one of the southern states.

"Mrs. Metcalf became acquainted with Hamill in the course of some business transaction which she retained him to look after. I don't know whether the present trouble grew out of that or not—she didn't tell me."

Mr. Marks said that all that Mrs. Metcalf told him was so "disjunctive" that he was reluctant to speak for her until he had another interview. He will see her again this morning. When pressed as to what he had discovered concerning the relations of Mrs. Metcalf and Hamill he admitted that they had been "pretty intimate." He denied any knowledge, however, of Hamill contributing sums of money for her support and paying her attentions in other cities, particularly Indianapolis, where she lived in luxurious style.

"I can only say that Mrs. Metcalf has her side of the story," said Attorney Marks, "and when it is heard it will sway public sentiment in her favor. She is held to the grand jury and until that body acts nothing can be done. But I am sure no jury in the world that hears her story will ever convict her."

The attorney said Mrs. Metcalf informed him she could find persons to go on her bond and would send for them today.

"Only Business," Says Hamill.

"I never had anything to do with this woman, except in a strictly business sense, as God is my witness," said Mr. Hamill, late in the afternoon, in the law offices of Ritsher, Montgomery, Hart & Abbott. This was his general reply to the story that he was in any wise responsible for her separation from her husband.

Most of the talking was done by L. E. Hart, who advised Mr. Hamill during the day and would not let him make any assertions except in his presence.

"Four or five years ago," said Mr. Hart, "Mrs. Metcalf was visiting her sister in Terre Haute and came to consult Mr. Hamill concerning some small estate in St. Louis. It had belonged to the father of her former husband. How much was the estate, Sam?"

Mr. Hamill couldn't remember. He said Mr. Hart knew a lot more about the woman than he did, because he had been investigating her, and Mr. Hart continued:

"Mr. Hamill, upon investigating, found there was nothing to the claim and so advised her. She intimated that he had abused her trust and by taking the side of the claimants in St. Louis beat her out of the property.

Attempted Shooting Before.

"Two years ago Mrs. Metcalf again called at Mr. Hamill's office in Terre Haute. She threatened him with a revolver, which she carried in her handbag, but it was taken from her by clerks in the office. Then she dropped out of sight until several months ago, when she came to Mr. Ritsher's office. He, knowing the circumstances, bluffed her off. She saw him frequently up to two or three months ago, when she disappeared again. Last week Mr. Ritsher saw her come into the courtroom at Mr. Walsh's trial. He had her watched.

"Mr. Hamill didn't know that she was in the city until he saw her in the courtroom. He got out in a hurry. Mr. Van Winkle followed, and the next thing it was bing! bing!"

Assault "On a Reservation."

Mrs. Metcalf is under $1,000 bonds to await the federal grand jury, the charge being that she attempted to commit an assault with a deadly weapon while on a government reservation.

During the afternoon she talked a little.

"I have been wronged, greatly wronged," she said. "All I want is justice and a good attorney—a man who cannot be bought. I have had enough experience with corporation attorneys."

She read over the denial Mr. Hamill, through Mr. Hart, had made.

"This is false," she declared. "I never went to him about a St. Louis estate."

When she heard he had said she should be either in jail or an asylum, she clasped her hands and said:

"You can judge of that. There are causes in the lives of most of us of which the world sees only the effect. If the world knew it would be less harsh. I suppose you thought I had horns."

She had the manner of an educated woman, but appeared exceedingly erratic at times.

"What have you to say to Mr. Hamill's statement that his relations with you were simply of a business character?" she was asked.

"I don't believe any one would think that," she answered slowly, after some reflection.

BIG COMMUNITY STORE FAILS

Bohemian Bazaar, 534 Blue Island Ave., Taken by Receiver.

HAD 1,800 SHAREHOLDERS.

Store Organized Eighteen Months Ago; $180,000 Stock Issued.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy threw the Bohemian bazaar, a cooperative department store at 534 Blue Island avenue, into the hands of a receiver yesterday. The stock was held by 1,800 Bohemian residents of that district. The largest amount of the stock, held outside of the directorate was to the value of $50. The total capital stock was $180,000.

"An absolutely honest failure," was the way Attorney W. W. Witty, acting for the petitioning creditors, characterized the assignment.

The store was organized eighteen months ago. It was planned to carry every commodity that might be required by the members of the corporation. For a time there was prosperity. It was considered a successful institution.

When the financial stringency developed there was a falling off in the receipts of the store. The number of clerks was reduced. The directors were called upon several times to advance money to keep the organization in operation. Finally it was agreed that a failure was only a question of time, and it was believed that more might be realized by a receiver than at some later time.

Judge Landis Names Receiver.

Frank Schraeder, with a claim of $442 against the corporation; Thomas Valdar, claiming $1,000, and Joseph Pelant, with a claim of $420, appeared late in the afternoon before Judge Landis. After hearing the statement of Mr. Witty the court appointed the American Trust and Savings bank receiver. Possession of the store was at once turned over to the trust company, and for the present the business will be continued.

The assets, according to the petition, are valued at $80,000. The liabilities are placed at $105,000. John Witrous is president of the company, Frank Schraeder manager, and Joseph F. Schuh secretary.

Not Known to Stockholders.

It was not known in the neighborhood last night that the store was in the receiver's hands. It is not open in the evenings, and there was no notice of the court's action in the window. Even stockholders would not believe that the store had failed.

"We have 1,800 shareholders who have about $10 apiece in the concern," said Mr. Schuh. "If the store can be carried along for a short time I believe that it will make money again, as it did before. If it does no one will lose anything at all.

"It was not decided until today that this step would be necessary. But our directors finally concluded that it would have to come, and the sooner the better for everybody."

ACCUSED MAN IS A SUICIDE ON EVE OF HEARING IN COURT.

"Defendant Is Dead," Is Announcement of Attorney When Case of Herbert Morrell Is Called.

"Your honor, the defendant is dead," was the response of an attorney when the case of Herbert H. Morrell was called in Judge Wells' court at the Harrison street station yesterday. Dreading the humiliation of trial for forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses, the young man had sought escape in suicide. He was found asphyxiated in the early morning in his room at 353 Sixty-second street. He had connected the rubber hose of a student's lamp with a gas jet, then placed the lamp under the bed clothes and inhaled the fumes.

Other cases of suicide or possible suicide were reported during the day as follows:

FOUNTON, MRS. ELIZABETH, 62 years old, found on floor of kitchen at residence of Mrs. Amy Larson, 5907 La Salle street, where she lived; gas jet turned on; police think death accidental.

GORDON, HARRY, 21 years old, 2969 Wentworth avenue, butcher; asphyxiated by gas from open jet in bedroom; no motive known.

PHILLIPS, WILLIAM, 70 years old, 18 Ogden place, laborer; found dead in bed; gas jet turned on; had been out of employment and drinking heavily.

SCHOMMA, PETER, 44 years old, 396 Noble street, teamster; swallowed carbolic acid in rear room of saloon of Joseph Galla, 119 Augusta street; suicide, attributed to poor health of himself and wife.

WANT JOB? GET PHOTO TAKEN

Civil Service Commission May Use Camera on All Applicants.

FIND ANOTHER PRETENDER.

Old Bills Recall Visits of King Edward and Other Guests.

The civil service commission is considering the installation of a photographic staff. It thinks it could find use for it. The project of having photographs taken of street laborers supposed to be at work to determine whether they are really working was explained in THE TRIBUNE yesterday. Now it is proposed to extend the idea to prevent applicants for places from sending somebody else to take the examinations for them.

The latest case was where Robert Burns took the mental examination for his brother William, who afterwards got on the police force by virtue of it. Robert explained yesterday that his brother was in the hospital at the time of the examination and he took his place as a mere matter of brotherly affection. The commission let it go at that after discharging William from the force, but made up its mind these cases were growing too frequent and something must be done.

So the plan was broached of taking a picture of every applicant for an examination, it being attached to the application paper so that all applicants could be identified by it when they came to take the examination. It was suggested that the Bertillon system of identification might be used, but the photographic one was favored.

Memories Revived by Old Bills.

Old time memories were revived yesterday when the city controller dug up a bill paid by the city for entertaining distinguished visitors in Chicago while the body of President Abraham Lincoln was lying here in state preparatory to being taken to Springfield for burial.

Under the then city charter the city was empowered to spend money for such purposes and frequently did so, the first notable occasion being when the present King Edward VII. was visiting here on his trip through this country before the civil war. "Long John" Wentworth was mayor then, and he entertained the prince of Wales in a manner lavish for the times.

This bill was for "wine and whisky furnished members of the legislature and the mourners at the obsequies of the late president" and amounted to $865. It was paid the firm of Gage & Drake, then running the principal hotel of the city.

Mitten Praises Mounted Police.

President Thomas E. Mitten of the Chicago City road has written Mayor Busse a letter saying the work of the mounted police in the business district has aided materially in expediting the running of cars, the time in Clark and State streets and Wabash avenue north of Eighteenth being cut materially.

"I think you ought to know what the result has been," continued Mr. Mitten, "and at the same time desire to express to you my great appreciation of your cooperation, a continuance of which will make the real solution of the traction problem—i. e., reducing overcrowding—much easier of accomplishment."

WILL OF FRANCIS B. PEABODY DIVIDES ESTATE OF $500,000.

Bulk of the Coal Merchant's Property Bequeathed to Two Sons and Two Daughters in Equal Shares.

The will of Francis Bolles Peabody, filed for probate yesterday, left an estate of slightly over $500,000 to be divided. The personal estate is valued at $310,000 and the realty at $192,200. The bulk of the coal merchant's estate goes in equal shares to the two sons, Francis S. and A. S. Peabody, and the two daughters, Lucretia P. Houghteling and Jessie P. Butler.

It is expressed in the will that it was Mr. Peabody's desire that A. S. Peabody receive as his share the interest held in the firm of Peabody, Houghteling & Co. It is directed that the other son receive his portion out of the stock owned in the Peabody Coal company.

The executors are instructed to invest $10,000, the income of which is to be paid to Judith T. Bolles and Lucie D. Bolles of Washington, two cousins. The income from $5,000 is to be paid to Nancy B. Wallace, widow of William M. Wallace, another cousin. The interest on $10,000 is to be paid to Jessie P. Frothingham, a sister of Mr. Peabody, who lives at Princeton, N. J. Upon her death the principal is to be paid to her daughter.

Y. M. C. A. PLANS BOYS' HOME

Will Use Albert Keep Bequest in Aiding Factory Lads.

SITE ON NORTHWEST SIDE.

Association's First Model Dormitory for Men Soon to Open.

A home for neglected boys in the factory district of the northwest side is to be built by the Young Men's Christian association of Chicago. An investigation for a suitable site and a neighborhood, where the best work can be done, will be begun at once. The money to build the home was given to the organization in the will of the late Albert Keep, who was president for many years of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad.

Mr. Keep died last spring. In his will he left $100,000 to the Young Men's Christian association, to which he had been an annual contributor. A clause in the will provided the money was to be used in the improvement and education of the poor boys of the north side. Mrs. Keep was to be consulted before the money was spent.

The decision to build the home was announced last night at the annual meeting of the board of managers of the Y. M. C. A. It met with general approval. The association was informed of the bequest last June, but the proceeds of the money, which is well invested, have not been available until this time. General Secretary L. Wilbur Messer has advocated the plan for many years, but the association has not been able to undertake it until this gift.

At present there is no north side branch of the association between the central department and Ravenswood.

Open Dormitory Soon.

It was announced also at the meeting that the dormitory for men at 842 West Monroe street, a branch of the west side department, would be opened soon. This dormitory, which is a hotel for employed men, has 150 rooms. It contains a gymnasium, a library, swimming pool, and billiard rooms. A small weekly rent is charged. No transients are taken. The dormitory is the first step in the great plan which the association cherishes of putting up model lodging houses in Chicago on the order of the Mills hotel in New York.

The twentieth annual report of Secretary Messer was read. General prosperity in all branches of the work was reported. In the central department and the nineteen branches of the association in Chicago there are 8,130 members. The attendance at day and night schools of employed men has reached 2,200. Employment has been found for 450 men and 2,700 strangers in the city have been directed to good lodging houses. The donations during the year have amounted to $44,134 from 1,023 persons.

Old Officers Re-elected.

The election of officers was held and all the old officers were reelected.

They are as follows:

President—Edward P. Bailey.
Vice president—William P. Sidley.
Recording secretary—A. E. Ziehme.
General secretary—L. Wilbur Messer.
Treasurer—James R. Chapman.

SHOT IN HALL OF HIS UNION AS HE PLAYS GAME OF CARDS.

Otto Schultz Killed by Fellow-Workman for Trivial Cause — Brother, Passing Door, Unaware of His Loss.

In the midst of a friendly game of cards Otto Schultz, a member of the Painters' and Decorators' union, was shot and instantly killed yesterday afternoon by Henry Rittman, a fellow union man. The shooting occurred in the rooms of the painters' district council on the second floor of the North Side Trades Union hall, 55 North Clark street.

Intimidating bystanders with his revolver, the assailant succeeded in making his escape from the hall. On the street he again pointed his weapon at several persons who made as if to stop him and fled down an alley between Michigan and Kinzie streets. Four mounted policemen started in pursuit and at La Salle avenue the fugitive was overtaken by Policeman J. F. Murphy and disarmed after a struggle.

The shooting of Schultz occurred just as a North Clark street car on which his brother, Robert, 214 Orchard street, is a conductor passed the hall in which the shot was fired. Beyond inquiring what the trouble was the brother paid no further heed to the incident until he had finished his day's work at 10 o'clock last night. He then picked up the extra edition of an evening newspaper and read that his own brother was the victim of the bullet.

The cause of the shooting seems a mystery. Only a trivial conversation over closing a door preceded it. The two men had known each other for years, and, other union men say, no antagonism ever had been shown. Rittman was half stupefied with drink when he fired the fatal shot, and after being taken to the Chicago avenue station was absolutely unable to make any coherent statement.

Schultz, who was 35 years old, had gone from his home at 20 Hudson avenue to the union headquarters in search of work.

Riteman's home is at 1400 West Van Buren street. He is 33 years old.

PRISONER CONFESSES "PAL" SHOT DETECTIVE MOONEY.

William Brown Says "Hihi" Simmons Killed Policeman, Who Interrupted Trio on Holdup Tour.

The police net is tightening about the murderer of Detective William R. Mooney, who was shot down Jan. 2. "Hihi" Simmons, who from the first had been suspected, has been branded by one of his "pals" as the murderer, according to a statement by a police official last night. William Brown, one of the two men arrested in Elgin Monday night, is said to have made the confession. Thomas McCann is the name of the other prisoner.

At the time the policeman was shot the three thugs were starting out on a holdup expedition, with their first stopping place the saloon of Ald. Fick, at the west end of the Twelfth street viaduct. The expedition was abandoned after the policeman was shot.

Following Brown's confession the police increased their efforts to locate Simmons, who is believed to be hiding in the west side "levee."

DOCTOR AGED 92 GIVES THE SECRET

Dr. S. R. Millard Explains How He Practiced for Forty-one Years.

TEMPERATE IN HABITS.

Says He Works, Smokes, and Takes Recreation Sanely and in Moderation.

"Live sanely and moderately."
"Be temperate in your habits."
"Keep interested in your work."
"Be alive to the things of the present."
"Keep sweet."

These are prescriptions for prospective centenarians issued in tabloid form by Dr. S. R. Millard, 1344 Washington boulevard, probably Chicago's oldest physician, yesterday upon the eve of his ninety-second birthday and within walking distance of his own century milestone. Dr. Millard is a refutation of the Osler theory and also admits that he is a bad illustration of the evils of a lifelong though moderate use of tobacco. That fact, he holds, is the proof of temperateness. The efficacy of the third prescription is proved by the fact that only within the last few years has he given up his practice and even now takes pleasure in prescribing for ailing friends.

Has Practiced Medicine 41 Years.

Dr. Millard proudly declares that of the forty-one years during which he has lived in Chicago for forty of them he has been a subscriber and constant reader of THE TRIBUNE. He himself is ample proof that he has kept "sweet."

"It is just about forty-one years since I came to Chicago and began medical practice," said Dr. Millard yesterday. "I lived out on the west side, at Oakley and Warren avenues, and there were not many houses beyond that—just the prairie and a few settlements. At that time I was offered forty acres of land within two miles of the city hall for $300. The city started to build up and then came the great Chicago fire. Soon after I came to Chicago I became acquainted with many of the old settlers and pioneers, although I could hardly be assigned to that class myself. I knew Fernando Jones and regarded Judge Bradwell as a great friend before his death."

'43 Graduate of Harvard.

Dr. Millard was born at Hartford, Conn., in 1816. His father, John L. Millard, was a professor in Harvard college in the early part of the century when he graduated in 1843. His cousin was President Millard Fillmore. He studied medicine at Harvard and moved to New York about the time the first railroad from New York to Philadelphia was built, and soon after Fulton built the first steamboat which ran between New York and Albany. Dr. Millard was a passenger on the Fulton, the second steamboat built by Fulton, about six months after it was put in commission.

Celebrates Birthday Today.

Dr. Millard laughed when asked how he intended to celebrate his birthday.

"Well, Mrs. Millard, my daughter, has invited in some friends. She intended to surprise me, but I found it out," he replied. "I guess I shall do about as I do every day, though—read the paper, smoke my cigar, and perhaps go out for a walk."

"Yes, and probably smoke several more cigars than usual, too," said Mrs. Millard. "The doctor enjoys his cigar about as much as he enjoys reading THE TRIBUNE. He has to have them both after breakfast."

"Well, I guess I wouldn't do to hold up as an awful warning to bad boys upon the evils of using tobacco," Dr. Millard admitted. "My eyes are pretty good and my hand is more steady than lots of young people whose age wouldn't reach the inverted figures of my own. It is all in the way people live, and if young people who aspire to longevity would not live so fast as they are prone to do in the present age they would have a good chance to live as long as I have, or even longer."

Officers and members of various councils of the order of the Knights of Columbus joined hands at Congress hall, Congress and Honoré streets, in honoring the work of Anthony Czarnecki in carrying on the educational campaign of lectures at Gen. James Shields council of the order while officer of that council. A diamond studded watch charm containing the inscription "To Anthony Czarnecki from members of Gen. James Shields council, K. of C., Semper Fidelis." was presented to him. Dr. Eugene Clancy made the presentation speech.

The Value of Charcoal

Few People Know How Useful It Is in Preserving Health and Beauty.

Cost Nothing to Try.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, drinking or after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges; they are composed of the finest powdered Willow charcoal and other harmless antiseptics in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being mixed with honey.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but, on the contrary, great benefit.

A Buffalo physician, in speaking of the benefits of charcoal, says: "I advise Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges to all patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat; I also believe the liver is greatly benefited by the daily use of them; they cost but twenty-five cents a box at drug stores, and although in some sense a patent preparation, yet I believe I get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets."

LUNCHEON GIVEN TO HONOR FLEET.

Brazil's President Is Host to Officers of the Visiting Warships.

LAUDS MONROE DOCTRINE

Liberty Men Are Behaving and No Further Trouble Ashore Has Been Reported.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 15.—The main entertainment on the official program for the visiting American naval officers today was a luncheon given by President Penna at Petropolis.

The officers present were Rear Admiral Thomas, Capt. Richard Wainwright of the Louisiana, Capt. Hugo Osterhaus of the Connecticut, Rear Admiral Evans' flagship; Capt. George Enlief Merriam of the Missouri, and Capt. Henry McCrea of the Georgia. There were also present Mr. Irving B. Dudley, the American ambassador, and Mrs. Dudley; Marshal Hermes da Fonseca, minister of war; Rear Admiral Alexdrino de Alencar, minister of marine, and Vice Admiral Maurity of the Brazilian navy.

Penna Lauds Monroe Doctrine.

In a speech at the luncheon President Penna lauded the Monroe doctrine. He said he was glad of the opportunity the visit of the fleet afforded him and the government to show Brazil's friendship for the United States. He also extolled President Roosevelt.

Mr. Dudley in replying used the Portuguese language. He said the American government was greatly pleased with the heartiness of the reception that had been accorded the fleet at Rio de Janeiro.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley in the afternoon gave a garden party at their home which was attended by 200 American officers and members of the various foreign embassies and legations.

Admiral Evans Recovered.

The Italian cruiser Puglia entered the harbor this afternoon. The cruiser followed the example set by the Brazilian navy and gave a vice admiral's salute to Rear Admiral Evans, who has practically recovered from his attack of rheumatism. He will visit President Penna at Petropolis on Friday.

There was a great turnout of handsome equipages this afternoon on the Flamingo boulevard in honor of the Americans. The boulevard was thronged for two hours by residents of the city, visitors from the suburbs and further outlying towns, and many hundreds of men from the fleet, who were thus afforded an opportunity to see some of the most beautiful women of the capital, who turned out in force in honor of the occasion.

The reply of President Roosevelt to the message of congratulation sent him by President Penna yesterday was made public today. It has greatly pleased all classes of the population.

Favorable Comment Heard.

Mr. Roosevelt's declaration that the fleet, so far as regards Brazil, is not composed of warships but of messengers of friendship and good will is favorably commented upon in all quarters.

There has been no repetition of the trouble ashore with the liberty men. The latter are behaving, and their conduct meets with the approbation of the authorities.

MISSION OF THE FLEET.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 15.—Something more than the usual degree of importance attaches to the felicitous exchanges between the presidents of America and Brazil over the visit of Admiral Evans' fleet to Rio, owing to the significant expression used by President Roosevelt in accounting for the mission of the battleship fleet.

The correspondence by cable, made public today, follows:

From President Penna:

Petropolis, Jan. 14.—President Theodore Roosevelt, Washington: This afternoon I had the great pleasure of receiving and becoming personally acquainted with the admirals and captains of the American fleet en route to the Pacific ocean. I congratulate you upon the successful arrival of so powerful and well drilled a fleet at Rio de Janeiro, and I take keen pleasure in informing you that the people of our capital spontaneously and enthusiastically joined the Brazilian naval authorities from the first moment in the demonstrations of fraternity and friendship towards the American sailors and the great republic of the north, for whose glory all Brazil utters the most cordial wishes.

AFFONSO PENNA, President of Brazil.

Roosevelt's Significant Reply.

Below is President Roosevelt's reply:

The White House, Washington, D. C., Jan. 15, —President Affonso Penna, Rio de Janeiro: I thank you for the kind message which you were so good as to send me upon the arrival of the American fleet at Rio. It has given me and will give to the American people the liveliest satisfaction. We are all sensible of the courtesy and distinguished hospitality with which the government and people of Brazil have received our officers and sailors. The warships of America exist for no other purpose than to protect peace against possible aggression, and justice against possible oppression. As between the United States and Brazil these ships are not men of war, but are messengers of friendship and good will, commissioned to celebrate with you the long continued and never to be broken amity and mutual helpfulness of the two great republics.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Upon the invitation of the Argentine government Commander Cone has been cabled instructions to make a special visit to Buenos Ayres with the torpedo boat flotilla when the little vessels reach Montevideo. The distance from the latter port to the Argentine capital is only 120 miles of easy steaming up the Plate, but the voyage is not possible for the battleship fleet owing to lack of water.

5 SKATERS DIE AS ICE BREAKS.

Attempt to Rescue Couple Who First Crashed Through Into Water Costs Lives of Others.

Connelsville, Pa., Jan. 15.—Of six persons who formed a skating party at the Jimtown reservoir, near here, tonight, five were drowned. Miss Elizabeth Fullmer and George Cochran started toward the center of the reservoir, but had not gone far when the ice broke and they were thrown into the water.

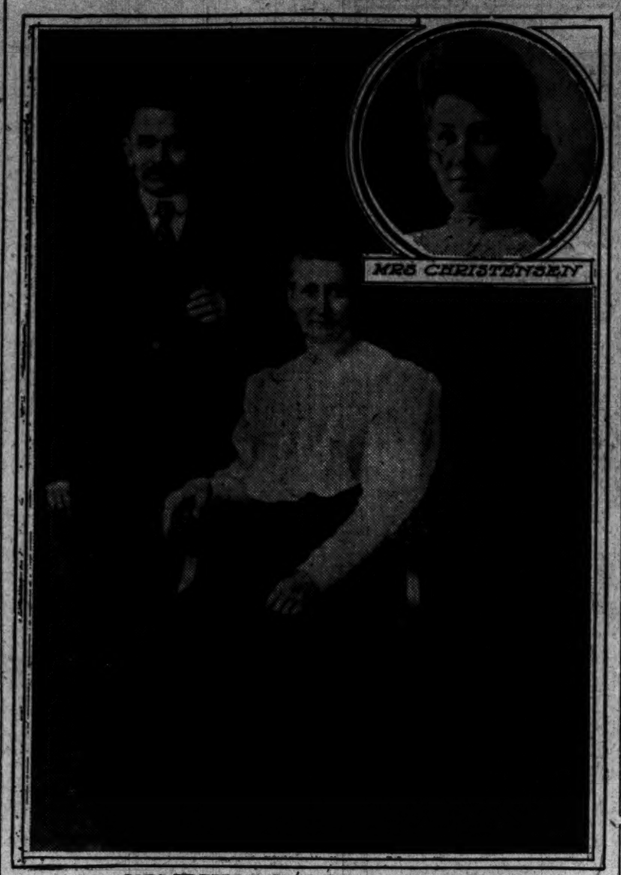

As the other members of the party gazed horrified at the spot two heads reappeared above the surface. Cochran, supporting the girl with one hand, was clinging to the broken edges of the ice with the other.

In an instant a human chain was formed by the other four, who clasped hands with Andrew Mack, the only survivor, at the end of the line nearest the shore. Just as a hand was being reached out to grasp Miss Fullmer there was another crash of ice. Frank Cochran, John Luxner, and William Fullmer had also gone down, the thin ice giving way under their combined weight. Mack, helpless to save, saw his companions drown.

Bride Slashes Her Husband.

Bartholomew Krupek, aged 41, and his 18 year old wife, Julia, had a quarrel last evening at Twenty-fifth place and Francisco avenue, and as a result Krupek is in the county hospital with a knife wound in his shoulder and his wife is under arrest at the Hinman street station. According to Mrs. Krupek's story, her husband demanded that she give up all her girl friends and amusements, which she refused to do.

MRS CHRISTENSEN

HENRIK AND BERTHA LARSEN

CARL EMIL CHRISTENSEN

WIFE'S NICKNAME MAKES WAR

Feud in Christensen Home Began When She Was Called 'Teeny.'

DERIVED FROM BERENTHINE

Mother-in-law Scrubs in House She May Be Forbidden to Enter.

While Carl Christensen, 512 Thomas street, was consulting with his lawyer yesterday in an effort to keep his mother-in-law from entering his house or communicating with his wife, the old Norwegian woman was down on her knees scrubbing the kitchen floor of his home. His wife, who is ill and unable to work, seemed but little bothered by her husband's sensational actions, and consented to tell how the trouble arose.

"You see, my man is sort of queer," said Mrs. Christensen. "When any one doesn't agree with him and do everything he says he takes an intense dislike to them, and he wants to go to law about the smallest things.

"The trouble all came from a dispute about my name. My name is Berenthine, but my mother and friends always call me 'Teeny.' He never liked this, and always wanted every one to call me by my full name. Of course, no one paid any attention to him, though he made an awful fuss about it. But when the baby came he got worse than ever. He said that he would never let the baby hear that nickname, and threatened to do something awful if any one ever mentioned it in the baby's presence.

Letters Forbid Friends to Call.

"One day my mother and every one of my friends received the meanest letters from him forbidding them to ever enter this house again. Since then no one ever comes to see me except my mother, and if she did not come and stay with me through the day and do my work when I am unable to do it myself as I am at present I couldn't live with him at all. The only Christmas presents that baby and I got were from mother—not a thing from him—and the shoes that the baby is wearing now were bought by mother while he is off paying fees to lawyers to make more trouble. Just after Edith was born I left him because he struck me with his fist and with a poker, and the only reason that I came back was because my mother and father said it was my duty."

Mother-in-Law Tells Story.

Contrary to the allegations in Christensen's bill of complaint, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Larsen, did not appear to be a "shrewish termagant," and could hardly be induced to leave her task to give her side of the story.

"I don't know whether he thinks it is a joke he is playing or whether we have been so good to him that he has got spoiled and is acting up like a bad child. I have not seen him in three months and do not want to see him again, but I am going to come and see my daughter when she sends for me and needs me. I don't care for all the crazy husbands and courts and injunctions and bills, whatever those things are, in the world. It was mighty different before they were married. He treated me pretty decent then. To see him you would have thought he was a gentleman. He would have fooled almost any one. But I can't sit here and talk. I have to finish the work before he gets back from the lawyer's."

Christensen was told by his lawyer to make no statements, as the affair had already had too much publicity.

Another Son-in-Law in Court.

Alienation of the affections of his wife is the basis of a suit for $30,000 by Martin Weiderholdt against William Deitcher and his wife, now on hearing before Judge Clifford. The defendants are parents of the plaintiff's wife.

Weiderholdt was married October, 1902, at Hammond, Ind., and for two years he and his wife lived at her parents' home in Jefferson Park.

In August, 1903, a daughter was born, and soon after this, he asserts, existence in the home of the Deitchers became unbearable. He established a home for himself, but his wife, he declares, refused to leave her parents' home.

Weaver was taken to St. Bernard's hospital and identified by Mrs. Murphy as her assailant. According to the police, Weaver admitted he shot Mrs. Murphy, who now is in a serious condition. He said he had supplied Mrs. Murphy with money ever since she separated from her husband, "Spud" Murphy, about two years ago. When he learned she was receiving the attentions of other men he came to Chicago and the shooting followed.

BOYERTOWN DEATH ROLL 170; MANY VICTIMS UNIDENTIFIED.

Building Inspector Believes Entrapped People Were Overcome by Gas Fumes and Rendered Helpless.

Boyertown, Pa., Jan. 15.—The figures compiled by Coroner Strasser at nightfall show that there are 170 dead as a result of the opera house fire Monday night. The list of dead includes one fireman, who lost his life fighting the fire, and one man, Jacob Johnson, who died today from injuries received in the blazing playhouse.

Three charred bodies were recovered from the ruins of the building today, and of the 168 bodies, or remains, that lie in the improvised morgues, 115 have been officially or partially identified by sorrowing relatives or friends.

Coroner Strasser opened an office tonight in the Mansion house and established a bureau of information, where he granted death certificates and signed insurance papers. The representatives of scores of insurance companies are in Boyertown paying off claims as fast as they are presented.

The coroner says that not more than twenty-five of the entire number of bodies removed from the fire have heads. There are several trunks that probably will never be identified, as there were a few strangers in the audience that witnessed the play.

Building Inspector Heckman of Reading, who made an inspection of the opera house which was destroyed, said tonight:

"In my opinion the people in the hall were overcome by the fumes from the tank used in connection with the tableau lights, and simply could not help themselves."

Yesterday afternoon he became ill in the quarters of the engine company at Thirty-fifth street and Rhodes avenue. Capt. Crapo said he believed the wound could not have been the cause of death.

CUBANS OPPOSE EARLY FREEDOM.

Declare Island Will Not Be Ready for Its Independence by Feb. 1.

FEAR WORST MAY COME.

Revolution Is Possible as Soon as American Troops Are Withdrawn.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—The Discusion, one of the most influential newspapers in Cuba, today contains a two column editorial deploring the fixing by President Roosevelt of Feb. 1 as the date for the reëstablishment of the republic. It says that every one naturally is glad that the republic is to be reëstablished soon, but nevertheless the date fixed is too early. It adds:

"It is a mere exigency of American politics, altogether irrespective of Cuban interests. It is deplorable that the United States is to lose Cuba on a fixed date, with no reference to the condition it will be in on that date. The program will greatly damage the country, bringing on a sudden accumulation of happenings just at the height of the sugar season, a most inauspicious time."

Blame American Politics.

Continuing, the paper says the Cubans thought America had Cuba's interests at heart. They are surprised to find the problem is not one of international importance, but purely a matter of President Roosevelt's administration. Of all solutions that might have been found, the one chosen is the worst—namely: the restoration of the republic as it was, regardless of conditions and giving it to the sole responsibility of the Cubans.

The volume of pessimistic predictions which may be heard are startling. Each individual politician believes that the new republic will succeed if it is under the administration of his particular party, but simultaneously predicts a dire outcome if any other party is placed in power.

Foreigners Gloomy at News.

The foreign element, which dominates everything except politics, apparently holds the unanimous belief that success is impossible for a Cuban administration. The predictions concerning the length of time the republic will stand vary.

Some claim there will be a revolution as soon as the American army vanishes beyond Castle Morro, while others think it will stand as long as it takes to build it.

Two Men Have a Duel with Canes, in Front of Anna Gould's Mansion by the Light of the Moon.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—It was learned tonight that a second encounter between Count Boni de Castellane and his cousin, Prince Helie de Sagan, has taken place. It was a far more romantic and much more spirited encounter than that in front of the church of St. Pierre de Chaillot.

This most recent altercation was a duel of canes, fought on the pavement in front of the Gould-Castellane mansion in the Avenue Malakoff by the light of last Saturday night's moon.

Mme. Gould was again the subject of the broil and the prince, once more worsted, is said to be upon the point of doubling the claim for damages against Count Boni by way of getting surcease for his now twice battered head.

Ten other cases investigated since the October meeting were rejected as not being within the scope of the fund.

R. H. Dravo of Pittsburg and R. A. Frank of Orange, N. J., the latter Mr. Carnegie's financial secretary, who were recently added to the commission, attended their first meeting today. The old officers were reelected.

The commission took no action regarding the Darr mine disaster because the relief committee is not ready to furnish data upon which to base action.

CRISIS IN JAPAN ONE OF EXPENSE.

Resignation of Cabinet Members Has No Bearing on Immigration.

CANADIAN ROW IS ENDED

Mikado's Promise to Limit Number of Emigrants Satisfies Dominion.

TOKIO, Jan. 16.—A mistaken idea prevails abroad in regard to the Japanese cabinet crisis, according to dispatches from Washington and London, to the effect that an opposition victory might entail a change in Japanese foreign policies.

Cables from Washington this morning say it is believed that the immigration controversy had something to do with changes in the cabinet.

These surmises are entirely in error. The cabinet crisis is purely the result of interior differences over the budget.

No "Shakeup" Probable.

In the event of the resignation of the entire cabinet its reformation would certainly result in the retention of a number of the present ministers, including possibly Foreign Minister Hayashi.

M. Nakashoro, vice minister of communication, resigned today. He will be succeeded by Mizuka of the railroad bureau.

Canadian Question Settled.

The Canadian immigration question has been settled. The Japanese government has received notice that the report of Rodolphe Lemieux, Canadian minister of labor, is entirely satisfactory to the Canadian government, and that it would accept in good faith the verbal promise of the restriction of the emigration of laborers, relying upon the Japanese government to enforce the regulations which are outlined in its memorandum.

Nothing now remains except the exchange of memoranda between the two governments.

ADDS FUEL TO IRISH FEUD.

Forcible Ejection of Two O'Brien Delegates at Dublin Blow to Harmonizing Plan.

DUBLIN, Jan. 15.—The recently discussed reunion of the Redmondites and the O'Brienites is still far from consummation, judging from an incident which took place today at the meeting here of the national directory of the United Irish league. Two nationalists from Cork, supporters of Mr. O'Brien and duly accredited delegates, entered the hall, but as soon as their presence was discovered the league officials ordered that they be expelled. The delegates from Cork declined to retire, and after an exciting struggle they were finally ejected by force.

After order was restored John E. Redmond was reelected president. A report was submitted showing that the receipts of the league in the last three years had exceeded those of the previous three years by more than $40,000, and that more than 1,200 evicted tenants had been reinstated.

A resolution was adopted expressing confidence in the parliamentary party under the leadership of Mr. Redmond, and congratulating the nationalists on their response to the appeal for a vigorous campaign in favor of home rule.

The final resolution adopted welcomed "as a basis for attracting attention to the absurdity of the hereditary principle in legislation and the moral and political imbecility of the Irish peerage as a class, the candidature of Lord Curzon for the Irish representative peerage."

Killed in Bridewell Quarry.

Fred C. Dorgan, 57 years old, 1696 Flournoy street, a prisoner who was working in a quarry at the house of correction yesterday, fell into a pit that had been made by other laborers and was killed.

THAW'S VAGARIES TOLD BY BUTLER.

Irrational Tendency Was Often Shown in Slayer's Home Life.

INSANITY RECORDS IN.

Cousin of Defendant Testifies That Father and Brother Died Crazy.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Harry K. Thaw had another disagreeable time in court today, for he had to sit all day long and hear witness after witness tell of the eccentric and violent things he had done, and express the opinion that he was irrational.

He was visibly depressed by what he heard. But his counsel were pleased, because when the day had ended they had made considerable progress in the work of piling up evidence on which they expect a verdict of acquittal on the ground of insanity.

Despite the objections of the district attorney, Alfred Lee Thaw, a second cousin of the defendant, was allowed to testify that his father, William S. Thaw, a cousin of Harry's father, died in an insane asylum at Williamsburg, Va.

The witness also testified that his own brother, Horace S., died at the age of 23, in another insane asylum at Staunton, Va.

The records of these institutions recounting the same things also were admitted in evidence.

The physician who examined Harriet Alice Thaw, a half sister of William S. Thaw, was also permitted to state that he diagnosed her affliction as dementia.

Weird Doings Related.

A large number of witnesses took the stand to tell of the weird doings of Thaw at various places and times. The most interesting of this group was the steward of the Whist club, who told of Thaw's strange appearance and excitable manner at the club the afternoon before killing Stanford White.

His testimony was supplemented by that of the telephone girl who was at the Grand hotel when Thaw and Miss Nesbit were staying there; that of a witness formerly employed by Thaw's mother as butler; that of several more persons who saw the shooting, and that of nine members of the coroner's jury before which Thaw appeared soon after the killing.

The district attorney's efforts largely were confined to attempting to show all the eccentricities thus testified to might have been those of a man who merely was nervous and dissipated, but not necessarily insane.

There is a chance that young Mrs. Thaw will take the witness stand on Friday if the witnesses from abroad do not arrive by that time. If they do, she will not testify before Monday.

Insanity Records Are In.

When the afternoon session opened Mr. Littleton introduced William Lee Thaw. He said he was about 44 years old and gave his testimony clearly and impressively. He was a son of William Simmons Thaw and his home is in Richmond, Va.

His father and Thaw's father were cousins. His father died in an asylum in Williamsburg, Va., when he was 69 years old. There was no taint of insanity on his mother's side, he said, but Harriet Alice Thaw, his father's half-sister, is now in an asylum at Frankfort, Pa. His brother, Horace Thaw, died in an asylum at Staunton, Va., when he was 23 years old.

Mr. Littleton then introduced the records of the asylums where Horace Thaw and William Thaw died.

Dr. Butler of the Williamsburg asylum, where Horace Thaw died, said he was mentally unsound. The record book of the institution showed the entry made as to the cause of his insanity. It was "business, heredity, and sexual excitement."

Butler Tells of Home Life.

Mr. Littleton then called six members of the coroner's jury, who all seemed to think Thaw irrational. The last witness of the day was a Swede, who said his name was Per August Weber.

He was a butler for Harry Thaw for three months in 1903 when Thaw had a house at 21 Lafayette square. Before that he had been employed by Senator Foraker. Thaw's mother and sister were living with him at the time.

Thaw, he said, was an extremely nervous young man. One night Thaw came home about 4 o'clock with a friend. They played the piano and Thaw got the butler out of bed to bring some Scotch whisky and cigars. The butler got them and went back to bed.

On his way to his room Thaw knocked at his door, came in, and gave him $5, saying, "I beg your pardon." Witness thought it strange Thaw should give him $5 and beg his pardon. "And it was not part of my salary," he said.

On another occasion Thaw told him he would not be home for dinner that night. So no dinner was prepared, but about 9 o'clock the butler was summoned to the dining room. Thaw, who was sitting at the table, wanted to know about dinner. The butler told him he had said in the afternoon he would not have dinner at home that night.

Anger Never Manifested.

Thaw came home one afternoon about 8 o'clock and found that his mother's typewriter was out driving in the family carriage. He became hysterical, the butler said, and threw himself on the lounge. His mouth twitched and his eyes got glassy. In a couple of minutes he was himself again. At no time, said the butler, did Thaw appear to be angry.

He acted about the same way on another occasion when the butler took him his breakfast in the morning. Thaw jumped out of bed and kicked over the tray with the breakfast. Then he kicked some eggs and toast into the fireplace, mixing them up with the coffee.

In doing so his slipper came off. Then he said, according to the butler:

"What's all this about?" and he was rational again.

Mr. Littleton made it a point to bring out that Thaw had not been drinking. He had gone to bed at his regular hour the night before. He had not been drinking previous to his other spells, either.

During the morning session Dr. H. W. Wood of Philadelphia told of the mental infirmity of Harriet Alice Thaw. He was followed by four members of the coroner's jury. They considered Thaw irrational.

Club Steward on Stand.

Christopher Baggan, steward of the New York Whist club, told of the vagaries of Thaw as observed by him. Once Thaw wanted a package of cigarets looked up in the iron safe. The prisoner's eyes often had a peculiar stare and he was always highly nervous.

Thaw, he said, was playing whist with John A. Drake, Capt. Wharton, and others at the club the afternoon of the tragedy. The witness could not believe the party were playing for money, as that was against the rules of the club. Only mineral water, the steward said, was served to Thaw the day of the shooting.

The witness said Thaw had been more or less nervous ever since he had known him. Thaw was at the telephone for the better part of an hour the day of the tragedy, and the witness heard him repeat "That is awful."

Few Spectators in Court.

The present trial does not attract many spectators. Not more than half the courtroom seats were occupied at either session today. The exclusion of all women spectators has had its effect, and the continued absence of Mrs. William Thaw on account of illness, and of Mrs. George Lauder Carnegie for some other reason also are contributing causes. It is understood Mrs. Carnegie's absence is due to the fact that the evidence touching the insanity of the Thaw family is so distasteful to her that she cannot bring herself to hear it.

SAYS THERE IS NO PEONAGE

Farcical Action by Grand Jury in Vicksburg, Miss.

NO BILL AGAINST PLANTER.

Holding of Italians in Slavery Declared to Be Justified.

Vicksburg, Miss., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The right of the southern planter to hold ignorant foreigners in slavery despite human and statute laws has been vindicated.

The grand jury in session here has refused to indict O. B. Crittenden, owner of Sunnyside plantation, whom the federal government accused, along with other planters, of violating the peonage law.

The inquisitors heard the evidence which the federal government had obtained, listened to the statements of the victims of Mississippi's slave laws, and then voted "no true bill."

Crittenden's claim was that the foreigners obtained money from him after agreeing to work and then tried to run away, so that he was compelled to have them arrested.

Italians Are Denounced.

Count Moroni and M. Villari, special representatives of the Italian government, were in attendance, in charge of twenty-two Italians, who told of the outrages perpetrated on them. Tonight Italy and the representatives of that country are being denounced as the cause of "an unwarranted attack" on the south.

From evidence obtained by Miss Mary Grace Quackenbos, a woman lawyer, and other federal investigators, Sunnyside plantation is worked by "slaves," who are induced by false promises to go upon the soil there.

Enter and Leave Hope Behind.

Once they set foot within its boundaries they are, to all practical purposes, prisoners. If they attempt to leave debt charges are trumped up against them, and they are arrested.

Then the beauty of Mississippi law "protects" them. They are haled before a country justice of the peace, who probably has "peons" on his own plantation, and tried.

None ever is acquitted, and outrageous fines are entered against them. Of course, they cannot pay them, and the "criminal"—who believed America was a free country—is sent in the chain gang, back to the prison he sought to escape, to work out as a felon the fine laid against him.

Some Meet a Worse Fate.

Deprivation of liberty has not been the limit of indignity heaped upon the deluded foreigner. Italians have been murdered—one because his children were sent to "the white school."

So flagrant and numerous have these crimes against written and human law become that foreign nations have protested time and again to the state department in Washington for relief.

The federal government cannot interfere. Secretary Root has appealed to Gov. Vardaman of Mississippi asking that he take steps to protect aliens in Mississippi, but to no avail.

The Austro-Hungarian government recently notified its citizens that if they came to America and went to Mississippi they would be in peril of their lives.

Italy is about to issue a similar warning to the people of that kingdom.

Experience of One Investigator.

When the protests of the foreign powers first began to pour in on the state department in Washington the department of justice sent a special agent to Sunnyside plantation to investigate. His name is Charles Pettek and the records of the court which seemed to have been part of "Sunnyside's" equipment will show that he was arrested because he talked to one of the Sunnyside "slaves."

Pettek was held without warrant of law, was tried as a trespasser—though the fact he was a federal employé was known—and was fined $100, in default of which he was to have been sent to the chain gang.

He paid the fine and left the country. His experience is a matter of record in Washington.

The government has announced its determination to push its war against peonage.

BILLIARD HALLS CLOSED AT 1.

Saloon Prohibition Extended This Morning to Places of Amusement—Some Are Thieves' Resorts.

The 1 o'clock closing prohibition was extended this morning to the billiard and pool halls, which, in the opinion of the police, have in some cases been used as rendezvous for crooks since the saloons have been watched so closely. The police last night were instructed to see that billiard rooms were closed at 1, and the order was generally observed. The big downtown establishments, most of them, close up anyway, and the others took the tip and locked their doors on time.

Flames Destroy Furniture Store.

The furniture store of Greenwald & Blum, 4733 Ashland avenue, practically was destroyed by fire at midnight last night. The building was of brick construction and two stories in height. On account of the proximity of the stock yards a 4-11 alarm was turned in, but the firemen confined the fire to the one building. The loss was $15,000.

GUN BATTLE IN SAND DUNES

Two Laborers Killed and Policeman Shot Through Nose.

TWENTY ARRESTED AT LAST

Three Gary Coppers Fight Till Two More Arrive, Then Win.

Two men are dead, one policeman wounded, and several workingmen injured as the result of a pitched battle last night between three Gary, Ind., policemen and thirty Hungarian railroad laborers.

Guns and revolvers were fired and knives thrown, but, though they were outnumbered ten to one, the policemen made seven arrests and stood their ground until reinforcements arrived, when thirteen more men were captured.

Several escaped through the sand dunes.

Battle Lasts for Hours.

The fight occurred at the camp of the Hungarians, one mile west of Gary, and the battle was of several hours' duration. Policeman Fred Miller fell in the first hour with a bullet through his nose.

He pluckily resumed his post, however, and remained with his comrades, John Mulcahy and Charles Catey, until the end.

The noise of the firing was heard at Gary and two remaining policemen went to the aid of Miller, Mulcahy, and Catey.

They found the Hungarians intrenched behind one sand dune, while the policemen had taken a position behind another. The arrival of the police reinforcements disheartened the Hungarians, and some fled at once. The others were captured within a few minutes.

Attack on Negro the Cause.

The Hungarians had been working on the tracks of the South Bend railroad. During the afternoon several of their number destroyed the tent of a negro laborer and when the latter sought redress at the camp he was fired upon. A railroad watchman who sought to aid the negro also was compelled to flee. Warrants then were sworn out and the policemen went to the scene early in the evening. A shot greeted their demand for surrender and the battle followed.

Mrs. Nancy Hill Nickerson, who died Tuesday evening at her residence, 3291 Langley avenue, was one of the pioneer residents of Chicago. She was born in 1823, and came here from northern Maine in 1844. She was a teacher in the early days, and her school was in a barn.

In 1849 she went to Boston, where she completed her studies, and returned to Chicago in 1859, when she purchased half of the Cleaver farm, located at what is now Thirty-ninth street and Cottage Grove avenue. She was appointed matron of the old Chicago Orphan asylum in 1864, and held this position for some time.

She materially helped church affairs at that time in Chicago by contributing $25,000 to Jenkin Lloyd Jones when the latter was seeking a church site.

Among her relatives in Chicago are her nieces, Mrs. W. D. S. Anderson and Mrs. Hermann Lieb; her sister-in-law, Mrs. Garner M. Hell, and her nephew, Dr. Eugene Sawyer.

INDICT GOTHAM BANK PRESIDENT.

W. R. Montgomery of Hamilton Institution Charged with Overdrafting.

LINERS SLASHING RATES.

East Bound Steerage Passage Now Only $18.75 and May Fall to $10.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Jan. 15.

Bank President Indicted for Overdrafts.

The special grand jury which was sworn in to investigate the conduct of certain banks in New York county returned two indictments today against William R. Montgomery, president of the Hamilton bank. The charges, involving overdrafts and overcertification, have to do, however, with acts alleged to have been committed by Montgomery while he was vice president of the institution. When E. R. and O. F. Thomas retired from their banking interests Mr. Montgomery succeeded the former in the presidency.

Montgomery pleaded not guilty. The $5,000 bail required was furnished by William H. Birkmire, a director of the bank.

One indictment charges that Aug. 29 last Montgomery drew a check for $12,950, payable to B. F. Strassburger, a Maiden lane jeweler, and caused it to be certified. The check was in payment for thirty-seven shares of Hamilton bank stock.

The second indictment sets forth that Sept. 6 last the defendant drew a check to the order of Dr. L. C. Warner for $21,000 at a time when the maker's balance in the bank was only $5,918. This check was given for sixty shares of the bank's stock.

In his report to the attorney general, made public Dec. 9, Receiver White stated that the individual ledger of the Tremont branch of the Hamilton bank showed that E. R. Thomas had overdrafts in August of the same year.

Steamship War Booms Eastward Steerage Traffic.

Following the refusal of the Cunard company to come to terms today, the International Mercantile Marine company again cut its east bound steerage rates on vessels of the White Star and American lines, making a total reduction in this class of $11.25 since the rate war began. Dispatches from Liverpool tonight state that the cut was met by the Cunard company on all steamers except the Lusitania and the Mauretania. It is probable that further reductions will be made in the next few days. An official of one of the steamship companies concerned said today that a rate of $10 to Europe might soon be offered.

The rates as made today for the better steamships of the American line are for the east bound steerage $20. On the older steamships it is now possible to procure passage for $18.75, and on the Umbria and Etruria of the Cunard line a still lower rate is to be made. The west bound steerage rates have not been changed since the reduction of last week, when a general rate of about $26 was fixed.

Officials of the fighting lines said today that there was no hope of peace unless at the North Atlantic steamship conference, soon to be held in London, a schedule of prices based upon speed and condition of steamships could be fixed that would satisfy all.

Just 21,021 east bound steerage passengers have left this port since the first day of the year. This is a record for the first two weeks of January. In 1906 the number of steerage passengers leaving during the same period was 7,710, while last year it was 9,476.

Ida Tarbell's Brother as an Oil King.

How at least one competitor of the Standard Oil company has been able to gather strength and wax prosperous by combining with other competing companies was brought out today in the government investigation of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, which is being held in the federal building before Special Examiner Ferriss, appointed by the United States Circuit court of Missouri.

Walter Tarbell, a brother of the magazine historian of the Standard Oil company—Ida Tarbell—was called to the stand and cross examined by John G. Milburn of counsel for the Standard.

Mr. Tarbell is treasurer of the Pure Oil company of Philadelphia. After relating the history of his connection with the oil business Mr. Tarbell admitted that he was a member of the Producers' Protective association, which was a secret body, and that one of its objects was to limit production and raise the price of crude oil. It controlled production and raised prices. His company, he said, had developed and expanded notwithstanding the competition of the Standard Oil company.

Mr. Tarbell said that his company was organized with $1,000,000 capital. After it obtained control of other companies the capital was raised to $10,000,000.

H. O. Havemeyer Estate Exceeds $10,000,000.

The will of Henry O. Havemeyer, who died at Commack, L. I., on Dec. 4, was filed for probate today. It disposes of an estate the value of which has not yet been ascertained definitely, but is believed to be in excess of $10,000,000. The executors are Mrs. Havemeyer, widow; Horace Havemeyer, son, and Adeline H. Frelinghuysen, married daughter. Mrs. Havemeyer inherits all household furniture and is to have the use for her life of the house at 1 East Sixty-sixth street.

It is further ordered by the will that enough securities or other property from the estate be set aside to insure Mrs. Havemeyer a life income of $50,000 a year.

All the residuary estate is left in trust for the three children—Horace, Adeline, and Electra. The latter still is under age.

Mystery in Hotel Affair Grows Deeper.

The case of Sadie Noxon of Rutherford, N. J., who, accompanied by a man registered as "M. Britton and wife" at the Royal Blue hotel, and was found on a bed unconscious from gas this morning, becomes more mysterious every hour. The woman lies in a stupor in the hospital with slight chance of recovery, and the police have made no headway whatever in finding the man who registered with her and later left the hotel, apparently unnoticed.

Mrs. James H. Smith, sister of Mrs. Noxon, said tonight at her home in Rutherford that the whole affair seemed to her quite inexplicable. Tuesday morning her sister set out for New York, intending to visit a place on Columbus avenue, and get a trunk.

"I do not suppose she ever reached the place. She must have met this man somewhere and spent all Tuesday and Tuesday night with him. I think she must have been drugged in some way."

Jerome Says Bingham Is Being "Conned" by Crooks

The rumpus between District Attorney Jerome and Police Commissioner Bingham over the former's disbanded raiding squad became livelier today. Mr. Jerome made a long statement declaring that the commissioner was being "conned" by crooks and announcing his intention of defending the accused men, even to the extent of appearing in their behalf at the trials at police headquarters.

Mr. Jerome said that the police department is less efficient now than it was in the days of Gen. Greene. Gen. Bingham's task, in Mr. Jerome's opinion, is hopeless.

The district attorney intimated that he would proceed before the grand jury with the excise cases and in that way, if in no other, find out to what extent the police inspectors of this city were failing in their duty.

HOW TO END SMOKE NUISANCE

Even Soft Coal Properly Burned Leaves the Air Pure.

TESTS AT STATE UNIVERSITY

With Correct Furnaces and Stokers Smoke Is Impossible.

A smokeless Chicago is entirely possible even where soft coal is burned in boilers. L. P. Breckenridge of the University of Illinois experiment station, in a bulletin just issued on "How to Burn Illinois Coal Without Smoke," declares that there should be little difficulty in designing, constructing, and operating stationary boiler furnaces which under ordinary conditions of service will be smokeless.

Mr. Breckenridge believes that in the past too much dependence has been placed upon the fireman. The plants that smoke least are mechanically operated, and the present knowledge of necessary equipment and apparatus is so exact that all the appliances are available. No man with a smoky chimney can plead helplessness as an excuse.

If any fuel is to be burned without smoke it must be supplied with the correct amount of air, says Mr. Breckenridge. A torch smokes because the large round wick brings up oil, especially in the center, to which air cannot be supplied. If the air supply through the center tube of our student lamp is shut off a smoking flame results. The candle with the small wick is an advance over the candle supplied with the large wick. The flame from the flat wick has an extended surface for air supply, while the circular burner not only has maximum surface for air supply, but the air coming up through the center of the tube is heated, making it still better suited to aid combustion and burn a large amount of oil.

Thus it is that we have successfully solved the problem of burning a large oil supply without smoke. If we try to increase the oil consumption and turn up our lamps too high they smoke, and because they are in the room with us we immediately turn them down.

Furnaces burning coal sometimes smoke just because they are forced too hard, and because the top of the chimney is not in our room but in the public's pure air we do not turn them down, but let them smoke.

Easy to Control Smoke.

Air correct in amount is a necessity for complete combustion, and the simple experiments which we have all been making with our oil and gas flames should be sufficient evidence to us that only when we are able to supply our furnaces with the correct amount of air shall we be able to control the smoke which it is so easy to make. How much easier our problem would be if, as in the lamp, we could see all that was taking place and could regulate all by a simple knurled brass handle.

Mr. Breckenridge states his conclusion of the smoke problem in a single sentence: "Any fuel may be burned economically and without smoke if it is mixed with the proper amount of air at the proper temperature."

A formula, however, is not sufficient for the owner who is trying to make his plant stop smoking. What the owner wishes to know is what furnaces and boilers are in the market that are really suitable for burning Illinois coal without smoke.

Mr. Breckenridge thinks it unfortunate that there are so many independent manufacturers of boilers and furnaces. Both boiler and furnace should be sold and installed by the same company—or at least the boiler company should furnish complete plans with their boilers, including the furnace.

Much disappointment and confusion have arisen from trying to burn Illinois coal in furnaces designed for eastern coal. In the university experiments made at Urbana during the last two years, Illinois coal has been used mainly, although many kinds of coal have been tested for smokelessness.

Mr. Breckenridge concludes that any one "of four well known types of boilers may be set over at least three types of automatic stokers and operated without objectionable smoke." The boiler, he believes, has little to do with the problem, except, perhaps, that some types of boilers lend themselves more readily to the necessary furnace construction.

"Impossible to Make Smoke."

In over 100 trials of about ten hours' duration each of the various kinds of Illinois coal, the smoke record was "No smoke all day." The conditions under which these trials have been made are explained fully in Mr. Breckenridge's pamphlet, with drawings and descriptions, and he goes so far as to say that in this setting, "It is impossible to make smoke."

It is possible to burn Illinois coal without smoke with fire tube boilers, but the furnace requires special treatment, and such settings are not common. The plans usually proposed are either low set stokers or extended Dutch oven furnaces. When hand firing is adopted the wing wall furnace or other form of mixing baffles or piers is of great assistance.

With any of these devices careful firing is necessary for satisfactory results. The twin brick arch furnace, which keeps the gases away from the boiler plates altogether, is an effective smoke preventive.

Careful firing, with low rates of combustion, assisted by automatically controlled air supply, will often enable these settings to be run so as to escape the fines of city smoke inspectors, but they can hardly be compared as to smokelessness with such settings as are used at the university plant.

Cheap Plants Worst Offenders.

Horizontal tubular boilers are often adopted on account of their cheapness, and when such is the case the addition of any special furnace construction or any special devices to aid in smoke prevention is seldom given any consideration. From what has been said it is doubtless evident why this type of boiler is so frequently found to be one of our worst smoke offenders.

Mr. Breckenridge admits that he knows of no method by which Illinois coal may be burned in a locomotive boiler under usual conditions without making smoke. Careful firing is the most effective way of reducing smoke.

Cash Plentiful; U. S. Takes Checks.

Assistant United States Treasurer William Boldenweck announced yesterday that in the future the various departments of the federal government in Chicago would accept bank checks in payment in lieu of currency, which has been demanded during the stringency.

SNELL LETTERS UNCOVER PASTOR.

Announcement That They Will Be Read Brings Hamilton to Clinton.

SENSATION OVER "BELLA"

Former Judge Donohue Refuses to Show the Jury How the Colonel Danced.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Clinton, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Muffled to his ears in a heavy overcoat, his pockets bulging with newspapers containing stories in which he was drawn into the Snell will case, the Rev. F. W. Hamilton made a mysterious visit to Clinton today. A few hours later the Methodist minister whose letters will play such an important part in the hearing now in progress had disappeared without leaving any trace of his present whereabouts or a hint as to his plans for the future.

It is significant that at the time of his arrival the lawyers who are endeavoring to break the will of the dead millionaire announced that at last they were prepared to proceed with their side of the case. That means that all the letters will be produced in court tomorrow. It also means that the names of the women who have been drawn into the case will become public, probably within the next twenty-four hours.

It also was made known that there probably are as many letters from the Rev. Mr. Hamilton and his wife as from Maybelle Snell McNamara, and that they probably will become just as important from a legal standpoint as those of Mrs. McNamara.

Cause of His Visit.

This fact, say the lawyers, may have drawn the Rev. Mr. Hamiltop to Clinton at this particular time. Just where he boarded the interurban car upon which he came here nobody knows. It was known, however, that he appeared nervous and that he moved from one seat to another, as if in hope of avoiding those who knew him.

By a peculiar chance he seated himself behind Faye Magill and her husband, Fred Magill, who were prominent in Clinton a few months ago during the supposed murder investigation. Fred Magill immediately recognized the minister and pointed him out to other passengers on the car on which he made his peculiar appearance. On leaving the car the Rev. Mr. Hamilton hurried to the home of his father-in-law, Philip Wolf. Although he was followed to the house, his presence there was denied a few minutes later when inquiries were made for the minister.

"I know that he wouldn't want to see anybody," said Wolf, who answered the door. "I haven't the slightest idea where the Rev. Mr. Hamilton has gone."

The minister is a close friend of Judge Cochran, who is hearing the case. Edna, his daughter, was in Clinton on Monday, but Judge Cochran said that she did not call upon him, as had been reported. The young woman did tell a friend, however, that the hopes of her family lay in Judge Cochran's hands.

"Bella" Causes a Stir.

If anything had been needed to add to the intense interest in the case now being manifested by residents of Clinton and vicinity it was furnished by the announcement of the appearance of the mysterious "Bella" as a new figure in the case. Although it had been made clear that the woman did not live in Clinton, there were many persons who declared that Dewitt county held "Bella," and they went so far as to name her.

So hot did the discussion become that Richard Snell, the son who is contesting the will, said he found it necessary to answer these rumors.

"I want it plainly understood that this woman does not and never has lived in Clinton," said Mr. Snell during the morning. "There have been so many rumors and even positive assertions about this that I am forced to make this announcement in order to protect innocent women."

"Is it not true that she is a Washington woman and is well known socially here?" he was asked.

"I cannot answer a single question about the woman," said Mr. Snell. "It is enough to say that she is not a resident of Clinton."

Lawyers Examine Letters.

Immediately after the adjournment of court all the lawyers congregated in the courtroom and behind closed doors proceeded with the examination of the letters in the case. These letters and papers were piled upon a table, making a formidable pile—enough to fill a bushel basket. The manner in which the lawyers for the proponents insisted upon seeing and marking every scrap of paper to be introduced today indicates that they will make a fight upon the introduction of each and every letter. There is little doubt, however, that all the letters written by Col. Snell and practically all of those written to him by many sweethearts will be permitted by Judge Cochran to be entered as evidence.

Probably the only diverting feature of a tedious day in court was furnished by the efforts of Attorney Lemon to get Michael Donohue, one of the witnesses, to reproduce the eccentric dance which Col. Snell once executed while in a passionate rage. Mr. Donohue is a former judge and is corpulent and dignified as well as advanced in years.

Exhibition of Snell's Temper.

"You say that Col. Snell once showed his anger when beaten in a lawsuit which was tried before you?" began Attorney Lemon.

"That he did," replied Donohue.

"How did he show that he was angry?"

"Well, the most noticeable thing was that he executed a wild dance, swore like a sailor, and made remarks about my ability as a judge which were not exactly in order."

During the afternoon it was discovered that Judge Cochran had permitted one of the exhibits to be taken away from court by a third party. Attorney John J. Morrissey, representing the proponents, insisted that this was entirely against the wishes of the attorneys, and worked an injustice upon his case. He told Judge Cochran that he wished to make a strenuous objection to such procedure.

Judge Cochran admitted that he had given the order upon which the exhibit was obtained from the clerk, but he believed that the lawyers had agreed to it.

Pedro Winner in Magnolia Stakes. School Teams at War. Bowling.

PEDRO IS WINNER IN STAKE EVENT.

Beats Temaceo in the Magnolia in Driving Finish at New Orleans.

HYPERION II. IS THIRD.

Ellison Horse Well Supported, but Pace Is Too Fast; Notter Back in the Saddle.

New Orleans, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—In one of the fastest races of the season the Texas horse Pedro won the Magnolia selling stakes, the feature event at the Fair grounds today. Fighting it out with him so close that few but the judges could say which had passed the finish line in front was Temaceo, which had been strongly supported by Owner Ellison and his friends. Two lengths back was Hyperion II., the betting favorite. The race was at a mile and worth $1,645 to the winner.

Ten were sent out to try for the purse. That the Cella people thought well of Hyperion was shown when his price was kept near the opening quotation. He was beaten simply because he was asked to follow the fast pace set by Sally Preston. In doing so he was so weakened that he had nothing with which to fight off the stretch challenge of Pedro and Temaceo. Pedro passed him at the last sixteenth post, then Temaceo came along, and had Notter made his run a trifle earlier he might have landed the Ellison horse in front. This made the third straight win for Pedro. After the race the smart fellows were set guessing as to just how good a horse he may be.

Track in Better Condition.

Excepting at the head of the stretch and for a short run thereafter there was not so much trouble today in finding good going. The only thing that kept some of the winners from getting down in fast time was the wide turn that was necessary to avoid the stretch pitfalls. The weather conditions were improved.

The return of Jockey Notter to the saddle after two weeks of suspension was hailed by those who had learned to follow him two weeks ago. The leading jockey made good, winning with his first two mounts. He started with Telescope in the first race, and landed that favorite winner in clever fashion by waiting on the pace to the stretch, then sending his mount on the run over Hannibal Bey.

In the third race Notter won with Angelus. The field was made up of a shifty lot. Angelus was so much the best that, after losing a lot of ground by a wide turn, he was good enough to win comfortably. Stilario took the place from Apache. It was reported that Burlew & O'Neill won well on the victory of Angelus, he having shown particularly well in recent workouts.

Colloquy a Winner.

The fast filly Colloquy, last season considered one of the best sprinters here, returned to winning form today and won the second race. Just on supposed class she was a short priced favorite. She went to the front from the start, raced Toy Boy, another speed wonder, into submission, and by superior gameness stood him off to win by half a length.

Meadow Breeze, with better racing luck than Handzarra, the favorite, had little trouble in winning the fifth. Handzarra was handicapped by being kept in the deep going all the way and quit badly when the test came.

Louise McFarlan, well backed, was a clever winner in the sixth. She had more early speed than usual today and simply ran away from the contenders. John McBride landed in the place.

TRANCE WINS YOUNGSTER RACE

Captures "Baby" Event at Oakland in Impressive Style—McIntyre Is Suspended.

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—T. Griffin's Ben Brush filly Trance won the "baby" race at Oakland this afternoon in a style that stamps her as a promising youngster. On Parole led into the stretch by almost three lengths, but Trance finished with rare gameness and won easily by three lengths. J. S. ### PULLING OFF A SIX ROUND GO IN CHICAGO.

BRAE BURN COUNTRY CLUB DECLINES GOLF TOURNAMENT

New Prohibition Law Leads West Newton Organization to Withdraw Its Bid for the Championship.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Advance notes of the annual meeting of the United States Golf association on Friday night include the official withdrawal of the Brae Burn Country club of West Newton, Mass., as an applicant for the amateur championship.

It is the catastrophe of a collision between the tournament and the township's new prohibition law. The golf balls and high balls were beaten off together. Garden City, Deal, and Onwentsia remain as applicants, but with the Chicago club only making a stall for the 1909 event. Englewood has the united support of the Manhattan clubs for the open championship. Secretary Morgan announced tonight the Myopia Hunt club had offered its course for the open championship, provided it is held the latter part of August. Should the event go to the Boston club, it is quite likely a number of the professionals, who complained of poor treatment there in 1905, will refuse to play there.

An application for the women's championship has been received from the Allegheny Country club, near Pittsburg. This makes the third application for the women's tournament, the Philadelphia Country club and the Chevy Chase club of Washington already being in the field.

In recognition of the demand from the west it is expected that the time of the amateur championship will be set back to August or September. There is surf bathing near to both links, which is a minor consideration for the westerners to ponder on.

Hamilton of Englewood by 5 and 4, having in the morning round defeated Frederick Snare of Englewood, 3 and 1. Mr. Hamilton won from Chisholm Beach of Garden City, 4 and 1, in the morning.

The first division consolation went to Emerson Armstrong of Fox Hills, who defeated Edwin A. Freeman of Dyker Meadow, 2 and 1. There were five other divisions in the midwinter tournament, and three in the consolation, and four classes in the special foursome event.

"Jiggs" Donohue was a caller at the Sox headquarters, and while he has not signed, expects to be one of the squad which will start for California March 1.

ROWDY WORK BY M'GOVERN.

Former Fighter Turns on "Wild Bill" Donovan, Who Is Refereeing, and Almost Knocks Him Out.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Terry McGovern, once champion of the world, came near knocking out "Wild Bill" Donovan, the star pitcher of the American league in 1907 in the course of a sparring match here this afternoon.

McGovern and "Young" Corbett are giving exhibitions in a local theater. Today the management obtained Donovan as an additional attraction, to act as referee. Near the end of the third round the boxers came to a clinch and when Donovan tried to get them to break McGovern turned upon him like a flash and landed merciless punches on Donovan's stomach and jaw. "Wild Bill" reeled and almost went to the floor. He had time neither to protect himself or dodge.

McGovern is believed to be a little light mentally since his term in an eastern sanitarium.

BARRY AFTER AL KAUFMAN.

Chicagoan Makes Californian Good Offer if He Wants to Fight—Side Bet a Feature.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Jim Barry is out with a challenge to Al Kaufman. Barry says: "I will fight Kaufman, winner take all, and give him a side bet of from $3,000 to $10,000. I am sincere in my offer and agree to post the money within forty-eight hours after Kaufman signifies his intention of meeting me. I don't claim to have the money myself, but have two men, one of them John L. Sullivan, who will back me for that amount against Kaufman. Now, if Al is in earnest, let him show what he can do. I have put the matter up to him, so let him come through with an answer or brand himself as a man out after cheap publicity and not hard fights."

"Outlaw" Races at Pittsburg?

The board of control of the Western Skating association, of which Phil Lauth of this city is chairman, has branded the roller skating races being held at Pittsburg as "outlaw races," and has issued an edict bringing the participants of the events under the ban of the International Skating association, disqualifying them from future participation in roller skating events in the United States and Canada.

Chicago Skater Quits at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The winners tonight in the semi-finals of the mile championship roller races were: Ed. Burke of Brooklyn, Joe Gendron, the Canadian champion, and Jack Woodward of Pittsburg. Time, 3:06. In the second heat H. McIlrath of Chicago quit for some unexplained reason in the second heat. He was not in the running and appeared to lack steam entirely.

HIGH SCHOOL FIVES REACH SEMI-FINALS IN LEAGUE PLAY.

Austin, South Chicago, and Lake Teams Clinch the Leadership in Their Respective Divisions.

Games in the High School Basketball league yesterday determined the final standing of the leadership of the three divisions, and Austin, South Chicago, and Lake now are eligible for the semi-final round, which is to take place Jan. 24 at the Central Y. M. C. A. These teams won their contests yesterday. South Chicago had a narrow escape in its conflict with Hyde Park, the final score standing 15 to 14. The blue and white squad gave the South Chicago team the surprise of the year, and it was an uphill battle from the start. Kemp proved to be the star of the contest, while Bonner and Bullock also performed cleverly. Lineup:

| South Chicago [15]. | | Hyde Park [14]. |
| Eberley, Stein | Right forward | Gedney |
| Ramsey | Left forward | Bonner |
| Stein, Thomp'n | Center | Kemp |
| Gerber | Left guard | Bullock |

Baskets—Thompson [2], Gedney, Bonner [2], Kemp. Free throws—Stein [9], Thompson, Gedney [4], Bonner [2]. Points awarded—South Chicago [1]. Referee—Seitters.

Austin, 33; Lake View, 16.

Austin trimmed Lake View at the Austin gymnasium in a onesided affair, 33 to 16. Ross and D. Babbitt starred for the Austin school and played effective offensive games. A. Babbitt, the left guard of the Austin team, was scored upon for the first time this year, McGinnis getting a basket. Lineup:

| Austin [33]. | | Lake View [16]. |
|---|---|---|
| Ross | Right forward | McGinnis |
| D. Babbitt | Left forward | Wahl |
| Clement | Center | Molander |
| Gilmore | Right guard | Lindstrom |

Baskets—Ross [3], D. Babbitt [3], Clement [2], Gilmore [5], McGinnis, Molander [3], White [2]. Free throws—Gilmore [6], Molander [4]. Points awarded—Austin [1].

Lake, 31; McKinley, 14.

Lake High humbled the McKinley five at the McKinley gymnasium, 31 to 14. Lake had little trouble in scoring, and the result was never in doubt. McKinley made a hard effort in the second half, but could not break up the team work of the stockyards boys. Lineup:

| Lake [31]. | | McKinley [14]. |
|---|---|---|
| Goldstein | Right forward | Fox |
| Eckland | Left forward | Brazen |
| Goettler | Center | Green |
| McCormack | Right guard | Fucik |

Calumet, 18; Curtis, 16.

The Calumet five won a hard earned contest over the Curtis five at the latter's floor in an extra session game, the final score being 18 to 16. The first period ended with Curtis in the lead, 12 to 7. The second half proved to be even more hotly contested, and one minute before the end of the second half the score was 16 to 14 in favor of the Curtis, when Ball made a basket and the score was tied. After five more minutes of play Capt. Drew of Calumet counted a basket from the field and clinched a victory. Thomason was the star of the Curtis team. Lineup:

| Calumet [18]. | | Curtis [16]. |
|---|---|---|
| Drew | Right forward | Hawley |
| Ball | Left forward | Perry |
| Shields | Center | Thomason |
| Griffith | Right guard | Nelson |
| Debb | Left guard | Gabriel |

Baskets—Drew [5], Ball, Shields, Hawley [2], Perry, Thomason. Free throws—Drew [3], Ball.

Crane, 28; Medill, 19.

Crane downed the Medill five at the Crane gymnasium, 28 to 19. The contest was fast and well played. The teamwork of Crane was too much for the Medill team, however. Hoffman, the Crane center, was the leader in offense. Lineup:

| Crane [28]. | | Medill [19]. |
|---|---|---|
| Knudson | Right forward | Tinkus |
| Jarrett | Left forward | Ruekb'g, H. Jarrett, Freedman |
| Hoffman | Center | Himmelblau, Ruekberg |

Field goals—Knudson [3], Hoffman [6], Caldwell, Tinkus [5], Ruekberg, Himmelblau. Free throws—Hoffman [8], Tinkus, Ruekberg, Himmelblau [8]. Points awarded—Crane, 2.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS IN ATHLETIC WAR

Professionalism and Slugging Charged Against Cook County League Fives.

FOUR TEAMS INVOLVED.

President Boynton Calls Meeting of Board of Control to Take Action.

That another fight in the Cook county high school athletic league has been opened was evidenced when it became known yesterday that four teams in the championship basketball race had made charges against each other. Charges of professionalism, slugging, and of unfair officials were entered with the board of control, and a secret meeting of the basketball committee was held in the board of education rooms. The committee decided the matter was serious and should be put before the entire board of control, and President Dr. Boynton has issued a call for a meeting of that body for next Monday afternoon.

Great secrecy has been maintained in order that this fight might not be made public, as the squabbles of the high school athletes in the last year have been numerous and frequent. According to one member of the board of control, Englewood, South Chicago, Lake View, and Oak Park are the leading factors in the new trouble. Englewood, it is said, opened the fight with charges of professionalism against the South Chicago basketball five, which leads the southern section of the league.

Defeat Hurts Englewood.

Englewood is in second place, due to the fact it suffered defeat at the hands of South Chicago last week. South Chicago entered a counter protest against Englewood, asserting the members of that team slugged openly in the contest to such an extent that certain players of the South Chicago team were injured.

Lake View and Oak Park, both fighting for second honors in the northern section of the league, got mixed up over the decisions of the officials in a game at the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A. on Jan. 6. This game was won by Oak Park's team, 16 to 15, after one of the hardest fought battles of the season. It happened, however, no league referee was present, and in order to play other officials had to be chosen. They were selected to the satisfaction of both teams, it was said, and an agreement was signed by the boys of the teams that the decisions of the officials should stand. The Lake View boys when defeated declared the officials were incompetent. Hence, a protest was lodged with the committee.

Similar Charge Last Year.

It will be remembered a similar charge was made last year by Austin against Evanston when Charles Dean of the Central A. A. U. acted as an official in the game. Austin's protest was sustained by the board of control. This was followed by the withdrawal of Evanston from the league and the latter team never has entered any sport sanctioned by the Cook county board of control. Oak Park now contemplates the same action if the protest goes against them. The loss of Oak Park from the league would hit the organization, as it is one of the foremost schools in local athletics.

Hinsdale, 39; Chicago Latin, 18.

The Hinsdale High school team defeated Chicago Latin school at the latter's gymnasium, 39 to 18. Keith and Clark played the best game for Hinsdale. Lineup:

| Hinsdale H. S. [39]. | | Chicago Latin [18]. |
|---|---|---|
| Clark | Right forward | Blair |
| Blodgett | Left forward | Dickinson |
| Keith | Center | Matz |
| Dean | Left guard | Bryan |
| Holverscheid | Right guard | Gallauer |

Field goals—Keith [7], Clark [4], Dean [4], Holverscheid [2], Matz [3], Bryan, Gallauer. Free throws—Clark [3], Matz [8]. Points awarded—Hinsdale, 1. Referee—Watson. Umpire—Sprague. Played at Chicago Latin. Time of halves—20 minutes.

Hull House Beats Muscatine.

Muscatine, Ia., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The Hull house basketball team of Chicago tonight defeated Company C of Muscatine, 27 to 26, in a game full of spectacular play.

PRESS SENATE FOR 7 GAMES.

Illinois Students to Urge University Officials to Reconsider Their Vote on Short Football Schedule.

Champaign, Ill., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois senate is being pressed to change its stand on the seven game proposition for football, and if the movement succeeds the enlarged schedule may pull through, Illinois' change of vote being enough, it is said.

Daily Illini, the student organ, today intimates the action of the senate in overruling the unanimous vote of the four faculty members of the board of athletic control was, more or less, a slap in the face. The senate is composed of the deans and heads of the departments.

Plans for the diversity of sports and encouragement of the lesser ones will suffer from lack of funds if seven games are not allowed. The student sentiment may bring about the desired change of base.

Central Cubs Defeat Kenosha.

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The Central Y. M. C. A. Cubs basketball team of Chicago defeated the strong Kenosha Y. M. C. A. five here tonight, 38 to 37. The game was hard fought and won by the Chicago team in the last minute of play.

IN THE WAKE OF THE NEWS.

BY HEK

Chicago's far flung battle line made good at both ends, McFarland on the extreme right and Barry on the extreme left, while Nelson put a coat of varnish on his fading glory in the center. Pugilistically speaking, this is at least a good place to hail from. In other respects one has a better chance to be sprung if caught with a kit of burglar tools in his possession than another who is seen looking at a set of boxing gloves in a store window.

Still it might be possible to pull off a few diluted pink tea affairs in the tolerant and good natured suburbs if the professional "promotes," with their garish letter heads, extravagant claims and noisome presence, would not insist on stepping in and crabbing it.

In an entertaining talk on reform and reformers and the vitality of the sport to which for so many years he has been such a conspicuous ornament Edward Corrigan is quoted as saying that "the best thing for racing would be to close up all the poolrooms." In this connection one may find in his churlish nature to ask why Mr. Corrigan did not think of this when he was keeping his Hawthorne racetrack open throughout the blackest of black winters to furnish an excuse for Joe Ullman's foreign jinney. That was different, of course.

It is strange what lofty ideas some persons conceive after the harm has been done.

The formal brushing aside of Charles S. Bush, the founder and for so many years the callous business front of the Crescent City Jockey club, was attended with scant ceremony at the annual meeting of the stockholders of that institution. It was not necessary for Mr. Bush to brace himself for the shock. That came a long time ago when his authority was discredited and his official position practically abolished. Mr. Bush lost out with his associates because he failed to bow to the superior judgment of the affluent refugees, who came to look upon his find as a good thing which only needed their particular kind of advanced cultivation. Mr. Bush is an old man, but he is hale and hearty and may live to see the finish.

A skimming slant at the exhaustive details may reveal the fact that Michigan simply balked at the imposition of excessive reub sterilization.

The unkindest part of it is the jubilation of the alumni and the student body at breaking away from us.

Packey McFarland appears to have enough class to improve upon the good impression he has made in Boston. That is about the best that can be said about a professional athlete.

And speaking about professional athletes, did you ever hear a pure and wholesome amateur unbosom himself?

O, yes, Mr. Bush is still a steward of the Western Jockey club. In like manner so are Stoney Montgomery and George W. Perkins.

The Cubs are promised a junket to Cuba next spring. Contemplation of this ought to ameliorate the rigors of the back gallery rooms of Vicksburg.

As to winter sports, betting on the next one who signs furnishes an engaging proposition.

In the promulgation of contracts President Comiskey has handed us the hoofs and the horns. The choice cuts are still on the fire.

The south is on the eve of an important discovery. Fred Schmidt is going down there to manage a ball team.

The disquieting word "gambling" is being bandied about quite freely in the published reports of racing in Los Angeles. Does this presage an attack of wavelitis, or is somebody being slighted?

Here's hoping that Mose Goldblatt will be as much of a revelation to himself as he will be to the natives when he hits Oakland.

Tommy Burns declares that the only colored fighter he will take on is Jack Johnson. This lets out Joe Walcott and Chocolate Watkins.

Billy Bissett, formerly manager of the wise thought department of John A. Drake's racing entourage, has swarmed on New Orleans. It may now be considered expedient to make everything 3 to 5.

It is rather cruel to remark that it takes Clarence McDowell a long time to cool out after the glorious shock of reappointment.

The secretary of the Union Cycliste Internationale requests us to inform all federations, organizers of races and velodromes interested that following the confirmation of the decision of the National Cycling association, Jacquelin, a French racer, is suspended until a new order shall have been promulgated. Therefore, if Jacquelin tries to butt in it is your duty to take up his badge and hand him over to the gens d'armes.

Here is something possibly you overlooked: In the Tir aux Pigeons at Monte Carlo M. Mackintosh, M. Davis, and M. Spalding accounted for all their birds and agreed to divide the top prize of 1,300 francs. No particular significance attaches to this except the animadversion that in this highly disinfected country we can't have a tir aux crockery blue rocks without first chloroforming the blue rocks.

CURRENCY REFORM MOVE WINS ALLY.

Illinois Manufacturers' Body to Descend on Washington to Urge Legislation.

BOOSTS ISSUE BANK IDEA.

Stilwell Tells Delegates Such an Institution Would Make "Run" a Curiosity.

Plans for sending a large delegation representing the Illinois Manufacturers' association to Washington during the present session to work for the passage of currency legislation were formulated yesterday, at a mass meeting and luncheon of the association, at the Grand Pacific hotel. The delegation will confer with Speaker Cannon, Senator Cullom, Senator Hopkins and members of the lower house from Illinois upon voicing a demand for congressional action.

The plan, which had been considered by the directors of the association and which was presented for ratification of the members of the association, was received enthusiastically and a resolution was adopted unanimously naming the entire membership of the organization as the delegation to visit Washington.

The plan of the directors was introduced by Fred W. Upham, president of the association and chairman of the meeting, with the recommendation that it be accepted as soon as possible. The other speakers were Arthur E. Stillwell, president of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway company, and Congressman Madden.

Mr. Stillwell, in an address on "The Crisis and the Remedy," presented a plan for creating an elastic currency. Congressman Madden assured the members of the association that their delegation to Washington would receive the support and coöperation of Illinois representatives in congress in any plan to obtain financial and currency legislation.

Add Emphasis to Plea.

"In asking you to consider the advisability of a delegation going to Washington to confer with Speaker Cannon, Senator Cullom, Senator Hopkins, and the members of the lower house from Illinois in reference to the importance of taking action at this session of congress on the currency question," said Mr. Upham, "the directors were not in doubt as to the wisdom of the move, but they felt that unless a sufficient number of members were willing to send a representative the purpose of the trip would not have the desired result. It was believed that by calling a meeting, putting the matter to you face to face, and explaining the importance of the mission, more enthusiasm would be instilled into the undertaking and the delegation would be large enough to make the desired impression upon our representatives at Washington. Every congressional district in the state should be represented on the delegation by manufacturers who have this currency question at heart and know how important it is congress should act at this session."

Need Financial Insurance.

Arthur E. Stillwell, the next speaker, was introduced by Chairman Upham as the man who "is building 1,659 miles of railroad on this continent without appealing to Wall street for aid."

"Let us look upon the currency system from the risk standpoint," said Mr. Stillwell. "Business men know they cannot conduct their business without insurance against loss. Now, with our bum financial system, such is more of a patchwork than a system we need financial insurance. The plan which I propose requires no radical change in our financial system and is rather an auxiliary to it than a revolution in the banking system.

"The plan which I have drafted is this: Have congress pass a bill incorporating the United States Bank of Discount, to be a bank of issue, with a capital of $300,000,000; have the national banks subscribe for the stock exclusively, and provide that the stock can be used with the United States government, in order to secure circulation, in the same manner that government bonds now are used; every national bank to be required to invest one-fourth of its capital in the stock of this bank; provide that the stock shall draw interest at the rate of 3 per cent and that if the interest is not earned (a remote contingency) the government will make up the deficit.

Gives National Banks Credit.

"The United States Bank of Discount will issue its currency in the following way only:

"Every national bank will have credit with the National Bank of Discount for an amount equal to its capital and surplus. This credit may be used as follows:

"When the crops are to be moved, additional money is required. Suppose, for instance, a bank at Topeka, Kas., has a capital of a quarter of a million dollars, and this bank wishes to avail itself of the credit which it has with the United States Bank of Discount, the amount being equal to its capital and surplus, $450,000.

"The Topeka bank takes to the Kansas City clearing house, which is the representative of the Bank of Discount in the section, a quarter of a million dollars of its best paper or bonds; the clearing house passes upon the collateral, gives a certificate to the Topeka bank, stating that it is entitled to $450,000 worth of bank notes, to be issued by the United States Bank of Discount. The Topeka bank sends this certificate on to the United States Bank of Discount, and receives $450,000 of circulation, paying 5 per cent on the currency thus issued. One-half of this issue must be retired in six months and the balance in one year, or the bank must be liquidated if it is unable to retire the issue in that time. When the bank wishes to pay off the $450,000, it sends this amount of national bank notes [not gold or silver certificates] to the United States Bank of Discount, and its collateral is returned by the Kansas City clearing house, on order of the United States Bank of Discount.

"This plan immediately creates an elasticity to the currency of the country equal to the capital and surplus of all the national banks in the United States.

"One of the most important features of the United States Bank of Discount will be the insurance of all deposits in national banks.

Sees Financial Blessings.

This bank would accomplish the following results:

(1) An elasticity to the currency, which will enable the banks to take care of the needs of the country during the time of moving crops.

(2) A stability to the national banks, as they could at all times call upon the United States Bank of Discount for currency to the extent of their capital and surplus.

(3) The insurance of all deposits would result in keeping a large amount of money in the banks which is now kept in safe deposit vaults.

(4) This bank could never become a monopoly, as it does business only with national banks, and not with the public.

(5) This bank will be located at Washington, and will not be under the control of any one political party, but will be controlled by all the national banks of the United States.

(6) It will receive no deposits except those of the government.

(7) The whole country cannot then be made to suffer by the fighting among the men who have been caught in Wall street. Each bank will know what it can depend upon in time of need.

"Oklahoma already has passed a law guaranteeing all bank accounts, and the general insurance of bank accounts is bound to sweep over the country within a few years. If a democratic or a republican nominee for the presidency would adopt as his platform the betterment of the currency system and the financial question he would not need any other platform or issue to sweep the country."

COLONISTS' RATES TO BE MADE

Transcontinental Lines Agree Again to Reduced Fare.

OPEN MARCH 1 TO APRIL 20.

Roosevelt to Confer with Railroads on Telegraphers' Hours.

The financial depression in Wall street and other money centers has induced the transcontinental railroads to offer colonists' rates again this spring. The announcement was made yesterday that the necessary tariffs would be filed soon and be effective from March 1 to April 20.

There was a strong attempt in both the transcontinental and the western passenger associations to eliminate these rates this year. Several of the lines refused to make such an agreement and the proposition fell through. The Harriman lines, Santa Fé, and the Rock Island were the leaders in this opposition, and since they have announced that the rates will be put in, all the other roads will have to file similar tariffs.

It is expected that the coming year will be a record breaker in both the colonist and home seeker business. The past records show that in periods of financial depression the railroads tapping regions where cheap land is still found do a thriving business.

Expect Many to Go West.

"The old adage, that it's an ill wind which blows no good, is aptly illustrated in the western land business," said a traffic official of the Harriman lines yesterday. "Even if the backbone of the panic is broken there is bound to be a period of depression, as it is a presidential year, and the men who have a few thousand, or a few hundred dollars even, will look to land as a good investment. The west is filling up rapidly, and each satisfied settler attracts one or two more. Moreover, irrigation has shown that the western land is extremely fertile."

To prove that unsettled financial conditions prove beneficial to the land agent, figures were produced showing that in 1903, which was a slack business year, the Southern Pacific handled 93,547 passengers on colonists' rates. Last year the same road handled 65,201 passengers on the same rates. These colonists' rates are, perhaps, the best indication of the number of actual settlers, as they are second class tickets and good for but one way. The homeseeker rates, on the other hand, are good for first class tickets and for round trips only.

There will be a slight increase in colonists' rates this year. The maximum from Chicago will be $38, as against $33 last year, and $49.20 for the full first class one way fare.

Will Consider Telegraphers' Hours.

It developed yesterday that the conference between President Roosevelt and the vice presidents in charge of operation of several of the western lines, which has been set for Jan. 27, has to do with the nine hour railroad telegrapher law. This law takes effect March 1 and provides that after that date nine hours shall constitute a day's work for a railroad telegrapher. Since it is impossible to divide equally the twenty-four hours in the day by nine the operation of the law will be to restrict the working day of telegraphers to eight hours. The operating officials claim it will be impossible to comply with the law at this time, and if they are compelled to put in inexperienced telegraphers the result may be disastrous to train service.

Railroads Defend Freight Rates.

The railroads in the Transcontinental Freight association are preparing to defend their action in demanding a 20 per cent increase in the freight rates when the shipper will not release them from claims for damages to goods while in transit. Shippers on the Pacific coast have announced their intention of contesting the rule, which they declare is in effect a flat increase of 20 per cent in the freight rates. The railroads contend the 20 per cent additional is to cover insurance.

Bennett being appointed upon application of the Havlin Realty company, which owns the hotel building. The hotel company agreed to the receivership. PARKERSBURG, W. VA.—John H. Chapman of Sutton was today appointed receiver for R. M. Smith & Co., wholesale lumber dealers. The company's assets are given as $500,000 and its liabilities as $350,000. # WALKING

Once an effort;
Now a real Pleasure.

Read below.

Walking, especially in the early morning, is fine exercise, if one is robust enough to really enjoy it. If not, it is burdensome.

A lady at Blount Springs, Ala., where the water and fresh air did not seem to build her up as she hoped, found that Grape-Nuts food was just what she needed to give strength. She writes:

"Circumstances have made it necessary for me and my family to board for the past five years and during that time I have suffered greatly from indigestion, improper and poorly cooked food being the evident cause of my trouble.

"Indigestion had become chronic and complications arose so that I lived for months at a time on raw eggs; could not even take wine, brandy or milk—the latter souring on my stomach. I tried about every known remedy and had been here for a month, drinking the water and walking morning, noon and night, trying to get relief.

"Accidentally I heard of Grape-Nuts and began to eat the food. After about three weeks on this food, together with the exercises, I found the greatest relief. First noticeable in the morning walk and early rising, which before had been done with the greatest possible effort, but now have become a positive pleasure—with a gain of 10 lbs.

"Since using this food and being so improved I meet others also who have used it with like results. One lady who had been a great sufferer from nervous and stomach troubles has been entirely relieved and continues to use Grape-Nuts daily in her family." "There's a Reason."

'GOD HELP CHURCH' IS MINISTER'S CRY

Graham Taylor, Head of Chicago Commons, Deplores "Sorrowful Plight."

DISASTER IN DIVISION.

"So Occupied Saving Themselves from Each Other Forget to Save the Town."

With two ministers on the platform behind him and half a dozen more sprinkled among the club women in his audience, Graham Taylor, head resident of Chicago commons, gave the church in America the most vigorous kind of scoring yesterday.

Prof. Taylor, who himself is a Congregational minister, talked to the Chicago Woman's club in the afternoon in the course of a symposium on "The Religious Basis of Social Work." He was preceded on the program by the Rev. Herman Page, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, who discussed the topic, "How Much Does Social Work Depend Upon the Church?"

"I would like to go the whole way with Mr. Page," said Prof. Taylor, "and say, as he has said, that if you can bring a man to know God he will love his fellow men. But the forces of righteousness have been divided until the churches are so occupied savings themselves from each other that they forget to save the town.

"The church—well, God help it! That's the sorrowful plight in which we are. And I say it as one who mourns over the loss of prestige of one who has been its mother. But there's no use in blinking that fact. It's stern."

Ministers Take to Flight.

At the close of the formal program Mrs. I. S. Blackwelder, president of the club, called on three of the ministers in the audience to "say a few words." As she called each name successively some one near the door announced, "He's gone!" A ripple of laughter passed among the club women, but Prof. Taylor did not smile. Two of those who "retired" were the Rev. W. A. Bartlett of the First Congregational church and the Rev. John Thompson of the Hyde Park Methodist church.

"Whatever may be the ideal state of affairs," Prof. Taylor had said, "it remains a fact that the ecclesiastical administration of religion has hardly ever been carried out on this basis of the social nature of religion of which we have been talking. Our country is full of communities of Christians that are not Christian communities.

"This is a terrible, terrible thing. I can take you into a well known university town in which possibly two-thirds of the population are connected with a prominent branch of the American church—and it is absolutely a pagan town in its business and social relations.

"An editor of an English theological journal said recently in an editorial: 'The church has held itself aloof from the world, and now the world is holding itself aloof from the church.' That is the awful fact in town after town, city after city, class after class here in the United States.

"I do not think the divorce can last. The time has come to bridge that breach between the world and the church—for the church to become more worldly and not less worldly.

"I know what I am talking about. I'm training men for the ministry. Ladies and gentlemen, after they're trained, they won't go into it. They go out and they don't find a whole man's work in it. And they come reeling back to me with this message. There is absolutely nothing so dreadful as this division of the forces of righteousness against each other."

Yearly Health Inspection.

In an address delivered in the morning before the reform department of the club Health Commissioner Evans advocated the establishment of a yearly physical inspection of every school child in Chicago. The practice, he said, is in effect in New York and many other cities, but never has been carried out in Chicago.

PRESCRIBES SINGING AS CURE.

"One of the First Requisites of Spirit of Health," Says Bishop Fallows to His Club.

A regular "diet" of singing was the latest addition to his prescription of "Christian psychology" made by Bishop Samuel Fallows at the meeting of his health club at St. Paul's Reformed Episcopal church last evening. He insisted that every person present should join in the first hymn.

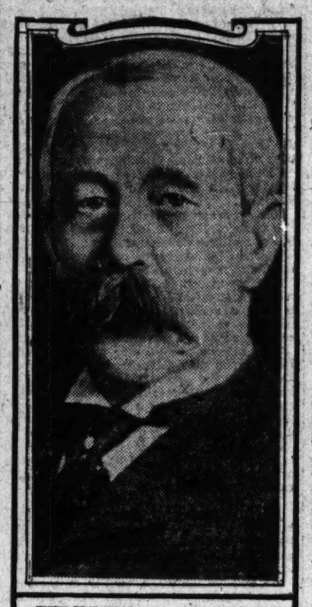

"I want to hear every voice raised," he said. "Singing is one of the first requisites of the spirit of health. It has been recognized by neurologists as a powerful factor in mental condition and has been prescribed in cases of nervous prostration and melancholia. We should sing at every opportunity."

Dr. Harold N. Moyer was to have addressed the meeting, but was called from the city late in the afternoon.

Pool for Wisconsin Tobacco.

Eau Claire, Wis., Jan. 15.—[Special.]—President Holmes of the Wisconsin Tobacco Growers' association, in conference with the directors here, says a representative of the association will go into the various districts of the state to help the grower to pool the unsold portion of the 1907 crop.

Frank B. Tobey, for ten years president of the Chicago Society for Ethical Culture, was elected its honorary president yesterday afternoon at the annual meeting. E. S. Fechheimer was chosen president, Louis M. Greeley vice president, E. Woltersdorf treasurer, T. W. Allinson corresponding secretary, and John F. Turner recording secretary. The board of directors will be composed of the five executive officers and Mrs. William Healy, Miss Juniata Stafford, C. S. Schoenmann, and Franklin Rudolph. A new series of lectures will be begun by the society Sunday morning at Handel hall. Leslie Willis Sprague, leader of the Brooklyn Ethical society, is to give four lectures, the first on "The Ethical Significance of Henrik Ibsen's Writings."

HAD TO BE BOARDERS' FRIEND, SAYS WIFE MINISTER ACCUSES

Mrs. Claire Iler at Divorce Trial Denies She Favored One Lodger Over Others —Didn't Put Arms Around Neck.

Conduct unexpected from an evangelist, and conduct unbecoming an evangelist's wife, were the actions of Hardee Iler and Clara L. Iler, according to their rival stories told at the hearing of the woman's divorce suit before Judge Walker yesterday. The wife had charged that her ministerial husband used such violence towards her that she had to leave him. The husband retorts that Mrs. Iler was too friendly with other men, and posed in male attire with one of them on a roof.

The husband was especially suspicious of Walter Graham, a boomer at their home, 202 North Clark street.

"Were you not friendly to Graham?" Attorney David D. Stansbury asked.

"No, not any more than I was to the others. A boarding house keeper has got to be friendly with every one of her boarders."

"Did you not put your arms about the neck of Graham and say, in the hearing of a certain young man: 'This is my fellow,'?"

"I should say not," she answered, vehemently.

In the afternoon Iler took the stand. He told of an instance when Graham, having been ordered to remain away from the house, returned and was discovered.

"After he had left I found our marriage certificate on the floor," Iler said. "I showed it to her, and said: 'Claire, doesn't that appeal to you? Your name and mine are on there.' 'No,' she said. 'All right, girlie,' I said; 'it's that Walter Graham. Take him and may God bless you, and may you be happy with him.'"

SUE WIDOW WHO FINDS WILL.

Relatives of Arthur Farrar, Who Died in 1893, Claim a Share in Estate.

Fannie M. Farrar, 505 Washington boulevard, widow of Arthur Farrar, was made defendant in a suit in the Circuit court yesterday by five heirs of her husband, who assert they have not been given what is due them, because of the failure to find Farrar's will until fourteen years after his death.

Farrar died Nov. 2, 1893, leaving property worth more than $250,000. Except for about $10,000, the property was given to the widow and daughters. The two brothers and three sisters of Farrar are the complainants in the present suit. They are J. Hamilton Farrar of Chicago, Oscar, Emma, and Lillian Farrar, and Jennie Green Johnson.

The will was found Jan. 24, 1907, and Mrs. Farrar was appointed executrix. The complainants assert they made a request on her for their shares in the property, with interest, but, they charge, Mrs. Farrar refused to grant their claim.

REFUGE BARS MEN WHO AVOID WORK

Tramps Who Wander Into Tribune Emergency Home Fall Into Police Hands.

COLD WAVE DUE TODAY.

Chilly Blasts from Northwest May Pack the Lodging Houses with Army of Idle.

There was a slight falling off in the number of the lodgers at THE TRIBUNE emergency lodging house last night, due to the weeding out of the professional tramps and others who refuse to work six hours for three days' board and lodging. At 10 p. m. 250 men had "registered," as compared with 500 to 600 on previous nights.

Manager Alexander Cleland said that nearly every man in the house had done some work recently, either on the streets or for pay, and could show a record of willingness to labor.

He explained that the men sent to the street department were not worked hard like men who work for pay.

Frank W. Solon, assistant superintendent of streets, was at THE TRIBUNE lodging house in the morning, inspecting the men and arranging that they should not be given work beyond their strength. Many of them are unused to heavy toil and for these and all others allowance is made.

Gives Shoes to Many.

Among the lodgers there are many men so poorly clad that they are unfitted for outdoor work. Generally speaking, their most pressing need is shoes, and during the day Manager Cleland equipped the needy with several hundred pairs of shoes and gloves and three dozen pairs of socks.

Since the opening of the house jobs at living wages have been found for a number of its inmates. A farmer living near Lemont appeared in the afternoon and hired eight men at $3 a day to chop wood for him. Other employers of labor have appeared and are continuing to apply at the lodging house for help.

The institution fed 1,000 men during the day, including a number from the municipal lodging house, with which the management of the emergency house coöperates.

An incident of the day was the discovery of three tramps with police records among the "guests" of the night before. They arrived in an intoxicated condition and in the morning refused to work. The police took them to the Desplaines street court, where they each were fined $25.

Contributes His Check.

Among the contributions received by Mr. Cleland was a check for $1 from John Ferndell. It was accompanied by a note saying the amount was paid the writer by THE TRIBUNE for a news story and he wanted to pass it on for the relief of the unemployed. Several gifts of clothing also were received.

Quarters for the shelter of the homeless probably will be taxed to their capacity tonight, for the weather bureau predicted this would be the coldest day of the season. A blizzard in the northwest has sent the mercury below the zero point and covered the ground with snow.

The storm is due in Chicago and is expected to produce a temperature in the neighborhood of 10 degrees above zero. The storm and cold wave will be of short duration, as the wind will shift to the south and the temperature rise again.

HUNT BACK ON CITY PAY ROLL; JUDGE DECIDES HIS SUIT.

Finds Inspector Was Illegally Deprived of Office and Salary—No Signs of Any Appeal from the Ruling.

Police Inspector Nicholas Hunt is once more a legal as well as an actual member of the force. That means he is now entitled to draw the pay which has accrued since he was restored to his former rank last summer, but which the civil service commission refused to allow him until the courts had decided. He will continue legally as well as actually on the force unless somebody takes an appeal from the decision given by Judge Tuthill yesterday, and that does not seem likely.

The decision was in a suit for mandamus brought by the inspector to compel the commission to certify to his name on the pay rolls, and Judge Tuthill ordered that the writ issue. In doing so he said:

"I can have no doubt, assuming the facts to be as stated in the petition, that Inspector Hunt was by an arbitrary act of the superintendent of police unlawfully attempted to be removed, and hold that such attempt was without legal effect. The demurer to the petition is overruled."

Thomas O'Malley, a patrolman at the West Chicago avenue station, who was accused of getting intoxicated and then shooting and painfully injuring a citizen named James Madden, was discharged from the force by the trial board.

LECTURES AND ENTERTAINMENTS.

Dr. C. T. Hood will read a paper on "The Diagnosis and General Management of Croupous Pneumonia," before the Chicago Homeopathic Medical society this evening at its meeting in the Public Library building.

Edward A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin, author of "Sin and Society," will speak before the City club Saturday afternoon at a long-table luncheon. His subject will be "The Problem of Individual Accumulation of Wealth in the United States."

United States District Attorney Sims and Judge Fake will be the principal speakers at the fifth annual banquet of the men's bible class of the Englewood Christian church on Jan. 24.

The twenty-first biennial convention of the district grand lodge No. 2 of the Independent Order of Free Sons of Israel will begin at the Sherman house on Jan. 19 and continue three days.

GOOD FOR NEW YORK CITY.

The United States 2 per cent bonds are selling at 105. If it were not that they are usable as security for bank notes they would be below par. The ordinary investor does not look on 2 per cent as an adequate return. If it were possible to use other securities as government bonds are used, would their value be enhanced? The natural presumption is that it would be, even though such securities could be utilized as a basis for currency on emergency occasions only.

The securities whose use is authorized by the Aldrich measure are good state, county, and municipal bonds and certain high grade railroad bonds. State bonds may almost be considered a negligible quantity. They aggregate only $220,000,000. The municipalities are the heavy borrowers. In 1902, according to a statement of the bureau of the census, the debts of cities, counties, and minor civil divisions amounted to $1,629,000,000. Of that indebtedness more than half was accredited to the New England states, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

The Greater New York is the chief debtor among American municipalities. At the close of 1906 its funded debt was $716,000,000, of which $525,000,000 was held by the public and $191,000,000 by the sinking funds. The debt has grown since then. New York City securities could and would be used largely by the local national banks if they were authorized to use them as a basis for currency.

If the Aldrich bill were to pass as it stands, and an artificial value should be imparted to the securities specified by it, it seems as if the city of New York would be a conspicuous beneficiary. Presumably it would be able to borrow on better terms. Its last loan, made shortly before the panic began, was at 4½ per cent.

DEFECTIVE STREET SERVICE.

The prevailing discontent with the inefficiency of the superintendent of streets is abundantly justified. It is not the first time that this official has been under fire of popular censure. He would have been removed from his position seven years ago by superior officers of his own political faith had it not been for the intervention of the court. His absence from his post of duty when he is likely to be most needed in order to take a pleasure trip to a sunnier clime is but one of the grounds of criticism.

The superintendent of streets has one of the most responsible positions in the city administration. He receives a salary of $5,000 for serving the people of Chicago in a capacity which has closer relationship to the individual interest of citizens than almost any other branch of municipal government. He has held the position for a long time, and for that reason should be one of the most efficient of public servants. By this time he should be thoroughly acquainted with the needs of his department, should have his work perfectly organized, and should be able to meet emergencies, such as that of a heavy snowfall, with a businesslike energy that would meet the hearty commendation of all.

He has at his disposal one of the largest amounts of money set aside for a municipal department in the annual appropriations. This amount has steadily increased as the years of his incumbency have passed by until his budget allowance is more than $3,000,000. But there has been no corresponding increase in efficiency. If part of the downtown region a company of citizens, disgusted with the inadequacy of public service under his direction, is carrying on the work of street cleaning through a bureau of their own creation. In many other sections neighborhood improvement associations have been organized to accomplish things which ought to be done through this department as part of its regular and effective service. These private associations, working downtown and in residence districts, have secured better results at less expense than ever before under public officials.

Such a condition of affairs is a standing testimony to inefficiency of organization and inadequacy of administration. It is no reflection upon Mr. Hanberg to say that the work of the bureau of streets has outgrown the capacities of a subordinate office under the commissioner of public works. The demands made upon it, the amount of money expended through it, and the possibilities of development it possesses are so great as to warrant a reorganization with a capable man at its head who shall be directly responsible to the mayor, as other heads of departments are.

The taxpayers of Chicago have a right to expect a degree of efficiency far beyond that which they have been securing during recent years. It is a constant reflection upon city government that the people are forced to organize privately to get an economical and satisfactory administration of affairs properly belonging to a department of the public service which should be conducted on thoroughly businesslike and effective lines.

THE CURRENCY PROBLEM.

III.

In response to the demands of the situation the bankers' currency commission will meet in Chicago on Saturday, for what specific purpose it is not announced. It may be presumed that inasmuch as the so-called Fowler bill is a product of their labors, a larger number of the commission will agree upon that measure than upon any other plan proposed. But if they are meeting solely for the purpose of reaffirming their faith in their own bill, the conference probably will be fruitless.

Neither the Fowler bill as originally introduced nor the Aldrich bill as it stands can be passed. The advocates of the central bank and those who are inclined to indorse the new bill prepared by Mr. Fowler's committee need not waste their breath in support of either plan. Both measures are too revolutionary, and public opinion is determinedly opposed at this time to anything which savors of a central bank.

It will be of no use to present the advantages of the Canadian currency system, which, however useful in that little country, is hopelessly distasteful to the great majority of American bankers.

There are three plans which are really entitled to the consideration of the commission if it proposes to make a recommendation after the Saturday meeting:

1. The currency commission, or Fowler bill.

2. The Aldrich bill.

3. To legalize the issue of bank notes similar to the clearing house checks, guaranteed by the clearing house committees and secured by collateral approved by them.

The last plan has received less attention than the first two, but is equally entitled to consideration. However, it is dubious if it can get that consideration in congress, because public attention throughout the country and in Washington has been concentrated on the first two plans.

Any legislation which may be had at this session of congress must of necessity be remedial and not radical. It must be in the nature of an amendment to the present system, rather than a substitute for a currency to which the people are accustomed and in which, on the whole, they believe. That would be accomplished by the passage of the Aldrich bill or the Fowler bill, or a measure containing some features of both and excluding those features which are objectionable to the supporters of one measure or the other.

The time has come for sensible men to prepare to do something. All legislation is a result of compromise, and the currency commission can serve the banks and the country best by contributing to a reconciliation of different views in the interest of a practical and moderate reform of the currency.

PNEUMATIC MAIL SERVICE.

There is no question about the value or the desirability of the pneumatic tube mail service. It is one of the approved methods which have been adopted for expediting business. The more extensively the principle is employed in the handling of mail matter the better the service in that important department of modern governmental administration will be. The abandonment in Chicago of a plan which has proved successful in other large cities would be a distinct step backward.

For this reason careful consideration should be given to the plea of the officials of the Chicago Postal Pneumatic company. They claim that the terms of the ordinance relating to their enterprise are too severe. They have discovered this in connection with attempts to sell bonds for extensions. They have constructed about nine miles of trunk lines and have had the thought of an ultimate service in Chicago covering a hundred miles. But men of means refuse to buy the bonds because of the provision in the ordinance which makes the city the owner of the physical equipment of the company at the expiration of the twenty year term for which the privileges are granted.

The ordinance has fifteen years yet to run. It contains a 5 per cent compensation clause, although in other places the installation of the pneumatic service has been deemed such a gain to business interests that perpetual ordinances without compensation have been offered to secure it. The company declares its willingness to pay the compensation demanded by the Chicago ordinance, in spite of the unfavorable comparison with the propositions of other cities. It does not oppose the idea of eventual municipal ownership. But it does believe that the confiscation clause should be omitted in favor of one which will provide for purchase at a fair price of the plant when the franchise term expires.

As a still further hardship it is set forth that in case of the construction of a subway, which now seems a necessity of the immediate future, it will be necessary to go to great expense for relaying the tubes in the subway as provided in the ordinance. An enterprise of this character cannot be financed without large outlay. Money will not be forthcoming for a project which does not promise a safe investment and a sure return. The considerations which the company officials mention make their appeal worthy of careful examination.

If it is found that the claims of these men are well supported and that insistence upon the terms of the ordinance, which, in practical working, have proved too severe, will mean the abandonment of the service now given, some adjustment should be made. Chicago cannot afford to lose a single bit of the machinery for expediting business which it is using now.

TROUBLE IN STORE FOR CUBA.

President Roosevelt informs congress that "by or before Feb. 1, 1909, we shall have turned over the island to the president and congress to be elected next December by the people of Cuba." What, if anything, has congress to say to that? It has done nothing as yet to indicate that it wishes to be included in the "we" who are to turn Cuba over to a government necessarily feeble and unstable.

It is the executive department of the government alone, as represented by the president and secretary of war, which is resolved to give the Cubans another opportunity to prove that they cannot govern themselves. The American public, knowing more of Cubans than a few years ago, is opposed to repeating past blunders.

Cuba is peaceful and prosperous. Exports and imports are increasing. That is due to American occupation. Remove the cause and the effect will disappear. The Cubans will neglect industry for politics, and after one set of fellows shall have held office for a short time another set of fellows, proclaiming that liberty is being trampled under foot and that free institutions are in danger, will seize their machetes and start an insurrection. Then the United States will have to intervene again.

If President Roosevelt shall install an independent Cuban government before he goes out of office next year he will have left to his successors a legacy of trouble in the shape of independent and turbulent Cuba, indifferent to sanitation, internal improvements, or anything calculated to build up the industries of the island. Even if the factions should not get to fighting for the offices, the Cuban government would be a feeble, inert thing. The American people never would cease to regret that they had let the control of a treasure house of wealth pass into incapable hands.

"Let well enough alone" should be the presidential policy concerning Cuba. Unfortunately it is not, and unless congress shall protest vigorously peace and prosperity will get ready to leave Cuba next year.

IN A MINOR KEY.

How It Might Have Happened.

"Why, Col. Corpuscle, are you alive yet?"

"Am I alive yet? Why shouldn't I be, sir?"

"You must pardon my surprise, colonel. I could almost swear I read your obituary a year ago!"

"It is quite likely you did, sir. The papers down my way have had my obituary in type for years, and it is possible that one of them may have run it in by accident."

His Limited Powers.

"You, my friend!" bellowed the orator, leaning over the desk and pointing his long finger at the honest old farmer in the front row. "You realize, do you not, that you occupy a prouder position than any monarch of the old world? You can make and unmake men! You can adopt or defeat the policies of presidents, curb the ambition of the demagogue, and in the last analysis you can declare war or peace, punish monopoly, reward patriotic endeavor, and almost change the face of the world! You are an American sovereign in your own right, and you know it!"

"It's a durned lie!" indignantly answered the honest old farmer. "I'm the only greenbacker in the whole township, and I hain't got influence enough to wad a popgun!"

Fame.

"You see that swarthy, undersized man talking to the hostess? He's the celebrated foreigner, Gen. Kalikxiwix, who visited the United States several years ago."

"What is he celebrated for?"

Copyright: 1908: By the Brentwood company, all rights reserved.

SIR ARTHUR VICARS, whose name is just at present much in the public eye in connection with the mysterious disappearance last year of the jeweled regalia of the Order of St. Patrick, of which he is the official custodian, is, as Ulster king of arms, the chief of the heraldic department of Ireland, and as such the principal director of all Irish state ceremonials.

The office of ulster has been in existence since its creation in 1552 by King Edward VI., who appointed a certain Bartholomew Butler, by royal letters patent, to "undertake the care of arms, and to be of service to all good men at home and abroad."

Ulster possesses a greater degree of authority than the garter king of arms in England.

For whereas the latter is subordinate to the duke of Norfolk, who, as earl marshal, is head of the College of Heralds in London, Ulster, in his own sphere, is supreme in Ireland, and responsible only to the crown.

Another point of difference is this: that whereas the College of Heralds in London is only a semi-official corporation, holding office by virtue of a royal charter, the Irish office of arms is a government department.

Sir Arthur's predecessor was Sir Bernard Burke, who was celebrated from one end of Europe to the other as one of the most eminent and at the same time complaisant of genealogists, and the remains on record as the author and originator of "Burke's Peerage," now a standard work of reference.

Sir Arthur Vicars in the same way has taken over the editing of "Lodge's Peerage," a volume which nowadays has acquired quite as much prestige as Burke's.

As Ulster king of arms Sir Arthur has been until now the senior officer of the household of the lord lieutenant and in processions he rides or strides immediately in front of the sword of state.

He decides upon the quality of the candidates for presentation at the viceregal drawing rooms and levees at Dublin castle, and arranges the royal and viceregal entries into Dublin.

He is likewise the permanent officer of the Order of St. Patrick, and his seal of office is necessary to give legal value to patents of Irish peerages and to the appointment to the Order of St. Patrick.

His office is situated in Dublin castle, under the Bedford tower, in the upper quadrangle, immediately facing the principal entrance to the viceregal apartments, and is one of the more modern of the group of buildings which go to make up the castle, although it dates from the beginning of the reign of the Georges—that is to say, some 200 years ago.

Sir Arthur is president and one of the founders of the Kildare Archæological society and also of that quaint body of collectors, the Ex Libris society, who make the gathering of book plates their special hobby.

He is about 37 years of age, possesses a keen sense and fund of humor, is a bachelor, a member of the Kildare club, a son of the late Col. Vicars, who commanded the Sixty-first regiment, and on official occasions wears, with a cocked hat, over a scarlet and gold uniform, a gorgeous tabard, on which are embroidered in gold the royal arms and heraldic devices of Ireland.

If I am giving these data about Sir Arthur Vicars, it is because we are likely to hear a good deal more of him within the next week or so in connection with the official inquiry into the mysterious theft of the regalia of the Order of St. Patrick, which took place on the eve of King Edward's visit to Ireland last year, and prevented the investiture of Lord Castletown as knight of the Order of St. Patrick from taking place.

Sir Arthur is, as I have stated above, the official custodian of the regalia, and it seems that some two or three months ago the government asked for his resignation, on the ground of his having failed to take proper precautions for the safety of the valuables in question.

Sir Arthur declined to resign, demanded a court of inquiry, selected Timothy Healy, M. P., the cleverest of all the members of the nationalist party, as his lawyer, and last week declared with his counsel that he would no longer take part in the meetings of the court of inquiry unless its proceedings were public. His attitude has been that of one who feels his skirts clear, and who declines to be made a scapegoat for the real offender.

It is said that the king is quite as determined as Sir Arthur Vicars for the complete elucidation of this mystery, which has given rise to all sorts of odd stories.

While some of the latter are of an extravagant character, they are all united on one point—namely: that the theft, whether perpetrated for the sake of mere plunder or for the purpose of embarrassing the present liberal viceroy, Lord Aberdeen, and his equally liberal king at arms, Sir Arthur Vicars, is the work of no ordinary criminals, but of men of rank, either by birth or office.

In fact, so convinced have the police been of this that from the outset they have shown a marked disinclination to move in the affair, knowing by sad experience that excessive zeal in such cases is not calculated to recommend them in the eyes of the authorities.

The duc d'Uzes, who is expected here with his duchess to attend the wedding of the latter's brother, the duc de Chaulnes, to Miss Theodora Shonts on Feb. 15 next, holds the rank of premier peer of France.

The precedence of the dukes of Uzes as such dates from the time of Louis XIII., who exacted that all persons bearing titles should register them at court and prove their right thereto by documentary evidence. There being much discussion and conflict as to the priority and superiority of rank and lineage, the king decided that the dukes should enjoy their precedence in accordance with the order of their registration, and that the one who recorded his name first was to have the precedence ever afterwards over the peer who arrived later.

Knowing this, the duke of Uzes and the duke of Luynes set forth almost simultaneously from Paris for the register's office at Versailles, and each strove to reach there before the other.

The duke of Uzes, finding that M. de Luynes was on the point of winning the race, deliberately caused his coachman to drive into the Luynes equipage, upsetting it and its occupants into the ditch. Then, whipping up his horses, he reached the register's office in time to be enrolled as the first peer of the realm.

All the animosity between the dukes de Luynes and the Uzes on this account has died out and the present duc de Luynes, tenth bearer of the title and chief of the family to which his cousin, the duc de Chaulnes, belongs, is married to the only sister of the duke of Uzes.

The duke of Uzes is rich, or will be so when his mother, the dowager duchess, dies. For she owns half of the Veuve Clicquot champagne concern. The famous Widow Clicquot was not of bourgeois birth, as generally believed, but of noble origin, her father having been a Baron Ponsardin.

Had it not been for the topsy turvydom consequent upon the revolution at the close of the eighteenth century it is doubtful whether she would have been permitted by her family to render herself guilty of such a mesalliance as that which she committed in marrying the Rheims banker, Clicquot.

Clicquot was a sort of amateur wine grower, the wines of the Champagne district being at that time little known. He died when his wife was about 28, and his widow thereupon carried on both businesses, developing the wine industry and even inventing a process for clarifying wine.

In 1821 she took into partnership with her a young man of the name of Werle, who was manager of the Clicquot bank, and who had saved it from ruin by an exceedingly clever act of financial foresight. By this time her wines had acquired such a great celebrity that, in conjunction with Werle, she decided to wind up the bank and to invest all its capital in the wine business.

Werle's grandson, now count de Werle, allied by marriage to some of the grandest houses of the French nobility, is still a partner in the Clicquot concern. Mme. Clicquot survived until 1866.

She had only one daughter, married to the comte de Chevigne (author of the famous "Comtes Remois"), and their only daughter became in turn the wife of the comte de Montemart, and mother, therefore, of the dowager duchess of Uzes.

The latter is consequently the great-granddaughter of old Widow Clicquot, and inherited all her property, including the castle of Boursault, in which the old lady died at the age of 90.

THE ALDRICH BILL.

Aldrich Bill Will Not Do.

[The Indianapolis News, Jan. 14.]

The more the scheme of the bill and its probable effects are studied the clearer it becomes that the bill, if it becomes a law, will be only a makeshift; that it will afford only temporary relief, and that only or principally to the New York bankers and their stock jobbing friends. It will not affect the general banking or monetary situation. It will not in the least add to the elasticity of our currency supply. All it will do will be to allow the issue of a fixed and limited amount of currency ($250,000,000 as a maximum) on the basis of certain state, municipal, and railroad bonds deposited with the controller. Before any such issue can be made the controller must decide that it is necessary and expedient and the issue must bear a special tax of 6 per cent.

Manifestly there is nothing automatic or elastic about a plan like that. Manifestly, too, it would be inadequate to afford any large relief to a serious crisis. In a country of so vast a population and so enormous business transactions, what would $250,000,000 amount to in meeting or checking a widespread money panic, even if it could all be issued instantaneously at widely scattered banking centers? It would hardly make an impression, as was shown in the recent stress by the deposits of the treasury.

Sober Second Thought.

[The Indianapolis Star, Jan. 13.]

The inference, not a violent one, is drawn that one object of the [Aldrich] measure is to strengthen the values of so-called savings bank securities which are staples in Wall street and chiefly available by New York banks. We should be likely to see, therefore, competition for these bonds, already in demand for savings banks, and subsequently just what has happened to United States bonds—namely: that their value is made such by their availability for note circulation that they cannot be withdrawn from that use because of the danger of unsettling values.

Whatever its purpose, the effect of the Aldrich bill would be to deny the country for an indefinite future the boon of a banking currency based upon the commercial credit of the country as expressed through its collateral in the banks, automatically and with a minimum of cost, to the needs of business, in place of the present costly system, under which capital has to be locked away, dollar for dollar, for note issues.

Two Financial Schools.

[The Washington Post, Jan. 11.]

We have two schools of finance. One teaches that the government should issue all the paper currency afloat in the land. They would set the printing press a-going whenever panic appears on the exchange.

The other school teaches that it is no more the province of the government to supply the people with a paper currency than it is for the government to furnish the people with boots and shoes.

There is an irrepressible conflict between these two schools, and that issue will be paramount not a great while in the future. Then the thing will be fought to a finish, as was the coinage.

Meanwhile, it is a condition and not a theory before congress. Under our present defective system a remedy similar to that provided for in the Aldrich bill is the only practical resource.

And the chief objection to the bill is that the sum of $250,000,000 emergency currency is not a sufficient amount to meet such a panic as overtook the country last autumn. It would be nowhere in a panic like that of '73 or that of '93.

A Better Bill.

[The Hartford Times, Jan. 10.]

Senator Bulkeley's bill to authorize an emergency currency will be regarded by business men generally as a much safer and stronger measure than the Aldrich bill, for which it may be substituted. It is an improvement upon the Aldrich measure in at least three respects.

First—It does not permit railroad bonds to be deposited with the treasury department.

Second—The Bulkeley bill will permit an aggregate increase of $400,000,000 in the volume of currency instead of $250,000,000.

Third—The Connecticut senator proposes a rate of interest, 10 per cent, which would absolutely compel the retirement of every dollar of the emergency currency at a fixed date, whereas the Aldrich bill names a lower rate, which in the case of many banks might not compel such retirement.

An Adequate Plan.

[The Boston Herald, Jan. 11.]

The new Fowler bill for currency reform, which has been reported to the house committee on banking and currency, is one of the most important contributions which have been made to the discussion of the currency problem. The measure is not simply an emergency remedy. It offers a comprehensive plan of reform. It seeks to go to the root of the trouble and to be a preventive of future evils. Despite the announcement that the scheme of currency legislation to be enacted at this session of congress has been finally determined, measures other than the Aldrich bill deserve consideration. The Aldrich bill is admittedly a makeshift. No one professes that it will reach the cause of the evils in the currency system which it seeks to relieve. The real currency problem is simply postponed. Therefore, the discussion of plans for thorough reform of the currency is not useless.

Aldrich's Financial Freak.

[The St. Paul Dispatch, Jan. 14.]

The Aldrich bill removes that ancient legend ["secured by United States bonds"] from all bank notes, whether they are of the ordinary kind, secured by government bonds, or the india rubber variety. Instead of the old statement it is provided that:

"Such notes shall state upon their face that they will be redeemed by the United States in lawful money upon presentation at the treasury."

There are outstanding today about $700,000,000 of national bank notes and the bill authorizes the floating of $250,000,000 more of bank paper, or about $950,000,000 in all. The banks are and will be required by law to deposit with the government 5 per cent of their issues as a redemption fund, which, in such a case, would be $50,000,000, if the total issue should be $1,000,000,000.

Would it be safe banking for the government to pledge itself to redeem any part of that thousand millions, with only fifty millions in the treasury for that purpose?

Of course the government would have more than a billion dollars' worth of bonds as security, but would it be desirable to invite the necessity of liquidating a great quantity of those bonds at one time?

The effect of a sudden presentation of only a tenth part of the notes, or $100,000,000, can be readily imagined.

Feasible Currency Bill.

[The Milwaukee Sentinel, Jan. 15.]

Our currency reformers are, as we understand it, divided into two main antagonistic camps. The adherents of each may as well admit that no bill entirely satisfactory to either could pass congress. If we are going to get a currency law at all its basis must be a bill so framed as to challenge violent hostility from neither of the opposite extremes of currency reform opinion—in short, a moderate, compromise measure that both can accept without doing violence to principle.

Neither the advocates of the central bank idea nor the advocates of the asset currency idea can prevail. So if we are to have any progress at all, get anything done to meet the demand for legislation calculated to prevent a recurrence of financial stringency, it must be through a bill so temperate or mediate as to stand a chance of enactment.

The Aldrich bill is drawn to meet that practical requirement.

But perhaps the best thing that can be said for the remedial quality of the Aldrich bill is that the fact of public knowledge of the existence of such a law, with its assurance of a reserve power of sound currency expansion, would tend to prevent the scare that causes emergency, and hence the necessity of actual recourse to the emergency currency. Panic is largely apprehension of a "money famine."

Reasons and Dollars.

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

Mme. Tetrazzini Captures Audience.

New York, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini made her first appearance in this city tonight at the Manhattan opera house, singing the music of Violetta Valery in Verdi's opera, "La Traviata."

By reason of the cabled reports of the extraordinary stir caused by her recent performances in London, public curiosity here had been stimulated to the verge of excitement.

The theater was occupied to the limit of its generous capacity by a nervous, eager, bustling throng. Like all New York first night audiences, this assemblage contained a large element with its decisions made up before the curtain rose, so that Mme. Tetrazzini, upon the instant of her appearance, was acclaimed as Patti might have been.

Mme. Tetrazzini came to New York under the most trying of all conditions—silly and extravagant overpraise. It can be said, after tonight's performance, that it did grave injustice to the singer, who has a certain well defined claim to popularity. The audience, ready as it was with an unfailing reception, was moved to vigorous and prolonged applause at the conclusion of the first act.

The cheers and other glad noises could not have been greater had all memories been obliterated, and the new singer's delivery been accepted as the gospel of a new art.

That there was most ominous silence after the duet with Germont in the second act may have been due to real interest in the art of delivering the simple cantibile music with repose, finish, and pathos, or to disappointment at the absence of more feats of coloratura.

Like the traditional Violettas of old time, Mme. Tetrazzini does not appear to be in any immediate danger of wasting away with consumption. Her figure is well nourished and her face is round as a silver moon. But she is a woman of pleasing appearance for all that, and her smile is both generous and frequent.

Her countenance cannot fairly be called mobile or sensitive, but for the workaday conventions of the opera world it will suffice. And, after all, her singing is the thing.

Mme. Tetrazzini has a fresh, clear voice, pure in soprano quality and of sufficient range, though in other rôles it must perhaps disclose its farthest flights above the staff.

The perfectly unworn condition and youthful timbre of this voice are its largest charms, and to these must be added a splendid richness in its upper range.

Indeed, the best part of the voice, as heard this evening, was the G above staff to high C. The B flat in the "Semper Libera" was a tone of which any singer might be proud.

In coloratura Mme. Tetrazzini justified much that has been written about her. She sang staccati with consummate ease, though not with the approved method of breathing.

The descending scales she sang beautifully, with perfect smoothness and clean articulation. The ascending scales of the same number were sung in a manner which would not be tolerated by any reputable teacher in a pupil of a year's standing.

The most notable shortcoming of Mme. Tetrazzini's singing was her extraordinary emission of her lower medium notes. These all were sung with a pinched glottis, with a color so pallid and a tremolo so pronounced that they often were not a bad imitation of the wailing of a cross infant.

It is altogether probable that Mme. Tetrazzini will have a larger measure of real success when she sings the embroidered, mad scene of "Lucia." Greater commendation from the public than it accorded her tonight she can hardly expect.

Her principal associates in the performance were Messrs. Bassi and Ancona, the latter, in his "Di Provenza," contributed a smooth, well considered piece of singing.

The record must be completed with a note that Mr. Hammerstein appeared on the stage to receive his share of the gratulation of the night. Several prima donnas of distinction assisted the lay members in the audience in applauding the newcomer. Mr. Campanini, the brother-in-law of the débutante, conducted.

EDNA, THE PRETTY TYPEWRITER.
A Melodrama in Four Acts.
BY JOHN OLIVER.
Presented in the Criterion Theater, Chicago, Jan. 15, 1908. The Cast:

| | |
|---|---|
| Dave Fairfax | Oscar Grey Briggs |
| Clifford Marlow | M. J. Sheehan |
| Paul Norton | Louis Bell |
| Tom Boynton | John David |
| Moses Lotto | Henry Frey |
| Dan Lane | Wallace Hopper |
| Nora McCune | Susanne M. Wills |
| Kate Burnette | Dorothy La Mar |
| Edna | Marie De Trace |

The audiences at the Criterion theater refuse to take anything for granted. They are naturally suspicious, and although John Oliver, who wrote the story of her past, may know Edna, the pretty typewriter, personally, he will have to offer clearer proof of that acquaintance than he advances in his drama to have the fact accepted.

Several persons in the dispersing audience last evening insisted they had met Edna under different aliases, and one young man was free to declare, positively and repeatedly, that, according to both hearsay and his own belief, "de show (meaning Edna's show) ust t' be 'Bert'a de Sewin' Machine Goil.'"

And yet he was unquestionably in the wrong. Edna may in a way suggest sister Bertha, but they are not one and the same. In fact, there is a great difference (J. Oliver would likely call it a wide gulf) between them. Edna runs a typewriter with her fists; Bertha played a sewing machine with her quick wit and her feet. They resemble each other in but one particular—Edna could not write her own name on her typewriter and Bertha suggested a greater familiarity with washing machines than with the dressmaker's salvation and the installment man's pride.

Aside from this lingering doubt as to her previous condition of servitude on the circuit, the audience last night seemed interested in the troubles of Edna, the typewriter, and goodness knows the girl had trouble and to spare. In the first place, she was alone in New York, with nothing to do but work, nowhere to go but home, no one to see but a Hebrew comedian and a comic Irish lady, and nothing to face but temptation and her machine. Worst of all, she was working for a cousin who could not read her copy and was about to discharge her. He did discharge her, in fact, and would not have taken her back—though she already had pledged that day's wage for her board and room—had it not been for something that happened in the first act.

Edna had no mother (in the play) and her father had been a wild sort. Y'ars before John Oliver's play begins he had gone into the Sierra Madre mountains and there located Kate Burnette, adventuress, and a fabulously rich silver mine. He lived with Kate and ran the mine until one day, when she had grown tired of him and his silver, she took one drink too many and killed him just as he was about to send a deed of the mine and a word of love to his daughter in New York. She covered up the crime, but the hero, a young business man who was hanging around, found her before she could get away, took the papers away from her, and swore they should be given to Edna, the pretty typewriter, if he had to do it himself.

Once in New York and there is the dickens to pay. Cousin has learned of the shooting in the first act and proposes marriage to Edna. When she spurns him, not once, but twice, because, though she may not know how to run a typewriter, thank heaven, she is an honest gell, he flushes with anger and laughs in a deep bass that rumbles prophetically. He shall see, he shall, and so shall she.

It is while he is in this state of mind that Kate Burnette, adventuress, arrives and proposes that they work together until they get the million to which Edna is heir. Done! But how? Whisper—and hiss—dead heiresses tell no tales! Good! Either she shall marry him (meaning cousin) or she shall die! And even married—whisper again—she shall not live long!

From that moment there is started a chase that takes these good and bad people all over greater New York and finally leaves them at Coney Island. First Edna is attacked in the office of her cousin and rescued by the young man who has come from out the west to save her. Then she is locked up in a room on the roof of a tenement house and tied to a chair. Will she surrender there, when all hope is gone? Indeed she will not. Then she shall die again! Even so, for all she loves her life, does she not love honor more? She does. Biff! The window is broken; Edna is rescued; the villains are in pursuit across the roofs. What can be done? Ah, the elevated train is coming! Good! Drop Edna on top of that! Fine! She is free!

After this the poor girl is locked in a safe and all but smothered when they blow off the door with nitroglycerin, and finally she is tied to a post in a dance hall and once more sentenced to be shot. But now, what do you suppose happens? Ah, that is the little surprise. The man who has been going around all evening with his head between his shoulders and acting as subvillain, when he is told to shoot Edna, turns the revolver toward his master, curses him, and gives him the full benefit of the blank cartridge fairly in the chest.

Then the police patrol boat comes up the river, Edna is rescued for the last time, and it is all over. Incidentally everybody is glad she has the million. It will keep her from going back to the typewriter and irritating other men with her bad spelling and her fatal beauty.

Last night a little Chicago girl, Marie De Trace, played Edna. The leading lady of the company, Edith Browning, is ill and the substitution was made at the matinée yesterday. Miss De Trace did not miss a line last night—not even a squeal—and her performance was decidedly creditable.

BURNS MANTLE.

Lohengrin Succeeding.

The grand opera in English being given at the International promises to prove successful. The patronage has been uniformly good, and yesterday afternoon at the first popular priced matinée the house was not only completely sold out but many people were turned away unable to secure seats. The tickets for the Saturday afternoon performance also are largely disposed of. The conditions are subject for satisfaction, for the Metropolitan company is giving a thoroughly commendable performance of "Lohengrin," and any endeavor that tends to popularize grand opera here in Chicago is to be encouraged and approved.

Yesterday evening two Chicago singers accomplished their début with the company. Alfred D. Shaw appeared as Lohengrin, and Miss Martha Shayne was the Ortrud. Mr. Shaw, who was heard in the same house a few weeks ago as Faust with the Italian company, had last evening the advantage of better preparation than had been made possible to him on the previous occasion. It is known now that he sang Faust without a single complete rehearsal, and this being the case his achieving what he did was distinctly to his credit. Last evening he was seen in the first act of the Wagner opera, and although still not at ease from a histrionic standpoint, his singing of the music of the act was enjoyable and praise meriting. His voice is scarcely an operatic one save where the purely lyric parts are concerned, but it is a voice which is used well and which is agreeable to hear. He made a good looking Knight of the Grail, and when he becomes more at ease in his acting will be an element of added strength to the tenor resources of the organization.

Miss Shayne made a darkly handsome Ortrud, and her voice as heard in the first portions of the great scene commencing the second act seemed an organ of good quality and power. The music of this ungrateful part lies so outlandishly for the human voice that a singer's abilities can with difficulty be gauged through it. Miss Shayne's voice impressed as a mezzo of agreeable timbre, especially in the lower and middle portions. The upper notes in the Ortrud music the voice compassed safely, but there was effort—a fact that is wholly pardonable. The appearance of the singer in other rôles will be watched with interest.

Miss Edwardes was repeating her enjoyable and meritorious presentment of Elsa, Mr. Hinshaw was again the Frederick, Mr. Conkey the Herald, and Mr. Schuster the King Henry.

Tonight in Music hall the Hugo Heermann Quartet will give its last concert of the present series, and in Cable hall Rhea Weaver Carson, soprano; Robert Boice Carson, tenor; and Edgar Nelson, pianist, will be heard in a Schumann-Grieg program.

Tomorrow evening in the Bush Temple Recital hall Harold von Mickwitz, pianist, and Ludwig Becker, violinist, will offer a chamber music concert, the program of which consists of the Mozart Sonata in E minor, the Kreutzer Sonata of Beethoven, and the Schubert Introduction and Rondo Brillante in B minor.

HOPE FOR RUSSIAN CAUSE TOLD BY PEASANT LEADER.

Anton Stcherbak, Revolutionist Freed on Application of Duma, Talks of Progress at Hull House.

Hope for the early and complete success of the Russian revolution was held out by Anton Stcherbak, leader of the peasant revolutionist organization of Russia, to the members of the Russian Socialist Revolutionist society of Chicago at Hull house last night. He spoke in Russian.

"There is no cause for despair," he said. "The progress of the revolution has been wonderful. When I entered the work I believe I knew the name of every worker in the cause in Russia. Now the workers, the active, intelligent workers, are numbered by hundreds of thousands. Russia is awake. There is standing room only in the schools of Russia today from the lowest to the highest.

"The best evidence of the true state of affairs is found in the fact that there is no market for Russian land. It sells for almost nothing."

Stcherbak has been connected with the Russian revolutionary movement for twenty-five years. In 1893 he came to America with his family and settled on a farm in California. In 1903 he went back to Russia to take part in the revolutionary movement then beginning. Stcherbak was imprisoned. When the duma met its first act was to demand his release, which was granted. He expects to soon return to Russia.

ELECTRICAL SHOW ATTRACTS TECHNICAL SCHOOLS' PUPILS.

Wireless Telegraph Transmitter Exhibited, Invention of Henry Transton, 75 McLean Avenue, 17 Years Old.

"Students' day" at the electrical show brought delegations of pupils from all of the technical schools of the city to the Coliseum yesterday afternoon. The students inspected their exhibits and those of their competitors in the contest for cash prizes for the most useful electrical invention. The contest was arranged at the request of some of the electrical firms of the city.

In the students' collection is a Tesla high frequency coil for use in electric therapeutic work. It is the work of Henry L. Transton, 75 McLean avenue. He also invented and is exhibiting a wireless telegraph transmitter.

A new device was added to the nine room flat yesterday, being a residential cleaning plant. This system makes it possible for the maid or houseman in any part of the house or on any floor to start cleaning by simply starting the air process.

The International Independent Telephone association will meet next Tuesday in the Coliseum. It is expected that 1,000 members of the organization will be present.

ASHLAND'S RENT IS $72,750

Lease Change Reveals Interesting Fact About Block.

BUILDING AS LOAN SECURITY

Ruprecht Family Raises $100,000 on West Randolph Structure.

A readjustment of the lease conditions in connection with the Ashland block property at the northeast corner of Clark and Randolph streets, executed Sept. 1, 1900, prior to the death of Alexander J. Alexander, the owner of the property, was filed for record yesterday. The lease is of interest as making public the annual rent paid, which is $72,750.

The lease covers the Ashland block proper and the annex to the north, and includes 180x80 feet of ground, west front, with 160 feet on Couch place. The lease runs from Mr. Alexander to the Ashland Block association for a term of ninety-one years.

The original lease is from Mr. Alexander to the Ashland Block company for a term of ninety-nine years from Sept. 1, 1892. It provided that in addition to the rent the lessee is to pay the lessor any and all income and profits arising from the property until the sum of $550,000 shall have been paid, and that for every $5,000 so paid the rent shall be reduced $275 until it amounts at $50,000, at which figure it shall remain. When this amount shall have been paid the lessor the building shall become the property of the lessee, to be purchased by the lessor at the end of the lease.

Get Loan on Building.

Caroline, Frank H., and William J. Ruprecht have secured a loan through Seney, Rogers & Co. of $100,000, five years, at 5½ per cent, on three new seven story buildings at West Randolph and Jefferson streets. The Chicago Title and Trust company is trustee in the loans.

Albert C. Hessel of New York city has sold to James O'Connor the property in Farrell street, 236 feet south of Archer avenue, for $19,000, subject to an incumbrance of $10,300.

More Archer Avenue Transfers.

Another big batch of transfers in the Archer avenue district was filed for record during the day, title, as usual, being taken by the Chicago Title and Trust company. They numbered twelve, and comprised frontage on Purple street, Twentieth place, and Twentieth street, and Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets.

DRUG SHOP TALKS—NO. 49

PATENT MEDICINE FRAUDS

THE ECONOMICAL, in these spoiling-for-a-fight days, is headquarters for all kinds of "war material"—everything with which to war against disease—good, bad and indifferent! It has been engaged in a desperate warfare for ten years with the "Retail Drug Trust," and has conquered; which experience fits it for the position of "War Minister" to the people, and it is prepared to minister honestly and faithfully.

THE BIG DRUG STORE sells so-called "Patents" at the same "bargain prices," every business hour of every business day in the year,—and these are the lowest average prices of any store of any size, kind or degree in Chicago.

THE ECONOMICAL is not enamored of the job of selling such trash—though in the language of the philosopher: "If that's the kind of trash the people want (and it seems to be) that's the kind of trash we are prepared to sell them." We say trash, but perhaps "slops" would best define the stuff that no physician of standing in his profession, no reputable druggist, no chemist, will endorse or approve, and that no thinking man or woman will be humbugged into using!

THE BIG DRUG STORE is plaintively asked by many ailing customers "If the advertised cure-alls are, as you claim, as a rule, utterly worthless, except as they may affect the mind as faith cures—faith in lying advertisements—what in the world are we to do to regain health?" That's dead easy! Ask us something hard! Go to or call in a skillful doctor, let him diagnose your case and prescribe the exact medicine best adapted to the speedy cure of your particular disease, and take his prescription to THE ECONOMICAL, to be carefully filled with the best and purest drugs and chemicals, by educated and experienced registered pharmacists of the highest standing in their profession, at prices averaging about one-third less than those charged by other druggists, and you then have entered upon a rational, sane method of medication. As to the matter of expense, bless your innocent souls, this method will be far cheaper in the end!

THE BIG DRUG STORE Prescription Department is the only OPEN one in the United States (possibly excepting some recent imitators in a small way), 90 feet long, open to the fullest investigation of each customer, who can watch every move of the pharmacist and see every ingredient that is used. This removes any possibility of "substitution," and it is this open exhibition of honest pharmacy that has won the confidence of physicians and patients alike, and given us a prescription business larger than any four other drug stores in Chicago combined!

THE ECONOMICAL gives honest advice to its customers, BUT ONLY WHEN ASKED. WE never volunteer advice. If a proposed purchase will probably do you no good, we will tell you so frankly, even at the risk of losing a customer—for it is a queer trait in human nature that once a customer has made up his mind to try an advertised nostrum the only cure for that preposterous proposition is to let him try it! As a rule one dose (bottle) is enough, though some strong stomachs tackle a half dozen bottles, then send a testimonial and a photograph to the Good Samaritan proprietor, achieve literary and pictorial newspaper fame—and then go to a physician ever afterwards!

THE BIG DRUG STORE hates shams and frauds, hence this queer advertisement, deprecating half the "goods" it sells, but is not responsible for the manufacture of, thank God! That would be terrible!

THE VALUE OF PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Personal knowledge is the winning factor in the culminating contests of this competitive age and when of ample character it places its fortunate possessor in the front ranks of

The Well Informed of the World.

A vast fund of personal knowledge is really essential to the achievement of the highest excellence in any field of human effort.

A Knowledge of Forms, Knowledge of Functions and Knowledge of Products are all of the utmost value and in questions of life and health when a true and wholesome remedy is desired it should be remembered that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., is an ethical product which has met with the approval of the most eminent physicians and gives universal satisfaction, because it is a remedy of Known Quality, Known Excellence and Known Component Parts and has won the valuable patronage of millions of the Well Informed of the world, who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual use that it is the first and best of family laxatives, for which no extravagant or unreasonable claims are made.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of—Syrup of Figs—and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent family laxative. As its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well known to physicians and the Well Informed of the world to be the best we have adopted the more elaborate name of—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna—as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doubtless it will always be called for by the shorter name of—Syrup of Figs—and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package, whether you call for—Syrup of Figs—or by the full name—Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

WESTERN STONE EARNS LESS

Financial Statement Shows 2.5 Per Cent on Stock.

BOXBOARD ISSUES STRONGER

Further Reduction in Amalgamated Dividend Expected Today.

According to the financial statement submitted at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday, the Western Stone company earned less than 2.5 per cent on its capital stock in 1907. The company paid dividends of 8 per cent on its stock and retired $9,000 of its bonds, but in doing so reduced its surplus account $21,906 from the amount reported at the end of 1906.

One change was made in the board of directors at the annual election that indicated an interest of the Illinois Brick company in the stone concern. C. B. Ver Nooy, vice president of the brick company, was elected a director of the Western Stone to succeed Charles G. Landquist.

The trading position of the stone company at the end of the year, in comparison with that at the end of 1906, was reported as follows:

| | 1907. | 1906. |
|---|---|---|
| Stone, merchandise, etc. | $89,590 | $92,547 |
| Bills and accounts and cash | 61,715 | 89,751 |
| Total | $151,305 | $182,298 |
| Accounts and bills payable | 24,180 | 19,665 |
| Balance | $127,125 | $162,633 |

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31 compares as follows:

RESOURCES.

| | 1907. | 1906. |
|---|---|---|
| Real estate and buildings | $1,957,743 | $1,958,983 |

| Stone, merchandise, and stripping | 89,590 | 92,547 |
| Bills and accounts receivable and cash | 61,715 | 89,751 |

President Madden Disappointed.

In his report to the stockholders, Martin B. Madden, president of the company, expressed his disappointment over the earnings of the last year. He said:

"Although the volume of business was greater than that for 1906, the cost of transacting it was higher, due to the fact that wages were increased, while the amount of work done per man decreased correspondingly. Following the financial stringency, the business fell off to such an extent that October and November, usually the two best months of the year, turned out to be the worst. I am pleased to say, however, that the financial condition of the company was never better than it is today. The bonded debt was reduced $9,000 during the year, leaving the total $227,500."

Local Stock Market.

The announcement that the new management in the United Boxboard company had paid off the last $350,000 due to O. C. Barber and his associates for the American Strawboard stock purchased from them a year ago was the occasion for a slight advance yesterday in the price of Boxboard issues in the local market. Mr. Mitchell, the present head of the company, announces that he has been able to finance its needs on its own credit, which the Barber management claimed could not be done.

Shipbuilding common stock was advanced sharply to 55 on a fair buying demand, that price being 7½ points up from the last preceding quotation. The deferred dividend on the stock and regular quarterly payments are expected hereafter. Subway was active and up a couple of points, to 20¼. Illinois Brick dropped back a couple of points from the high mark made the day before, and Sears-Roebuck preferred sold down to 72 on small offerings. Swift was traded in only to the extent of 18 shares. The bond list was comparatively dull, but prices were firm.

STOCK CLOSING IS IRREGULAR

Prices Show Declines Compared with Preceding Day.

MONEY SITUATION FACTOR.

Reading Is Bid Up in Last Half Hour of Session; Bonds Not Active.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—[Special.]—The closing tone in stocks was irregular after a period of liquidation during which prices lost part of the gains of the preceding day.

The inflow of money as an exhibit of trade contraction received more attention in the prevailing mood of the financial district. The continued reports of declining railroad earnings and of retrenchment of expenditures by the railroads and other great corporations were given consideration. The action expected tomorrow on the Amalgamated Copper dividend is awaited with interest in view of the examples of reduced disbursement on copper securities which have been offered.

Reading was bid up with great determination in the last half hour of the trading, with a recovery of more than its dividend and the low prices to which stocks fell in the course of the selling were partly repaired.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $3,872,000.

United States 3s declined ¼ per cent on call.

Money on call steady, 3@4½ per cent; ruling rate, 4; closing bid, 2½; offered at 3. Time loans soft; 60 days and 90 days, 5½ per cent; 6 months, 5½ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 6@8 per cent. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.8560@4.8565 and at 4.8145@4.8155 for 60 day bills. Commercial bills, 4.8125. Bar silver, 55⅝c. Mexican dollars, 44c. Government bonds easy; railroad bonds irregular.

BUY NEVADA-UTAH NOW

MULL THIS OVER

Here are six propositions, simple, straight, for your benefit, also my own. Mull them over. Then there will be no ground for grumbling later.

FIRST.

For thirty-eight years I have talked to Wall and State Streets and the public. My following is larger today than at any other time. Why? Because the "Streets" and the public know I believe what I talk, and that I talk so that they believe. Yet they all know that often I have been wrong, that I have made big mistakes—perhaps not so much mistakes as that I try to produce results which will not eventuate. Wall and State Streets and the public forgive (they don't forget, they forgive) mistakes born of honest intentions, else I would not have a following long enough to cast a shadow.

SECOND.

I know the stock game, the men who make and run it and the hordes who play it. For two years the men who make the stock game have been balked by circumstances, absolutely balked. Turn and twist as they would they could not remove the two pronged obstacle which balked them: Roosevelt on the one hand and the people's lack of faith in the game on the other.

At last the men who make the game decided upon desperate means to the end, and acted. For a few days the fur flew and financialdom was enveloped in a two-thirds broken glass and one-third deadly poison atmosphere. Many institutions were wrecked, many convicts and suicides were made—but the obstacle was removed. Financialdom is to have a President who will let it alone; the public bought vast quantities of stock at slaughter prices, and, chuckling at their new-made and novel luck, are now willing to allow market-makers to resume their sway.

THIRD.

Stocks are booming. There is an eight cylinder bull market coming down the American pike which will make all predecessors resemble one horse chaises.

FOURTH.

I have had plans under way for the consolidation of a number of properties into other and great enterprises for the benefit of the public, investors, and incidentally for my own benefit. My plans have been postponed because I could not get them "right" for the public until after the public had been put aboard the financialdom prosperity train on a safe and comfortable basis. I have now started to round them up.

FIFTH.

During the past three years, while I have been combating the System in the open, "the Streets" thought I could do nothing with my consolidations in the interests of the public, because the System would oppose me. Rot. I can get anything in the way of corporation control and consolidation from the System by asking—no, not by asking but by simply notifying them I am about to take them for the benefit of the public. I will very shortly demonstrate this by reaching for the control of Amalgamated. When I do the Street and the public will imagine they are to witness a battle. Instead, I will notify Mr. William Rockefeller, who now controls Amalgamated, that I will relieve him of it, and Mr. Rockefeller will put it in my hands, with the understanding, of course, that I take it for the benefit of the public who now own it.

SIXTH.

In whipping things into consolidation shape I will take the presidency of the different participating corporations without salary or any inside profits. I am compelled to ask for the presidency that I may guarantee the public just what's what, while, on the other hand, the directors of the different corporations, by remaining directors, will guarantee me to "the Streets."

In addition to the presidency of Trinity, with 6,000 stockholders, I have just taken the presidency of the Bay State, with 52,000 stockholders, and Tuesday that of the Balaklala-First National Company, which, because of its control by the American Smelting people, "the Streets" thought I could not obtain. In a few days I will be elected president of another corporation, and then for the rounding up of this particular consolidation affair, I will require the presidency of the Nevada-Utah with 9,000 to 10,000 stockholders. In securing this presidency I wish to double the number of stockholders, and I propose to accomplish this by publicly speaking the merits of Nevada-Utah that the public may buy out all the insiders or others who wish to sell up to say 15 or 20 per share.

YESTERDAY.

There was a wild opening in Nevada-Utah yesterday in New York and Boston—yesterday. The New York and Boston Curbs were full of orders to buy. Ten minutes before the opening about 20,000 shares changed hands in each market and the price jumped from 4½ to 7. After the opening we got it back to 6 and all day long it sold around 6 and closed at 6 bid. The transactions in New York were 20,000 before the opening, 70,000 after. In Boston, 20,000 before ten o'clock and 65,000 after, 175,000 shares—more than any other stock. Think of it! More than any other stock and the campaign only two hours old.

As my advertisements do not get orders fairly under way until the fourth day following their appearance, I wish to appeal to the brokers of both markets for fair treatment for the public when they jam the market places, as they will then. I trust they will assist me in holding down the price each day within fair limits, so that we may have no repetition of the crazy fluctuations of a year ago. I will do all in my power each day to enable new buyers to secure their stock at fair prices. It should be for the interest of all honest brokers to do the same.

I advise all buyers to limit their price for today at say 7, tomorrow at say 8 and so on, according to the circumstances surrounding the previous day's trading. This procedure is best for all interested, as it assures a stable market at all times. My brokers in both markets estimated last night that there were orders for between 30,000 and 50,000 shares unfilled, because they were limited under yesterday's price. This means the best sort of market, as all buyers are assured of being able to sell should they desire to. Buy only through Stock Exchange and reputable Curb houses. Buy only for cash. After buying transfer the certificates into your own name and send me your proxies.

Bear in mind that under no circumstances will I execute any orders on the stock. I have none for sale and no time or inclination to supervise their execution by other brokers.

Boston, January 16, 1908.

WHEAT OFF ON LIQUIDATION

Foreign Weakness and Huge Receipts Dishearten Bulls.

LEADERS UNLOAD BIG LINE.

Coarse Grains Yield to Selling Pressure; Hog Products Lower.

Unexpectedly weak cables from Liverpool, due to more liberal and cheaper Argentine offerings, with unusually heavy receipts in the northwest, developed several incipient cases of "cold feet" among the wheat bulls yesterday, and resulted in quite general liquidation of the cereal by holders, both large and small. The Bartlett-Frazier house was conspicuous on the selling side here, and they also were credited with selling in Liverpool. Support came principally from the big shorts and holders of downs, whose buying checked the decline, but did not induce much of a reaction, final prices being ⅝@1⅛c lower than Tuesday's close, the July and September futures being relatively steadier than the May. Trade after the opening was not on a large scale, but there was sufficient pressure all through the session to hold prices within ½c of the low point.

Liverpool Cables Disappointing.

Following the firmer tone of the local market on Tuesday cables were due to come higher, and the decline of 1d at the start of the Liverpool market with the easier tone in continental marts took the heart out of the bulls. Other news was about as bearish as the cables. Receipts in the northwest were nearly three times what they were the corresponding period last year, and again brought forth the hackneyed excuse that they represented the cleaning up of country elevators. Whatever the cause the result was lower cash prices at Minneapolis, where the premium for No. 1 northern has disappeared. In the southwest receipts were also in excess of a year ago, indicating farmers are more inclined to take advantage of present high prices.

Foreign Crop News Better.

Foreign crop reports were generally of a more favorable tenor, the Berlin market being particularly affected by the better tone of country advices. Developments in Russia were not auspicious, however, and a special cable from there said receipts were light and prices way above an export basis. These statements have been borne out the last few weeks by the exceedingly light shipments from Black sea ports.

Argentine receipts are increasing and it is expected shipments from that country will show heavy increases from this time on. Should exports from this country continue on the same heavy scale as recently world's shipments will probably be unusually heavy for the next few weeks. Pacific coast advices say the prospect is for heavy clearances from their ports for the next two or three months.

Exports Are on Large Scale.

Exports of flour and wheat from this country during December last were the largest since 1898 and were more than 10,000,000 bu more than for the corresponding month in 1906. For the calendar year, as reported by the government, exports were the largest since 1902. Clearances at the eastern seaboard were again heavy—693,000 bu, with two points not heard from. Indications suggest another heavy total for the current week.

Numerous reports from the southwest were received, all of which were bearish in that they reported a splendid condition of the winter wheat crop. No complaints of bug ravages, either present or prospective, were noted. Primary receipts were heavy, northwestern points receiving 339,000 bu more than a year ago, and the southwest 99,000 bu more than last year.

Cash demand was slow in all directions, but in a few isolated instances export bids were in line, and a little wheat was worked both on the Atlantic seaboard and at the gulf, but the quantity was not large. Local sales were 20,000 bu and the seaboard reported 288,000 bu.

Wheat Weakness Affects Corn.

Corn sympathized with the decline in wheat to a moderate extent, but the selling pressure was not heavy, and final prices showed declines of but ⅜@½c to ½c. Receipts were considerably under estimates, at 311 cars, but weather predictions were for much colder weather, while the unresponsive Liverpool cables put a damper on bullish enthusiasm. Most of the receivers are looking for a substantial movement, with conditions favorable. Estimates for today, 408 cars.

A little better cash demand developed and at the start of the sample market prices were a shade higher, but later the tone was easy. The supply of corn of shipping quality was meager, the percentage of low grade stuff being large. Moderate sales were made for export account. Primary receipts were 1,017,000 bu, against 788,000 bu last year. Liverpool closed ½d lower for spot corn and ⅛@⅜d lower for futures. Boston reported Ohio corn received in poor condition, but some of the seaboard advices stated corn from east of here was being offered cheaper than local dealers were offering the same grades. It was stated that but little of the Ohio crop has been moved up to date. Local shipping sales were 115,000 bu, with 40,000 bu reported at the seaboard.

Oats Trade at Low Ebb.

Trade in oats was at a low ebb, and prices eased off more from lack of any demand than from any heavy pressure, the weakness in wheat and corn being the chief factor. Final quotations showed losses of ¼@½c. The cash demand showed a little improvement, and there were shipping sales of 100,000 bu. Sample prices were ¼@½c higher. The receipts were light—99 cars—with 181 cars estimated for today. Primary receipts were 545,000 bu, against 451,000 bu a year ago. Outside interest is lacking.

Provision List Is Heavy.

The provision list was heavy during the greater part of the session, packing interests being sellers of January and May product, while the volume of outside buying was much lighter than on the previous day. The market acted overbought, and in spite of the lighter run of hogs than expected. Receipts at western points were 145,000, against 94,000 a year ago. Foreign markets were quoted lower for meats and backs and Cumberlands were 1s lower. The continued slow shipping demand was a bear factor, and packers find hedging operations unusually profitable. Estimated receipts for today, 46,000.

Cash Rye Is Higher.

Carlots of rye were scarce and prices much firmer, but futures eased off in sympathy with wheat. January closed at 82c and May at 86½c bid and 87½c asked. No. 1 sold at 85c f. o. b. Receipts were 3 cars.

Barley prices broke sharply. There is a good deal of poor barley coming forward which is hard to sell, and this is having a depressing effect on the market. Malting was quoted 84c@$1.04½; mixing, 68@75c; screenings, 40@66c. Receipts were 30 cars.

Flaxseed was unchanged. No. 1 northwestern closed at $1.19; No. 1 from the northwest, $1.17½; No. 1 southwestern, $1.09; and rejected northwestern, $1.01@1.13.

Timothy seed was firmer. January closed at $4.40@4.45 and March $4.40 bid. Country lots, $3.75@4.40.

Clover seed was steady, with January at $17.00, March $17.25, and cash lots $10.50@16.50.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

The export demand for wheat is apparently limited to small lots of durum and hard wheat, the latter from the gulf. In isolated cases bids for small lots permit of working, but, in general, prices are still materially out of line, and the declining foreign markets do not indicate any improvement in the near future. Argentine offerings are again free at cheaper prices, and this for the time being is shutting off the inquiry for American wheat. Car lots here were in good demand, with offerings light and prices steady. Minneapolis cash wheat premiums have melted away as a result of the heavy receipts the last few days, which were called forth by the increasing relative value of the cash article. No. 1 northern was quoted May price to ½c under. Stocks there increased 75,000 bu for four days. Cash corn in the local sample market was steady to a shade easier, with offerings of shipping grades light. Colder weather is expected to increase receipts materially, country advices indicating that the prices are satisfactory and that farmers will sell with weather and roads favorable. Oats arrivals were lighter than expected, and with a fair shipping demand prices were unchanged to ½c higher. St. Louis and Kansas City advices said the south and southwest were coming after corn freely. A little export demand existed in the local market. Local sales were 20,000 bu wheat, 115,000 bu corn, and 100,000 bu oats. The seaboard reported sales of 288,000 bu wheat, including 40,000 bu No. 2 red, 64,000 bu durum, and 128,000 bu hard wheat, and 40,000 bu corn.

"Packers are selling January stuff freely, which is something unusual," said a provision specialist. "Practically all of the packers are making contract product, bringing it in and delivering it. As a usual thing they buy the product from the small packers. Receipts of meats are unusually large—1,192,454 lbs today. Hams are now being sold at about the same price as ribs, which shows that hams are too low or ribs much too high. At the current prices for product the market could decline ½c lb and still show an excellent profit in packing, even if hogs remained at the same figures as at present. Foreign markets are showing the effect of heavy offerings, and the 'chinks' are being pretty well filled up on this side. Some of the people close to the big packers are claiming there will be 50,000,000 lbs short ribs in store here May 1."

Bartlett-Frazier headed the selling of wheat yesterday and were aided and abetted by almost the entire local contingent. Some of the big shorts took advantage of the selling to cover big lines of short, Chapin buying in about 750,000 bu. Barrell was a seller early, but bought a big line on the decline. Commission houses generally were free sellers of wheat. Lake, Love, and Wrenn were on the selling side. Holders of downs supported the market by their buying after the heavy selling was over. In corn early buyers were Rosenbaum Grain, Knight-McDougal, and holders of the downs. Bloom, Clement-Curtis, Willard, Canby, Brosseau, and later Knight-McDougal sold. Individual trade in oats was of little consequence. Packers sold provisions and on the decline there was buying by outside interests.

"The exports from the Pacific coast of wheat and flour up to Dec. 31 were 22,500,000 bu," said J. F. Jackson. "The best authority on the coast says the exports in January and February will be heavy. There are 78 vessels now afloat headed to the Pacific coast ports for wheat and flour. These Pacific coast shipments are what is swelling our weekly clearances to such large proportions. The trade keeps looking for big declines in the visible supply in consequence. Our Pacific coast shipments are of a financial benefit to the country, but they are of no assistance in reducing the load that speculators are carrying east of the Rockies."

Bromhall's weekly foreign crop summary read: "Germany—Weather changeable but on the whole favorable. Been a good fall of snow and no complaints heard regarding crop outlook. Hungary—Climatic conditions decidedly unfavorable, as the weather alternates between freezing and thawing and the crops need snow covering. Roumania and Bulgaria—Weather cold; good fall of snow; outlook improved. United kingdom, France, Italy, and Spain—No change since last report. Sweden—Severe winter weather reported. North Africa—Outlook less favorable; rain wanted."

"It is hard to make me believe that northwest movement will continue as at present," said a message from Logan-Bryan's Minneapolis correspondence. "This has been an unusually mild winter. The weather has been ideal, roads in excellent condition, and the price fairly attractive all season. There is little stuff moving from first hands now. The increased movement at this time is caused by premium over May and a general desire on the part of some line elevators to clean out and close down houses, as there is not enough grain to come forward to warrant expense of keeping open."

B. W. Snow wired from Enderlin, N. D.: "Twelve thousand bu wheat in elevator here, against 20,000 bu last year. Thirty-five per cent in first hands. Local deliveries 1,500 daily. Movement to Minneapolis will continue free so long as present weather holds. Roads have been perfect and cars had for asking, so the crop has moved much faster than usual. Elevators trying to clean up while traffic conditions are good. Liberal movement is at expense of ordinary farm reserves, and carry over March 1 will be smallest for years."

W. P. Anderson & Co. had a number of dispatches from the southwest yesterday covering a wide range of territory, and all were uniformly encouraging. Kansas points wired that prospects were never better than at present, and the majority of messages said the acreage was about the same as a year ago. Oklahoma advices said prospects were excellent for a big crop. Bugs of any sort or description were not mentioned in any of the reports.

F. Lenders & Co. of London forwarded the following: "The position of wheat appears to us as perfectly sound and to be gaining strength daily, so that we have little hesitation in expressing a favorable opinion as to future prospects, and we look for a largely increased consumptive demand both in this country and on the continent, which will undoubtedly lead to strong markets and in all probability to a further improvement in values."

A special Russian cable read: "The outlook for the wheat crop is unchanged since our last report, which was then reported as being unfavorable in the Volga, Azoff, Crimea, Poland, and South Center, which comprises the principal wheat growing districts. Severe freezing is reported, with good snow covering. In the southwest the weather is mild. There are no arrivals at the port of Odessa and prices are far above an export level."

Exports of wheat and flour for the calendar year 1907 were 164,547,000 bu, an increase for the year of 37,190,000 bu. The exports for the year were the largest since 1902. For December the shipments were 23,323,508 bu, exceeding those of December, 1906, by 10,058,000 bu, and were the largest for any December since 1898. For the first six months of the 1907 crop the total is 95,640,000 bu, against 81,900,000 bu a year ago and 52,396,000 bu in 1905.

The following committee has been appointed by President Sager to receive subscriptions for the relief of the destitute poor of Chicago: Henry J. Patten, B. B. Bryan, Walter Fitch, George E. Marcy, Samuel C. Scotten, Walter Browning, William N. Eckhardt, John A. Bunnell, Harry B. Shaw, E. F. Rosenbaum, George D. Brown, H. C. Avery, Howard Jackson, Joseph P. Griffin.

Closing prices for wheat in foreign markets were: Liverpool, 1⅛@1¼d lower; Paris, ¼@½c lower; Antwerp unchanged; Berlin, ⅜c off; Budapest, ⅛c higher. The lower prices at Berlin were credited to improved weather conditions on the continent and the more liberal Argentine offerings.

Slaughter had an Argentine cable saying: "Wheat receipts are increasing. Exports will be materially larger from now on."

Estimated receipts for today: Wheat, 23 cars; corn, 408 cars; oats, 181 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 41 cars; hogs, 46,000.

Employment Agencies.

ARE YOU OUT, ABOUT TO GET OUT, OR ARE YOU DISSATISFIED?

ARE YOU WORTH MORE MONEY? CAN YOU EARN IT?

You know your own ambitions better than the other fellow—what you simply must do is to present your case to those who can pay you what you are worth if they will. Do you know who they are?

Have you ever been out of a position and had to ask this fellow and that fellow if he knew of anything? It is an unfortunate condition to be in, this "peddling" of one's services is not what it is cracked up to be. Don't you know you cheapen yourself? The employer's commission is to find him "just the man" and is willing to pay the difference in price.

We do not make a specialty of men who are out. Only 3 per cent of our applicants are out, but in that 3 per cent there are some good men, and we are placing them daily. Come in and see us at once and let us show you some fine open positions. Don't get "down in the mouth"—keep your nerve. If you are clean cut and high grade, let us help you.

TALKING TO KEEP COOKE FROM CELL

All Day Argument Before Judge McEwen Only Begins the Proceeding.

COURT ADJOURNS EARLY.

When Words Finally Are All Said Case Can Go Under Long Advisement.

Arguments for the discharge of John A. Cooke, the convicted grafter, were continued yesterday in the habeas corpus proceedings in Judge McEwen's court. The indications are that the debate will not be concluded till next week, when the judge is expected to take the case under advisement for an indefinite time.

Attorney James Hartnett, one of Cooke's lawyers, did the talking. In the deep, sonorous voice for which he is known at the Chicago bar he argued that Cooke was convicted in an unfair trial, and quoted from a bewildering number of court decisions to prove it. With the utmost care and deliberation he proceeded, not leaving one point for another until he had exhausted the sum of all human knowledge on that head.

In this way he was enabled to confine himself to two of the twenty points raised, and when the court adjourned at 4:30 p. m. Mr. Hartnett said he expected to talk all of today. Then Attorney Haney will have something to say.

Much Time on Technical Point.

Mr. Hartnett spent most of his time enlarging upon the contention that Cooke should be freed because he was sentenced to the penitentiary for conspiracy to defraud, whereas he was charged in the indictment with conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses. He quoted decisions from Maine to California to prove this a sufficient cause for letting Cooke go free.

"The prosecutor in this case," he asserted, "not only amended the indictment and secured a conviction upon an information but he secured an acquittal on the indictment."

The attorney attacked the state's attorney, declaring it a shocking state of affairs that Cooke was indicted for stealing $25,000 of the people's money, whereas Bradley and Selnwurth, the deputy clerks who helped put through the thefts, were not indicted. The charges on which Cooke was convicted, he said, were outside of the indictment.

"If a man can be tried on charges not in the indictment and above the objections of his counsel we might as well be in Russia," thundered Hartnett.

A good deal of valuable delay was secured by reading several decisions of the Supreme court of Oklahoma, one of which discharged a defendant in habeas corpus proceedings on the ground that the judge was absent from his jurisdiction while the jury was deliberating.

"In the case of Cooke," reasoned Mr. Hartnett by analogy, "the judge left the indictment and proceeded to try the defendant on an information. The court thereby lost jurisdiction of the case, and all subsequent proceedings were void. Cooke, therefore, is entitled to relief by habeas corpus.

Quotes Part of a Decision.

In order to meet the decision in the Murphy case which the state will quote to show that Judge McEwen lacks jurisdiction of the complaints submitted, Attorney Hartnett quoted such parts of the opinion as favor his side of the dispute.

"The defendant asked a writ of habeas corpus," he said, "on the ground that his trial was not completed within the time required by law that it should be begun. As the statute does not require this the court decided he was entitled to discharge. That's all there is in the case, but the judge who wrote the decision wrote some other things that may or may not be law. At least they don't constitute a bar in this case."

The other things that this justice of the Illinois Supreme court wrote were that a defendant discharged by a court on complaints that had been overruled by the higher courts is a fugitive from justice and may be rearrested.

Not the least interest in the hearing attaches to the possible citation of the attempt to bribe the Cooke jury as one of the contributive causes of an unfair trial. The attempt was made upon a member of the jury through a window in the Revere house, Steve Crowe, the proprietor of the hotel, was indicted for the offense, but was acquitted, and the identity of the would-be jury fixer never was established. It has been pointed out that even the attempt might have influenced the opinions of one or more members of the jury. So far, however, the point has not been brought forward by Cooke's lawyers.

Throughout the day Cooke with his brother listened to the arguments, seated beside Attorney Haney. Most of the time the convicted man sat tilted back in his chair absently gazing out of the window into the gray sky and nervously picking at his close cropped mustache.

LAWYERS DODGE 'DRY' JURORS

Teetotalers Excused by Peremptory Challenges in Saloon Case

EIGHT VENIREMEN CHOSEN.

Judge Heap's Absence Compels Adjournment of Court at Noon.

History continues to repeat itself in the cases brought by the Chicago Law and Order league for the suppression of the Sunday saloon. As in the three former trials, none but patrons of the Sunday saloon—the institution which they are expected to condemn—have found it easy to qualify for service on the jury that is to decide the issues in the second trial of Hugh Daly for violation of the Sunday closing law of the state.

As the result of two days' labor in Judge Heap's court eight jurors who "take a drink when they please, both Sunday and week days," were sworn in yesterday for Daly's second trial.

"Do you enter saloons on Sunday?" was a question put to E. R. Babcock, a venireman from Morgan Park by Attorney Alfred Austrian for the defense.

"I can remember at least one occasion when I entered a saloon on Sunday," answered the prospective juror.

He was challenged peremptorily by Mr. Austrian.

Says He Is a Teetotaler.

Andrew C. Murphy, manager of a telegraph office at Evanston, was a venireman who was studied with interest by Daly and his attorney.

"You enter saloons whenever you please and take a drink, don't you?" asked Mr. Austrian.

"Not at all; I never enter a saloon and never take a drink in such a place," was the quick response.

"You are what they call a teetotaler?"

"Yes, there are lots of teetotalers," said Mr. Murphy.

Mr. Austrian also got rid of him by using a peremptory challenge.

Eight Jurors Are Selected.

The following have been accepted as jurors:

Michael O'Shaughnessy, 2762 North Winchester avenue.

R. G. Hixon, 4237 Indiana avenue.

August Bretsch, 6767 West Twenty-seventh place.

Charles Gieher, 746 West Forty-first street.

Fred Lauber, 562 West Division street.

Charles Bauman, 856 Perry street.

William Soellner, 940 Robey street.

William Bernstein, 372 Ashland avenue.

Bernstein said that he formerly went to saloons on Sunday, but had not been inside of one since his marriage.

There was no afternoon session of the court, as Judge Heap was compelled to be absent at a funeral.

DEMANDS MONEY SHE LOANED.

Mrs. Ruth Eckels, 4834 Cottage Grove Avenue, Sues Real Estate Firm for $2,500.

Declaring that she has been unable to get an accounting for money advanced, Mrs. Ruth Eckels, 4834 Cottage Grove avenue, filed a suit against Earl L. Butler, George P. Racine, and Louis Huston for $2,500 yesterday. The defendants are members of a real estate firm. Mrs. Eckels said that she had given them $2,800 with which to carry on a café business.
